YARKER-COLEBROOK WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The June meeting of the Yarker Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. S. Freeman with about twenty-four members and five visitors in attendance.

The President, Mrs. N. Boyce, occupied the chair. The meeting opened by singing the ode, followed by the Institute Collect.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Roll call was answered by hints for next year's programme. Plans were made for a bee on Friday, so clean the cemetery.

Mr. Reid gave an instructive talk on banking. Mrs. D. Martin an instrumental solo which was enjoyed by all. A splendid reading was given by Mrs. Fardell, "The Common Prayer Book". Mrs. Boyce gave an interesting paper on Medical Aid in schools.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Freeman, Yarker, on Wednesday July 18th, when Miss Hawley, Napanee, will demonstrate making crepe flowers.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and committee.

CONWAY WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Conway Women's Institute held ten meetings with an average attendance of twenty-three. The programmes of these meetings comprised thirteen papers and addresses, namely: Travelogues by Mrs. Fred Hum on her trip to Japan and by the Rev. Mr. Saunders on his trip to England. Rev. Mr. Saunders also with us and gave a splendid discourse on Confederation. One also very worthy of merit was that on Banking given by Mr. Cuppage. Mrs. Northmore and Mr. Laughland spoke enthusiastic on flowers and bulbs. Dr. Northmore favored us with another talk, dealing with the ever-important subject, health, diet and the begefit of milk. We also received a very educational address concerning municipal affairs from our reeve, Mr. Elliott.

We, at one meeting, had articles suitable as Christmas gifts, for sale which had been donated. The proceeds from this, completely covered the expenses incurred by our giving the needy of the neighborhood. A feature of every meeting was current events and the roll call with fine for non-reply. We had two competitive contests which were presented with prizes. Our Sick and Flower Committee sent flowers to members who were ill, and another committee worked for a bazaar which we hope to hold soon. A donation of five dollars was given to the Literary Fund. A year ago we held a sewing bee which proved very advantageous there being fourteen dresses completed and several altered, while this year we have arranged for a course in Domestic Science from June 4th to the 15th. We hope the ladies will all avail themselves of the knowledge and instruction this course offers.

A POSER AND A MYTH

Will Iron Float at a Great Depth In Water — Sailors Believe That Things "Find Their Level."

There has been much comment over the unexpectedness of some of the problems set in the education tests for the navy. One of the questions singled out for censure is this: "Will iron float at a great depth in water?"

It has clearly escaped the knowledge of the critic that a very ancient superstition among sailors, and probably among landsmen too, prompts the setting of this poser, for when we say that So-and-so "will find his level" we are merely adopting as a metaphor the old belief of sailors that iron does float at certain depths.

The belief is that under great pressure water becomes so dense and thick that solid matter will not descend through it; that a drowned man, a sunken battleship, a rent liner, sink only a certain distance, find their level, and then float, suspended in water too dense for farther descent.

Generation after generation of seamen has inherited the legend of sunken objects "finding their level," just as generation after generation of rustics has inherited the legend that the building of Tennyson's people caused the romantism of the Goodwin Sands, a belief that was common and ancient when it was solemnly handed on by an aged peasant to Sir Thomas More four centuries ago.

No better type of sailors ever sailed than those who manned the great Challenger scientific expedition, yet when one of their number died and was buried at sea in his shot-weighted hammock they sent a message to their officers asking whether it was not a fact that their dead comrade, after sinking to a certain depth, would "find his level" and float there somewhere, says a writer in the Children's Newspaper. Sir John Murray, who helped to solve the Challenger seamen's problem, lived to be asked a similar question as to the Titanic.

The fact is, as Sir John used to explain, that anything that will sink to the bottom of the deepest ocean has a certain depth the livelihood of a countless population of weird and extraordinary forms of life whose world is the deep ooze in the abyss of seas miles deep. Food slowly rains down upon them from the watery above; entire fishes, fragments of fishes which have fed fishes keeping down until, all sorts of dead creatures from all depths, even to the tiny shelled organisms whose home in life is the surface waters, pour down to the depths.

The rainfall does not stop them. Not that water at great depth is not to some extent compressed. The greater the depth the greater the compressibility. At a depth of 24,000 feet pressure reduces the bulk of 10,500 cubic feet of sea water to that of 10,000 cubic feet. But that does not prevent solid bodies from sinking. Gravity acts there, as everywhere, with an indifferent calculation shows that were it broken to cease the oceans would at once rise 200 feet.

That would drown half England, and flood much more land. But we need not fear that natural law will fail us. Gravitation will hold the seas in their bed, and all in the ocean bed will remain so long as there is enough to float.

Yet nature will go on for many a day believing that things "find their level," and those who set the navy tests papers were not so eccentric as they seemed.

Warnings for Walkers.

Everyone is familiar with the red triangles, crosses, circles, and other signs that are dotted about the roads for the guidance of motorists. Why not traffic signs for walkers? asks an Old Country paper.

A system of automatic traffic control that will indicate to pedestrians as well as to motorists the way they should go is being studied in Paris. It is hoped to dispense with policemen on point duty if the system is successful.

Already luminous signalling and one-way traffic make it possible for Paris motorists to travel at twenty-five-miles an hour during rush hour even in the busiest thoroughfares. The great problem is to educate the public to cross roads. Dies will be set up at points where walkers may cross the traffic, and a man crossing a road and an arrow indicating the way he must go.

A Bird's-Eye Secret.

What enables a wild bird to observe its every movement as whilst, apparently, intent on feeding

A gardener knows, too, that birds show an unerring intuition concerning the range of a shotgun.

The bird's feeding on the ground will instinctively discover a hawk hovering so high in the sky as to appear to the human eye a mere speck. There is quite a simple explanation. The two eyes of a bird do not focus, but are placed on the sides of vision, one molecular and the other binocular. While one eye is listent on searching for seeds and tiny insects, the other can keep a look-out for possible enemies.

World's Smartest Clock.

A clock that tells the time in twenty-four towns in different parts of the world has been invented by a San Francisco jeweller. It is claimed to be the most intelligent clock.

In addition to telling the time, it gives the moon phase, date and year. It is only a little bigger than a large pocket clock, measuring 18 inches square. It contains 650 parts, and took the inventor seven months to build.

Early Canal.

The famous Bridgewater Canal of China, which was built about 540 B.C., is one of the earliest known canals in the world. It is thirty-three miles long and is, therefore, one of the longest.

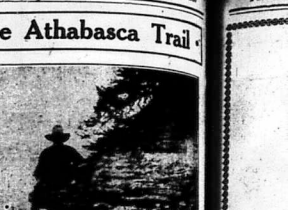
On the Athabasca Trail



The visitor to Jasper National Park in the Canadian Rockies finds that nature has made a lavish distribution of her beauty-spots within this, the largest National Park and game sanctuary in America. Towering mountain peaks, pleasant valleys and shimmering lakes all help to make this a land of real enchantment.

The Athabasca River, from its birthplace among the glaciers and icefields of this region, flows down first through Rocky Gorges and then through a wide, pleasant valley. At one point it tumbles over a cliff at the foot of Mount [illegible] and here at Athabasca Falls is one of the beauty spots of the upper Athabasca Trail.

At the conclusion of their 1928 convention which is to be held at the Royal Connaught Hotel, Edmonton this year, members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association will visit the National Parks and will spend a short holiday amid the beauties of the largest and finest of Canada's scenic playgrounds. — Canadian Pacific Railways photograph.

YARNS OF ICY NORTH

COLDEST POLICEMAN IN THE WORLD.

Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman Does Duty Only 700 Miles From the North Pole—Frozen Tears—Dog Deserters.

There is a policeman on duty only 700 miles from the North Pole.

He works at Bache Peninsula, in Ellesmere Land, which is the most northerly point of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Stories of privations cheerfully accepted as part of the day's task, of obstacles overcome, of heroic, arduous, and devoted work, are contained in the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police presented to the Canadian House of Commons.

Patrols undertaken in mid-winter, extend for many hundreds of miles over the Arctic wastes of Canada's northern lands.

Far ahead of the scattered army of settlers which is slowly pushing northward as frontiers of civilization, the patrols of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police press on, carrying to the natives, even to the few white traders and trappers, the same great traditions of the force which in years gone by made possible the peaceful settlement of the Canadian prairies.

There is a tendency to invest with a halo of romance all the frontier activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; but in sober truth there is not much romance in the toil and peril of life in the rough regions of which the Lizard Post is the centre.

For the R.C.M.P. detachment the days are full of arduous toil. In summer they must endure the ravages of a million mosquitoes and black flies; in winter the intense cold of the north must be faced.

Constant patrols to outlying parts are their lot; visits to Eskimo and whereabouts, since they live entirely by hunting, are never very certain; aid to white trappers who are ill or who need assistance in hauling supplies; long journeys to be made to "caches" of fried or frozen fish, for the dogs must be fed, and fish is their staple diet; fuel and wood must be hauled with dog-sleds in winter, and there are always Indians in need of medical attention, and they look to the R.C.M.P. as to super-mundane men.

Now and again things happen which call for courage and resource of the highest order. The patrol which returned recently had ample opportunity to prove that the men of the R.C.M.P. are still worthy of the highest traditions of the force.

A near-tragedy befell the patrol on a journey in January from the Lizard Post to McDame's Creek, ninety miles to the south. On January 16th, Inspector Wunsch, with Sergt. J. R. Paton, M.C., Constable Cooper, and two dog teams, set out. The mercury registered thirty-five below zero. Sergt. Paton was ahead feeling the trail with a pole. Inspector Wunsch was a quarter of a mile behind him with one dog team, and the constable the same distance in rear with the other.

When they had travelled some twelve miles up the Dease river, a point was reached where a small, open creek seeped into the river. It required no great skill to cross creeks without getting the dogs' feet wet, and Sergt. Paton was marking where the dog-teams should turn off to avoid this danger.

Suddenly he tripped and fell, plunging his right arm to the elbow in the icy water, and wetting his right mitt as he scrambled to his feet. Instantly realising his peril in that intense cold, he flung off his mitts, and shouting to his companions, made full speed for a disused trapper's shack which he knew to be not far away. By the time he reached the shack his hands were frozen solid well above the wrists. They were quite white, and hard as marble. His companions rubbed Paton's hands with slush, but they, in turn, began to freeze and all three faced a desperate situation.

Sergt. Paton, whose pain was intense, realized the danger to his companions, and urged that they should care for themselves as he was now gone. His peril was imminent before the ice thawed from his cheeks and nose, while the fatal whiteness crept steadily up from his wrists. But after four hours, during which the inspector and constable worked continuously on him, circulation was restored to Sergt. Paton's hands though the fingers were all black and green. One finger had to be amputated.

In June, a trapper, Dan McLinnan, after a fairly successful, if short season, but with grim running dangerously low, packed his supplies on the backs of his three dogs and, slinging his pack on his back, set out on the long trek to the post. Ten days later his dogs set off in chase of a moose — all were ravenous — and Dan's worldly goods, the beaver pelts and the remaining scraps of food for ten days the trapper scheduled what little game he managed to shoot with his rifle. He snared rabbits and ate musk-rats, but when he came to the post he was nothing more than a gaunt, abnormally emaciated form, and he broke down to his last two cartridges.

Incidents such as these, as well as the R.C.M.P. extend a helping hand to the lonely settlers, do much to establish their control over such a remote area. There is no element of "Prussianism" in their methods, for not the way of the R.C.M.P. To come to these remote settlers as friends, as counsellors, anxious only to help them and to assure them of the protection of British justice.

SIXTH SENSE FORESEES.

Faculty That Allows Homing Pigeons to Locate Its Loft.

A hitherto undiscovered sixth sense, the power that allows the homing pigeon to locate its loft by distant sensing bird its far distant source long, the animal its borne, is soon be revealed to the world at sessions of the Congress of Americ Physicians and Surgeons of Washington, Dr. Frederick Tilney, professor of neurology at Columbia University, mentioned another discovery in progress upon this new sense which may prove to be magnetic. Retina of the eye was suggested by Dr. Tilney as the organ of the bird in which the sense resides.

More men have long marvelled at the abilities of animals to find their way home through strange surroundings. Aviators need compasses and intricate instruments to navigate efficiently as the birds of the air do. phenomena as these gave impetus to Dr. Tilney's researches.

One clue in the search that is now under way is the fact that animals are greatly disturbed by any change of direction of their surroundings. Mice that are taught to run intricate mazes, a feat that is not dependent upon ordinary sense of sight, but smell for instance, are completely baffled when the mazes are moved or ordered arrangement in a different direction. They have to learn the mazes all over again.

Dr. Tilney believes that the nervous scientists that as yet his research are in a preliminary stage. But with own laboratories and those of the partment of psychology of Columbia University are at work.

If this tangential sense is confirmed by his experiments it will be of great importance. Five senses are seeing, touch, taste and smell, which are the result of contact of the nerves system by interchanges of vibrations to everyone. Then there are what Dr. Tilney called the skeletal senses, the hurt or pain sense which is protective instead of guiding like others.

OBITUARY

Mary Ann Martin.

Entered into eternal rest on Sunday morning, May 27th, 1928, Mary Ann Martin, aged 80 years and 7 months. Deceased was the oldest of four children born to the late Mr. and Mrs. Riley Arnold, of Richmond. Married to the late William Martin, of Richmond, and resided there until twenty years ago, then came to Fredericksburgh to live and spent the remainder of her days there. In religion she was a staunch Methodist; always of a strong and hardy nature and rarely ill, and spent a life of wonderful usefulness. Even in her declining years she still maintained this, and always kept young by interesting herself in everything that went on about her until two years ago, she began to fail with heart trouble until the last week. God saw the way was growing steep and the hills were hard to climb, so he closed the weary eyelids and said peace be thine. The funeral was held at Bethany Church, on Tuesday, May 29th, 1928. Rev. Mr. Merriam, of Bay Circuit conducted the service. Deceased is survived by seven children, Mrs. Henry Haines, Odessa; Mrs. George Ashley, Napanee; Mrs. Ephraim, of Tyendinaga; Wesley, of Thomasburg; Will, of Detroit; Arch, of Forest Mills; Herbert, of Bethany, on the old homestead. Two sisters, Mrs. Willet Haines, Desoronto; Mrs. Milton Jackson, Toronto; one brother, Willet, of Flint. Also thirty-two grandchildren and twenty-nine great grandchildren. All the children attended the funeral but Mrs. George Meeks, Carman, Man., and Will, of Detroit. Interment took place in the family plot beside her late husband, who predeceased her some years ago.

James Hewitt

One of the oldest residents of Kingsford vicinity entered into rest on June 14th, 1928, on Friday, in the person of James Hewitt, who was born near the place his life was spent. On the 16th his funeral took place, and the old friends and neighbors gathered around the mortal remains of a true father. The cortege followed the remains to the cemetery, where at the conclusion of the service, the Rev. N. McGregory paid a fine eloquent and well-deserved tribute to his memory, and Mr. Hewitt possessed in a high degree those qualities of mind and heart, and those who knew him best esteemed him most; the kindness of heart, patience and charity was unbounded. May his soul rest in peace and eternal light be his reward forever. The casket was covered with the usual floral O. O. Lodge, Ebenezer, of which deceased was a member, sent a beautiful ritual of that order was conducted at the graveside by the Chaplain of the Lodge.

Since in January Mr. Hewitt was taken down with pneumonia, but not fully recovered, followed by heart trouble, during which he kept his room and owing to the advanced age of 84 years, it couldn't be expected too much, but he was never heard to complain, and during the long time many relatives and strangers visited his sick-room. One son and one daughter are left to mourn his loss, besides many relatives. The remains were laid in Union graveyard, beside his wife and daughter, who predeceased him some years ago. His former Pastor, Rev. R. W. Irvine, Kingston, assisted at the service.

WHERE TERROR REIGNS

Dr. Hose Tells Story of Sarawak, British Borneo—Is at Once a Marvel and a Terror.

The strange land of Sarawak is British Borneo, is spoken of by Dr. Charles Hose, who spent twenty-five years in that country, as at once a marvel and a terror.

The story of Sarawak, which embraces an area of some 40,000 square miles, is bound up with the names of three white rajas. Rajah Sir James Brooke, and his successors.

James Brooke arrived in Sarawak in 1839. He was appealed to by the chiefs of the northwest coast of Borneo for protection against the nobles of the Sultan of Brunei, who originally owned the whole of the territory. Brooke lent his aid to such purpose that he was begged by the population to take over the work of government.

In September, 1841, he was proclaimed Governor and Raja of Sarawak, and his title as an independent sovereign was confirmed by the Sultan of Brunei in 1842. The second Raja of Sarawak, Sir Charles Brooke, was given the G.C.M.G. in 1888, and his position was recognized by the British Government as Raja of Sarawak.

To a London newspaperman Dr. Hose said the natives of Sarawak comprised some half-dozen tribes, and one of his duties was to keep the peace and inculcate a respect for law and order.

"The primitive Bornean can be forgiven for his fear of some evil lurking in the dense jungle," he said. "The tropical forest must be visited to be realized. With its dense mass of trees and undergrowth and foliage and its wealth of wild life, both beneficial and fearsome, it has always struck me as nearer to the early state of the world than any other thing surviving on the face of the globe. It is a land of gorgeous beauty and of primeval terror.

"What effects of fear cannot the weird sounds and unseen dwellers of the creeper-clad forest exercise on simple but primitive mind of the jungle dweller? Among people living in isolated villages, with only jungle paths and rivers as their means of contact with the Government and its officers, it is easy to understand how rumors, especially where fear, superstition, or malice is aroused, spread, and grow as they spread. One of the most remarkable phenomena in native life is the rapidity with which rumor travels.

"Very often in cases of panics, actual or anticipated, Government interference has been necessary to avert a catastrophe.

"A case in point was the occasion of the total eclipse of the sun. . . . I started our plan of preventing a scare two months before by sending information to every chief whom it was possible to reach. Each one was given a strip of rattan, knotted according to the custom prevalent among all natives of the interior, so as to mark the exact number of days that would elapse before the eclipse. These strips they were instructed to carry about with them, removing one each night, and were told to spread the information as widely as possible.

"On the actual date of the eclipse crowds of boats from all parts came down the river, and I arranged that a gun should be fired exactly an hour before the eclipse began. When this report became known the various peoples were affected in various ways. Some of the older people brought kerosene oil in large quantities; they had seen a previous eclipse, but were afraid that on this occasion the sun might go out permanently as it had nearly done so before.

"Others thought that the moon was about to be devoured by a dragon, and devised various charms, spells and incantations to scare the monster away. When the eclipse began there was, terrific excitement, men yelling, women becoming hysterical, gongs being beaten, and incantations being shouted to drive away the dragon. However, everything passed off without trouble. When daylight was once more restored all was well; but what disasters might have occurred had not these precautions been taken it is hard to say.

"In Borneo human sacrifice is the survival of a very old custom. The idea was that if another earth was disturbed by the works of man, she could best be appeased by the sacrifice of men and slaves sufficed until a turbed her. In time these sacrifices became less real in their importance, and men and slaves sufficed until a due course of time domestic animals and chickens, or boads taken in battle, to ensure the fertility of the land and the prosperity of the community, became the symbols of sacrifice."

The cost of building construction work for the year 1928 will total more than $50,000,000, it has been estimated by Toronto officials, who believe that the large increase in the value of buildings for which permits have already been issued indicate that a new mark will be set this year.

Cat Waxed Fat.

Two months ago there was a fire in one of the offices of a Redlands (Cal.) block. When workmen made repairs they did not notice that the office cat had gone into the partition space looking for mice and the cat was sealed up between the walls. First she could be heard in one place in the big building and then in another. Every effort to get her to a place where she could be extracted failed. After two months the cat made its way to the walls of an adjoining bakery. She yowled. Workmen immediately tore away a few boards and out walked Tabby with her head up. She was so fat that it was suspected that the mouse population of Redlands has declined.

TESTING EGGS WITH EYEBALLS.

Artificial Incubation Is as Old as the Pyramids of Egypt.

The system of hatching eggs by artificial means seems so modern that it is surprising to learn that in Egypt artificial incubation is as old as the Pyramids.

Egg-hatching is a trade in Egypt, and the egg-hatchers keep up a high standard of efficiency; with nothing more reliable than their eyeballs as a guide to temperature, they contrive year after year to hatch out a steady ninety-five per cent. of eggs put down.

These egg-hatchers come from the village of Birma, and the art has been passed down from father to son for many generations. Every village of importance has its man from Birma, who does the hatching for the district.

The incubator is a dome-shaped building, built of mud brick, with a hole at the top. It is about five yards in diameter, and divided into six small rooms with a small passage running down the centre. Each compartment has two platforms made of mud, big enough to hold 500 eggs and encircled by a narrow and open trough in which chaff, the sole means of heating, is burnt. To prevent accidents, the hatcher and his assistant live and sleep in the hut for twenty-four days.

The eggs having been placed on the platforms, the top of the hut is closed, the troughs are filled with chapped barley or wheat straw, and the small fires are allowed to smoulder. For five days the top is kept closed, but the hatcher and his assistant are busy all the time testing the heat by placing the eggs against their eyeballs.

At the end of five days the top is opened, and the fires are damped down gradually until the fourteenth day, when the natural heat from the eggs is sufficient to keep the temperature at the right point. The chickens hatch out on the twenty-first day.

LONELY LABRADOR.

Natural Resources of This Country is Almost Limitless.

What is this strange country like? An Old British sea-dog described it graphically as follows: "God made the world in five days, Lancador on the sixth, and spent the seventh throwing stones at it."

But this lonely land, with its broken coastline, has great possibilities. It has vast tracts of timber, which will probably play a big part in the saving of the pulpwood famine some experts are predicting, and valuable fisheries. Then, there is a cataract on the Hamilton river as large as Niagara, capable of producing over 4,000,000 horsepower.

The hydro-electric energy that could be generated from Labrador's natural resources is indeed almost limitless, and this lonely land also possesses great fields of mineral ore, yielding sixty per cent. of iron. These two things together suggest that Labrador may one day be one of the great steel-producing areas of the world.

At present, of course, transport difficulties prevent the country being developed. One day, perhaps, these will be overcome. A railway running through Labrador would help not only to open up this great land, with its untapped resources, but would materially shorten the sea voyage across the Atlantic.

But the country isn't likely to materialize just yet.

STAMPS ENRICH COLLECTORS.

Some Yield Profit of Six Thousand Per Cent.

A profit of six thousand per cent. on a single specimen has been made by some collectors as the result of a recent rise in the price of postage stamps.

These phenomenal increases in value are often due to the sudden withdrawal, without notice, of a stamp after a short period of issue, which makes it very scarce.

A striking example is the ten-shilling Malta, issued in 1919, which is now worth $150 or more. Others are the Cyprus ten-shilling and twenty-shilling stamps issued in 1923, which are difficult to buy now for $45 and $100 respectively.

A special tercentenary set of stamps was issued in 1923 for St. Kitts and Nevis. It contained the two values from 1-2d. to £1 and together cost 1923 £1 10s. To-day the set fetches £100.

Underground Farm.

One of the strangest farms in the world is the great subterranean acreage under New York, where huge crops of mushrooms are raised. The mushrooms thrive without daylight, Mr. Forrest Bell, who owns the farm, conceived the idea of cultivating the delicacy in an abandoned cement mine.

A temperature of from forty-seven to fifty-one degrees is maintained throughout the year in this forty-acre underground farm. The mushroom farmer sees the sun and little light of any kind is used. The plan has proved to be a far greater success than was anticipated.

BIOGRAPHY OF DUMAS

Author Wrote Fast and Spent Money Fast — Life for Him Was a Magnificent Adventure

Speed at writing was one of the characteristics of Dumas, according to his latest biographer, M. J. Lucas-Dubreton, in his work "La Vie d'Alexandre Dumas Pere."

The famous story-teller was born at Villers-Cotterets in 1802, and there he passed his childhood and youth. Like all Frenchmen, his ambition was to go to Paris, and, having one day won ninety francs at billiards, he set off for the capital, where he arrived with forty francs in his pocket. He found work at a lawyer's clerk. It was to drama that he first turned his attention, after seeing Kemble and a troupe of English actors play Shakespeare.

"Henry III." was his first successful play, but during him from starvation, for he had not enough money to buy a coat. To attend the opening performance and made one out of cardboard. The whole of his career was a great adventure, earning money one day, opulent the next. He said once that the only wise thing he ever did with his money was to pay for his meals a whole year in advance—but the restaurant keeper failed, so he would tell his friends.

Life for him was a magnificent spectacle, in which he watched himself and his friends all around him play their parts. Wherever there was a distribution—Dumas was on the spot, in picturesque costume, his breast covered with medals which he had bought, exchanged and obtained, but invariably having a good time in the tradition of '93, while a church decoration was being carried off and the confusion and the excited into the Seine. Museum, where he sold a cabinet, behold, the sword that had belonged to Francis I., and the arquebus that Charles IX. had used.

"The Three Musketeers," "The Count of Monte Cristo," "Twenty Years After," "The Mohicans of Paris," "The Chevalier de Maison Rouge" flowed from his rapid pen. He turned out nine books in a year than the forty members of the French Academy put together, as he told the Academy who in that body showed little discomfort to elect this one of its members. He lived through all the sad stories of his characters, stopping suddenly in his writing to shout or faugh as his hero did or said something clever. One morning his son found him in tears—he had just killed the lovable Porthos. He would write three or four novels at a time, to say nothing of articles, using blue paper for his romances, and pink for his articles, yellow for plays, with special pens to match each mood.

Dumas was prevailed upon to dramatize "The Three Musketeers." At one of the rehearsals he noticed the fireman wander away from the wings.

"Fetch that fireman back!" he shouted. "Where did you walk away?"

"I did not feel it quite so interesting," replied the fireman.

Dumas stepped on the carpet, rushed into the manager's office, and tore up the offending scene. He took off his coat and collar, sharpened his pen and paper. Half an hour later he stalked back on to the stage to the waiting company with the scene entirely rewritten.

His own creation of Monte Cristo fascinated Dumas, and he set out to live the part, having a palace built for himself at St. Germain, where he held wonderful receptions. Poor and rich were received with the same cordiality, but of foreigners he was most pleased to meet English people, in order, as he used to say, to pay their knowledge of his debt of gratitude to Shakespeare and Sir Walter Scott. However, as fast as he earned he squandered his magnificent palace had to be sold for much less than it cost. Many years followed, brightened by occasional periods of prosperity, until, after all his travels and follies, he came to rest peacefully in the house of his son at Puys, in 1870.

2,000-Year-Old Dolls.

Dolls!—the doll at all toys. That children loved dolls thousands of years ago is proved by the many figures in the tombs buried with little dolls.

There are dolls now in museums probably between 2,000 and 3,000 years old, of ivory, terra-cotta, wood, and rag. Scarcely traces of hair have been very beautiful.

In a glass case in the British Museum is a very old rag doll, once the cherished possession of a little girl in ancient Egypt. The doll is about thirty inches long, and the hair of which she was made was fallen into holes, showing the stuffing inside. The doll was 3,000 years old when Christ was born.

Capacity of Thought.

Dr. Ralph Waldo Gerard, assistant professor of physiology in the University of Chicago, is engaged in experiments to show that thought is a more chemical process.

Dr. Gerard works with a thermopile, an apparatus so delicate that it can detect one-millionth part of one-millionth of an ampere of electricity.

His theory is that all nerve stimulation causes chemical reactions which produce heat. Minute electric shocks are used to stimulate artificially the nerve fibres, bringing about chemical reactions which in turn produce heat. This heat is converted into electricity and measured.

Cables to Cut Rocks.

A long steel cable, drawn at high speed and fed continually with wet sand, cuts through solid rock in a new type of quarry saw. The grains of sand, dragged across the rock face, serve as abrasives to groove it at a rate hitherto unknown.

Adornment of Ladies.

Four million pounds a week is spent on the adornment of the women of Britain, according to one expert.

CLEVERNESS OF BIRDS.

Have Own Methods for the Healing of Wounds.

When Mr. Bear receives a wound he immediately ambles off to his favorite mud wallow, rolls, and covers the wound with fresh mud. When a bird receives an injury, he soars immediately gets busy and keeps the wound cleansed.

A naturalist who makes a special study of birds gives the information that certain birds also have methods peculiar to themselves for the healing of wounds.

He writes:

"When a big shoot takes place there are always numbers of wounded birds left in the woods and fields. Many of these are collected by gamekeepers, but there are some that escape.

"These cripples show a remarkable spirit, and it is really surprising how they carry on. When one foot or leg is shot away the bird soon manages to hop about on the remaining leg. If a wing is broken it is a more serious matter, for there is little chance of it escaping from its many enemies; but I have known instances of birds with broken wings managing to survive until they were able to fly again. One was a kestrel, and for a month this plucky bird rested on the ground, picking up trifles there, until eventually I saw it flying as well as ever.

"If a bird breaks its leg it will sometimes help nature. In fact, it becomes its own doctor, and mud and hair are plastered round the broken leg. Snipe have been known to recover in this way. A golden eagle was recently seen flying on a Scottish moor with a large iron trap attached to one leg. Even with this encumbrance it managed to survive.

"When birds are trapped they struggle madly for some time, but the more intelligent ones, finding that this does not help them to escape, examine their surroundings. I once saw a falcon captured by a strong noose. When it found that struggling did not free it, the bird stood still, carefully examined the string from every angle, then calmly proceeded to untie the knot with its beak. It was so successful that a few minutes later I saw it walk away from the trap and escape.

"I have known a wounded partridge to escape the guns during the whole season. This bird could not fly, but it lived on with the covey, always joining it again when it settled after a flight. The covey itself was thinned down from fifteen birds to four, and when the close time came at the end of the winter, this bird was one of them. Whenever this covey was flushed the wounded partridge squatted low on the ground, and it was sheer luck that in every instance the sportsmen and dogs passed it by."

SAVED BY FLOWER.

Creeping Plant Saves Cliffs From Falling Into Sea.

The presence of creeping plant with yellow and red flowers admired by visitors to Bournemouth, England, is helping the cliffs from falling into the sea.

Bournemouth is one of the many places in England where cliffs are in serious problem. While the Borough engineer was in Devonshire a few years ago he saw that the cliffs there were not so bad as he had seen before, and noticing how it faced the cliff face together. He went back to the Bournemouth Parks Department.

Three roots were planted in the "patches of peat" in the crumbling sandstone along the front, and now cover the coast and are saving the cliff in dozens of places where they fatly might have endangered property.

The plant is really a foreign one found in South Africa, and its scientific name is mesembryanthemum. Luckily it flourishes in the dry, salt-sprayed, sandy cliffs and rows with vigor. A mile a few inches long covers an area two yards square in a single summer.

Jobs Boys Like Best.

What occupation has the most fascination for boys of to-day? Most "human" boys pass through a stage when they aspire to be hickwyman, pirates, or somebody famous, but the fills phase does not last long. Older boys prefer to "go on" to have a more practicable ambition.

The head masters of twelve schools in England have compiled a list of the 850 boys, and it was found that the most popular career is that of the engineer, for 141 of these boys have vows. The building trade was next with 141, and engineering third with 140, and then came the liberal work and 62 of professional it.

Other popular occupations were those of sculptor, ship's steward, manageleder, rancher, window-cleaner, jockey, priest, hotel boots, and chimney-sweep.

Science and Crime.

The police authorities of Budapest have recently organized a new motor-car station, embracing travelling laboratories completely equipped with cinematograph cameras, a dark room, chemical apparatus, finger-print searchlights, gas masks, long collapsible ladders, and every other device known to modern police investigation.

The cars are large and swift, and in them doctors, scientists, and detectives will dash to the scene of an outrage the moment it is reported.

Electric Shocks for Flies.

The day of the fly-swatter is past. A patent has been taken out for a device for killing flies by electricity. Each resembles of two hane-wire solenoids. Flies and other animals are said to be attracted by an electric lamp inside the case, beneath which is a trap baited with something that appeals to their appetites.

They are then either electrocuted by coming into contact with the uncoiled wire or stunned so that they fall into the trap, from which they cannot escape.

ANOTHER USE FOR X-RAY

Japanese Find a Way of Distinguishing Between Cultured and Natural Pearls.

You may have longed for a simple test to determine the freshness of your breakfast egg without having to delve into its innermost secrets. Your longings have been stight, writes Lewis Radcliffe, United States Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries, in the Washington Star, as compared with the longings of those who have invested large sums in pearls and who wish to know definitely whether they were natural (sometimes called genuine) pearls or culture pearls, or possibly only imitation pearls. You will want to do a bit of investigating before investing, as there is a very wide difference in the value of these classes.

True pearls derive their origin from the accidental introduction or an irritating foreign substance into certain cell tissues of the pearl oyster or other pearl-bearing mollusc. This foreign substance — parasitic worm, water-mite, grain of sand — which finds its way by accident into the tissues of the oyster becomes the nucleus of a natural pearl, the most prized and most valuable of the three classes. The cells of the oyster proceed at once to imprison the foreign substance, surrounding it with layer upon layer of nacreous material of the same iridescent character as the inside shell of the oyster.

Since the discovery of the origin and growth of natural pearls man has been striving to produce these results by artificial means—that is, to grow culture pearls. Simple as the process may seem, it was not until 1894 that Kokichi Mikimoto, in Japan, developed a satisfactory method of inducing the development of culture pearls. The success of his venture is attested to by the fact that he was able to produce an annual output valued at $500,000 in 1921.

Imitation pearls are a synthetic product manufactured in large quantities from pearl essence—a product derived from fish scales. Formerly the sources of supply was a small European minnow, the iridescent efflux being discovered by accident by Jaquin, a French rosary maker, about 1656. Jaquin noted that the water in which fish had been washed contained a highly lustrous substance which when concentrated and applied to small globes of alabaster produced remarkably good imitations of pearls.

Experiments with the scales of native American fishes resulted in the development of a similar new industry. Some two million pounds of the scales of such fishes as our north Atlantic shad, herring and alewife are used annually. The uses for fish-scales essence are constantly increasing and the cost of producing excellent imitation pearls is decreasing. Large chests of celluloid are also given a coating of imitation mother-of-pearl are used as backs for brushes and many other toilet articles.

As between culture pearls and natural pearls the problem of differentiation is a most difficult one. Yet, because of the difference in sales value, one buying a natural pearl wishes to be certain that he is getting what he is paying for. In question of form and lustrous beauty there is practically no material difference. When the culture pearls began appearing in considerable quantities in France and the courts concluded that culture pearls possessed all the essential characteristics of real pearls and their quality could not be questioned.

Since 1923 a small group of Japanese investigators acting on the suggestion of Prof. Nakamura have been studying the problem and have recently published the results of these investigations in the "Proceedings of the Imperial Academy" of Tokio, Japan.

By the use of the X-rays they were able to distinguish between culture pearls and natural pearls. In the former a perfectly spherical nucleus of shell is introduced into the oyster and around this the oyster builds the pearl. An examination of natural pearls, of culture pearls and of the nuclei used in culture pearls by the expert in X-ray analysis, and a comparison of the patterns produced the different orientations of the primary X-rays, revealed valid differences between the two classes of pearls. It will undoubtedly be comparatively easy to know that a method of differentiation has been evolved.

High Cost of Brides.

The high price of brides is beginning to worry young and marriageable men in the East.

A mass meeting held in Damascus recently elected a committee to seek a modification of the custom regulating the man who would marry to pay over a handsome sum of money to the father of the girl of his choice. The Western custom is more to the liking of the Eastern swain.

The men working for the reform say that they are not impelled by selfish motives, but are actuated by the welfare of the state; marriages they say are on the decrease owing to the greed of a people who have been raising prices in the marriage markets.

Great Help To Young Mothers

Baby's Own Tablets Have Many Uses and Are Absolutely Harmless.

To have in the house a simple, harmless remedy for the minor ills of babies and little children is a great boon to young mothers, and this is exactly why Baby's Own Tablets have been found in thousands of households. The Tablets regulate the stomach and bowels, break up colds and simple fevers, allay the irritation of cutting teeth, yet they have no drug taste and the children like them. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Ruthven Crummiller, Ruthven, Ont., writes:—"Kindly send me your little book on the Care of the Baby. I have two children, one four years of age and the other a year and a half. Both are in excellent health and the only medicine they have had is Baby's Own Tablets. I always keep the Tablets in the house and am happy to recommend them to other mothers." Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 35 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MECHANICAL VIOLIN

Frenchman's Invention Which Brings "Singing Waves" to Every Man's House.

A violin playing alone, standing in a corner with no one near it and yet producing Beethoven's "Romance in G," is one of the two remarkable new musical instruments which have recently been presented in Paris. The other is a portable condenser which allows one to operate and speak with the "singing waves" from the air and turns them into any tune you wish, says a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor.

The "mechanical violin" has been made before, but this one constructed by Gabriel Boureau and Emile Aubry goes much further than the "penny-in-the-slot" player-violins of the past. The two men are said to have worked on the idea some fifteen years.

Contrary to the usual action of bow and violin, in this case the bow is constant while the violin turns on its axis, held at the two ends, and moves against the bow. Small rubber keys arranged above the fingering part of the violin press down at the right time. Pizzicati, vibrati, and all the other effects obtained when human hands are playing the violin are obtained from this new instrument, the basis of which is "violinola."

The violinista follows the commands of a perforated paper roll similar to that used in the player-piano. Indeed, through proper synchronization, two of these violinistas can be played at once, or a violinista with player-piano accompaniment.

The other new instrument which brings the "singing waves" to one man's house—if he so desires—and allows him to get out of them real music is the work of another French inventor, Rene Bertrand.

Every radio amateur keenly interested in his set had known long before Prof. Theremin interested the public by tracing the latter's hand ward or away from the lamps gave musical tones. Prof. Theremin went just a step further and combined these noises and in producing harmonies.

M. Bertrand has now gone still a step along this same line, apparently in advance of Prof. Theremin. M. Bertrand has perfected an instrument which a person can play with even the smallest knowledge of music. It takes the form of a variable condenser, the dial of which is graduated with notes of the musical scale running to five octaves. The shape of the box is that of a half circle, with a depth of about six inches. A moving arm, pivoting from the center and acting as a movable radius, can be swung with the left hand back and forth across the face of the arc. The position of this arm indicates a tone.

The zigzag diagram can actually be drawn on the face of the dial, so that the novice simply by moving the arm in accordance with the lines will find he has played from the air a certain melody.

Prof. Theremin put the radio frequency waves to the audible range, through a detector, making them audio-frequency; M. Bertrand, however, retains the audible vibrations directly. The size and construction of the condenser can be varied to obtain changes in sonority and timbre. In this regard M. Bertrand has experimented extensively in the experiments of Prof. Theremin. A saxophone and hunting horn, for instance, can be imitated by M. Bertrand with his instruments to degree of startling reality.

A music critic writing in l'Illustration states that there are untold possibilities ahead for orchestral composers writing for a number of such instruments being played together.

The Insult.

A man was driving a big car at a fast speed along a wide road. A new car of very small size appeared alongside, as it trying to pass him.

The driver of the big car peered. He wouldn't let a small car pass him, even a new one. He went faster still—slatz—and left the little one behind—but still the small car kept beside him.

Suddenly the driver of the small car opened his window and shouted, "Do you know anything about these cars?"

"Why?" answered the man.

"Because I can't shift the thing into top gear!"

New Wonder Wood.

There is a new plastic wood that can be moulded to any required form and will adhere to anything, the surface of wood, metal, or any other material. It dries rapidly and then adheres firmly, can be worked with ordinary wood-working tools, will take nails and screws, and paint, varnish, and French polish. In fact, it behaves like ordinary wood, except that it will not warp, crack, blister, or peel.

Lac Beauvert and a group of cottages at Jasper Park Lodge

Extensions at Jasper Park Lodge

A golf club house, three new bungalows, one of which is to accommodate guests while their room with a private staff of servants, and extensions to the trail camps, comprise the spring program of building at Jasper Park Lodge, the tourist headquarters of Canada's famous Rocky Mountain Park. Jasper National Park, 5,300 square miles in area, is the largest national park in America. The extensions are required to provide for the heaviest tourist traffic recorded for years, as it is indicated by the number of enquiries and requests for reservations reaching the offices of the Canadian National Railways in Canada and the United States.

The golf club house, marks the finishing touch of the Jasper Park golf course, acclaimed by travelers and players alike to rank with the most spectacular and sporting in the world. The club house will face up the first and eighteenth fairways, offering splendid views of Mount Tekarra and the Whistler range. On this course in 1927 over 9,000 rounds were played.

The added provisions being made for trail riders include a new chalet at Lake Kinney on the way to Berg Lake behind Mount Robson. Lake Kinney lies in the shadow of this "Monarch of the Canadian Rockies." Likewise the camps at Shovel Pass and Maligne and Medicine lakes are being extended.

During the past season approximately 10,000 guests were cared for at Jasper Park Lodge. Many other were not able to secure accommodation. This is a difficulty, however, which should not be encountered during the coming summer, for in addition to the enlargement of the Lodge, a thoroughly modern hotel is being built in the village three miles away. It is anticipated that this will be ready for the tourist season which commences during the latter part of May. Jasper Park Lodge is to be visited by members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association after their 1928 convention at Edmonton.

SCANTY CLOTHING.

Women's Dresses Always Shrink After Great Wars.

The theory that women always dress scantily in the years following great wars is advanced by the Hon. John Fortescue, K.C.V.O., the historian, who was for nerly the King's librarian at Windsor Castle.

"If history is to be the rule," writes Sir John in the London News, "that when men take to shedding blood on large scale, women take to the unshed raiment." The author then proceeds learnedly and at length, to support this theory by tracing the history of women's styles from the time of the Norman conquest. He emphasizes particularly the Binay and abbreviated clothes which became fashionable after the French revolution and the world war. Incidentally, he cites the popular evening "chemise frock" from the Egypt of at least 2,000 years ago—presumably it was designed following some heavy fighting around the Pyramids.

The author concludes by predicting the return of long skirts. "I hope I may yet live," he says fervently, "to see again graceful, flowing draperies in evening dresses, setting forth the beauty of the human form divine, and what is no less important, concealing the defects of the imperfect."

THE SAMSON SISTERS.

Two Japanese Girls Refused to Cut Their Tresses.

When the bobbed hair fashion first arrived in a number of employers threatened to dismiss girls who had adopted the new "fad," but most of them ignored the warning. Some went so far as to have their hair cut in defiance.

Two Japanese girls, the Sisters Fujima, were not among the rebels; indeed, throughout the reign of bob and shingle they have refused to cut their tresses, since their livelihood depends on their "crowning glory." Now that long hair appears likely to come into its own, they will be in the fashion again.

One of the tricks of the sisters is to suspend themselves by their hair and balance a table between them, supporting it with their feet and eating a meal whilst hanging in mid-air.

The black hair of the Japanese has remarkable strength, but one of the girls points out that others could perform the trick if they started training the hair early enough in life. It would not be advisable for anyone to attempt such a thing at once, but with a systematic course of training the hair would gradually gain such strength that it also become the strongest part of the body.

"Woman" Billiards Champion.

For years Frances Anderson, of Los Angeles, was regarded as the world's champion woman billiards player. No one doubted her claim, and Anderson travelled and gave exhibitions in many cities.

When this billiards champion was dead in a hotel a short time ago, a letter was found saying: "Don't let the world into my secret." Frances Anderson was a man!

A New "Strong-Room."

Blasted out of solid rock, a new "strong room" covering an area of two and-a half acres has been constructed 150 feet below the Bank of France, in Paris. The vault occupied 1,250 men for three years, working night and day.

BEWARE OF TYPHOID FEVER

At this particular time of the year when many city people are preparing to move to summer resort, the moment is opportune to recall a warning many times issued by the statistical bureau of the Metropolitan Life: "Beware of Typhoid Fever!"

It is a well recognized fact that every summer, and especially during the vacation period, young boys and girls spending their time in country places, contract typhoid fever, and numerous deaths are reported. There is no reason for such a happening, as the cause of typhoid are well known and the modes of prevention are easily available. The main causes of typhoid are found in water and in milk.

Typhoid germs in water —The contents of poorly constituted privy vaults and sewers, and filthy substances left on the ground, drain into water systems and may infect them with typhoid fever germs. These germs may be taken into the body with drinking water or with water used in preparing uncooked foods.

Typhoid germs in milk —Typhoid fever germs often get into milk through carelessness or lack of cleanliness upon the part of those who handle it. Flies sometimes infect it when it is left uncovered. By boiling milk during thirty minutes, the typhoid germs are killed." When milk has been treated in this manner, keep it covered in a cool place.

The causes of typhoid being thus established, it is an easy matter to guard against the disease.

It is a wise precaution to protect oneself against typhoid by vaccination. Typhoid vaccine is made with killed typhoid germs. This vaccine is injected under the skin in the upper part of the arm, in three doses, usually at weekly intervals. A slight redness soon appears at the point of injection, but disappears in a few days. In some cases a slight headache and a little feeling follows, lasting about a day. In very rare cases, the signs may extend over several days, but the vaccination has proven to be harmless.

HEALS ECZEMA IN 7 DAYS OR LESS

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by pharmacists at trifling cost, that will do more towards helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin diseases than anything you ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy action in open sores and wounds, but boils, abcesses and ulcers that are discharging are almost always relieved and quickly healed.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of eczema is instantly stopped; the unsightly dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barbers' itch, salt rheum and other irritating and unsightly skin troubles.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil in the original bottle at any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is next to impossible. Wallace's Drug Store can supply you at any time.

CRIES ENLIVEN STREETS

Almost as Much Crying in Modern London as In the Days of Queen Elizabeth.

In London now there are a host of many kinds cryin their wares in the gutter and plying their trades in the street, as there were in the days of good Queen Bess, even as can hardly be abroad without seeing such quaint gay, colorful sights and hear such inanship as might have been in the time when half the town's business was done in the streets, says a writer in the London News and Westminster Gazette.

"Here is a man with magic flowers" unfolding in a glass of water, here a vendor of joss-sticks with a magic smouldering on his tray; there is a nimble fellow with toys that rise and jump as nimbly as himself, and there is a man with a pair of tame jackdaws which will perch on your nose for a penny. There is an old man who peddles rock-salt in a child's pram, and a young one who sells country flowers in suburban side streets from an old Ford. If your fancy is for a live lobster, a tortoise or a puppy-dog, bitter oranges or branches of eucalyptus, there are walking sticks or shaving sticks to squeak, you will find them all in the curbstone market.

For entertainment, you have much in any street of Central London; the ballad singers, the clowns and the tumblers still entertain a pleasant throng as their forefathers did—though now it is rare two by two outside the theatre. Even the quack still does business with his verses on the patent medicine, the embankment, and the barrel-organ makers sets out his stall with a Kingsway), making his strip of pavement look like the corner of a Persian bazaar; there is a one-legged girl, who sits on a camp stool playing little pictures, and a nimble squats cross-legged on the pavement working big ones, very fast, or Italian, with bright colored wools, and knife-grinders and many others besides.

"Despite all the wide street and brand new concrete of our great London, her citizens still take their way among workers and chatter just as they did when the crowd shouted his trade from the leaden cart and "cherry ripe" was cried in the streets."

PEERAGE CLAIM MYSTERY.

Twenty Years In the Lists of the House of Lords.

An air of mystery appears to envelope a peerage claim of which the duration "Airth (Earldom)" has appeared in successive House of Lords official lists of "claims of dignity pending," and as the lists are published four or five times a year the words "Airth (Earldom)" have been printed between eighty and hundred times.

Claims to earldoms in abeyance are few, those in respect of baronies being much more common.

The Airth peerage has been in abeyance for about two hundred years.

A committee of the House of Lords recently suggested that, except in cases of claims already depending, claims should be considered in respect of peerages which had been in abeyance for more than one hundred years.

Scientifically Designed Balloon Tire Tread

The Firestone tread was not designed with large, massive projections for appearance or to make plausible sales arguments. On the contrary, the projections of the cross-and-square tread are small and the rider strips narrow, permitting the tread to yield to irregularities and cling to the road, giving the greatest non-skid surface.

By means of the exclusive Firestone Gum-Dipping process every fibre of every cord is saturated and insulated with rubber, to withstand the extra flexing of the Firestone tread.

A ROAD TO THE SEA

"A HINT TO TOURISTS"

It is a fine morning. Let us go and look at the Mediterranean.

According to the map the way runs straight down to the sea. If conventional and colourings do not lie, there ought to be a point where you will suddenly throttle off, stamp on the brake, and, shading your eyes with one hand and leaning on the carrier with the other, gaze at the wine-dark sea. There may even be one of those decorative umbrella-shaped trees, which grow on every poster to frame the view.

The roadmender at the turn below Aifaro is doing his best for his country. There is a dump of large round pebbles hard by, and he is conveying them, a shovelful at a time, to those spots which in his judgment are most in need of repairs. He is a small, dark man in rusty black, like a conventional elder of the kirk who has appropriated the cast-off suit of a bandit and made his own shoes out of old rope, and he works with intense application and a serious air. Having deposited a six-inch layer of stones on a selected area, he surveys it doubtfully, as if he surveys it doubtfully, as if wondering whether there may not after all be some slight inequalities here and there. He may even give some projecting chunk of rock a hearty clout with his shovel as a finishing touch. At this point a car, unmercifully driven by Domitian in modern costume, swings into sight round the bend. Domitian sees the stones, grits his teeth, changes gear as if he were wringing the neck of a refractory slave, thrusts his nose into the windscreen, and puts his foot hard down. Away fly the stones in all directions, and Domitian disappears up the hill in a cloud of dust, leaving two ruts where the road has been skinned bare. The roadmender promptly sets about filling them up with more stones. You turn the corner, but there is no Mediterranean—nothing but a straight stretch of red road strewn with pink pebbles and bordered with groves of oaks. Domitian's dust still hangs over it.

At the next corner you are overtaken by a Ford carrying Julius Caesar and his fortunes. Caesar's nose is as irritating and his cheek-bones as prominent as we have been led to believe, and his dignity is not impaired by the fact that he is wearing a bottle-green coat (with circumstantial evidence of running repairs on the back), a deer-stalker hat, and a hard felt hat. His fortunes consist of a kitchen table up-ended in the back seat, a crate of poultry, and a bundle of rugs. Calpurnia, who sits bolt upright in front, has on a large carboy covered with wicker on her knee. It mercifully prevents her from seeing that Caesar has had to cut in between you and the ox-wagon you are meeting. He judges the distance to a hair's breadth, and the Ford staggers out of sight to a chorus of iguanas from the poultry. Round the next bend but two you come on him again. He lies low—beneath the back axle, in fact—and Calpurnia addresses recriminatory phrases to the crown of his hat, which is now her only point of contact with him, and simultaneously proffers him bits of rope. Still no Mediterranean.

Several corners pass, each with its generous layer of stones. There is a quarry, a hedge, another quarry, but no sign of the sea—nothing but the stony road and the trees. The state of the road fills your mind as buttercups fill a garden, to the exclusion of everything worth having. You become aware of evil instincts creeping back. With each crashing bump as your motor-cycle leaps like a chamois from rock to rock, with each protesting bayonet from the engine as you throttle off for the worst obstacles, your disposition becomes meaner, more fit for spoils and strategems, more Iago-like. If you were condemned to ride the entire length of the peninsula you would arrive at Tarentum a very Beelzebub. Now you understand why brigandage and bad roads are so closely associated. Dante and Tamerlane are fine fellows, no doubt, but they will not fill up a single pot-hole; Italy might exchange a troop of Garibaldis for a steam-roller and do very well out of the bargain.

As you pass the second quarry the noses of a pair of cream-coloured oxen emerge from it. Glancing aside for a moment, you see a gaudy perspective of horns, yokes, and cream-coloured backs reaching into the bowels of the quarry. At the far end is a monstrous rock, from the summit of which a master of ceremonies is addressing impolite observations to some unseen person. Even as you swerve to dodge the leaders Julius Caesar passes you again. He is now dusty and crestfallen, you are glad to see. Your spirits are lightened when the hat is pulled right down to the aquiline nose. The Ford now has a decided list to starboard, and this seems to rankle in Calpurnia's mind, for she winds up a spirited oration by giving her lord a sound cuff, which he receives without protest.

Half a dozen more corners, and you come to a second village. There are a score of houses covered with dirty white plaster, a wine shop in dirty pink plaster, and a church, but not a living soul. A goat is tethered outside the wine shop, but it only stares unsympathantly at the motor-cycle. Still no Mediterranean. Now you are on the outskirts of the village, and the downgrade ceases. Boulders, ridges of rock, and acres of coarse sand give way to frightful paving. The two blocks are the same size at the same angle. An ancient motor-bus is churning its way, with quivering sides and screaming gears, up the hill. On the side-walk Cato, holding up the traditional bunch of figs, is sternly pointing out their defects to Cassius, who seems to have not improved since he took up fruit-hawking. At the station restaurant Petruchio, in full dress with top-hat, is hectoring a cowed Katherine over a plate of macaroni and hieroglyphics. In the next street Dogberry and Verges, in dazzling uniform, are cross-examining a small boy, to the breathless interest of a crowd, and the first, second, and third citizens are interposing the usual fatuous comments. This is Savona.

So you come to the Mediterranean at last. It consists at this point of a dirty dock containing opaque water, bits of straw and cigarette ends, and is entirely enclosed by high stone walls. —W. G.

THE NAPANEE BEAVER

JOHANNESBURG.

One of the Healthiest Cities In the World.

In a recent issue of an English paper a writer stated that "as Johannesburg is 4,000 feet above sea level it is rarely too hot. The nights in particular are always cool. Yet Johannesburg is not healthy. Like Cairo, Johannesburg has not enough rain."

To a correspondent of Tit-Bits, the Medical Officer of Health of Johannesburg, said: "Instead of being 4,000 feet above sea-level, the mean altitude of Johannesburg is 5,850 feet. It is, however, correct to say that it is rarely too hot and nights in particular are always cool in Johannesburg. But it is incorrect to say, 'Yet Johannesburg is not healthy.' On the contrary, Johannesburg ranks as one of the healthiest cities, not only in Africa, but in the world. This fact is readily substantiated by the following figures of the death-rate of Johannesburg as compared with other large cities for 1924: Amsterdam, 8.9 per thousand; Johannesburg, 9.31; Antwerp, 10.2; Stockholm, 10.9, Chicago, 11.2; New York, 11.8; Greater London, 12.0; Copenhagen, 12.1; '105 Great Towns of England,' 12.3; Paris, 14.2.

"It is stated that 'like Cairo, Johannesburg has not enough rain.' I do not know what the average rainfall of Cairo is, but I do know what the average rainfall for England (Greenwich observation) is. The official figure are: England, 24.0 in. per annum; Johannesburg, 30.37 in. per annum. It is, therefore, a fact that on the average 6.37 in. more rain falls in Johannesburg per annum than in England (Greenwich)."

FOSTER'S WIT.

Eighty-Year-Old Senator Noted for Sharp Repartee.

Sir George Foster, now over eighty, has been called the wittiest man in Canadian public life. His sharp repartee is of the sort one associates rather with English politics than with Canadian or American debate. He can hurt.

In November, 1926, he addressed a meeting of young people assembled in Massey Hall, Toronto, to protest against Hon. G. H. Ferguson's Government control legislation. A belligerent soul heckled him. Once, twice, three times this man shouted: "What about bootlegging?"

The third time this hoarse bellow sounded, Sir George stepped to the edge of the platform, glared at the man, and replied;

"What is it you want to know about your trade?"

If there was a reply, it was lost in the great gale of laughter that filled the hall. At that same meeting, Sir George referred to Premier Ferguson as "the sole liquor proprietor and bartender in the province."

When it was proposed to clip the wings of the Senate, Senators objected. During a debate Senator George Lynch - Staunton of Hamilton, who proposed that the membership of the House of Commons be cut, suddenly thumped a copy of Hansard. "And I venture to say," he declared, "that in all these pages there is not one new idea." He went further. If anyone would find one brand new idea in the records of Commons debate, he said he would eat the book.

"Don't," said Sir George Foster, "You would have wind on your stomach."

LIVING TOO FAST.

Strain of Modern Life and Its Effect on Health.

Striking confirmation of the warning concerning the strain of modern life and its effect on health, which was expressed by Dr. J. Strickland Goodall in a lecture on the growth of heart disease, was given to a reporter by Capt. Robert Whitney, secretary of the National Hospital for Disease of the Heart, Marylebone, London, England, claimed to be the only hospital in the world devoted exclusively to the study and care of heart troubles. He said:

Deaths have steadily increased in London as the result of the growing strain of life in the city. Women suffer from this strain as much as men, but the great tragedy with women is that many of them refuse to recognize the symptoms, and carry on with their work until it is too late.

London is living at a far greater pace than it used to, and the pursuit of pleasure by both men and women is becoming more hectic. Thousands of Londoners rush through their meals—especially luncheon—and go without their proper allowance of sleep. Is it any wonder that their hearts fall under the strain?

The Canadian Post Office.

The Canadian Post Office delivers over 600,000,000 letters, 350,000,000 newspapers, 400,000,000 circulars, and 40,000,000 parcels annually in Canada, according to a report from the Department. This delivery is made through about 12,440 post offices, and over 200,000 rural mail boxes extending over an area of nearly 3,700,000 square miles.

B. C. Mineral Production.

With the exception of Ontario, British Columbia has a mineral production practically as great as all the rest of Canada put together, according to a provincial report. In 1927 a record volume of ore was treated, totalling 5,000,000 tons and the value of the mineral production was $62,142,340.

Greater London.

The population of Greater London is always growing; in 1926 it was 7,805,870, compared with 6,581,402 in 1901. The administrative county, on the other hand, remains nearly stationary, about 4,600,000.

Silver In Circulation.

There is about $5,000,000 in silver in circulation or in the banks in Britain.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Chippy was regarded as the town simpleton, but occasionally he showed a disconcerting gift of repartee. "What part do you perform in a great drama of life?" a visitor asked him once. "I mind my own business?"

Fresh Supplies in Demand—Wherever Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has been introduced increased supplies have been ordered, showing that wherever it goes this excellent Oil impresses its power on the people. No matter in what latitude it may be found its potency is never impaired. It is put up in most portable shape in bottles and can be carried without fear of breakage.

Old Motorist—"How does your new car run?"

New Motorist—"Oh! in and out."

Old Motorist—"What do you mean by in and out?"

New Motorist—"Well, it runs out of petrol and into everything."

The Friend of All Sufferers. — Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is a valuable remedy to all those who suffer pain. It holds out hope to everyone and realizes the stillsuffering everywhere. It is a liniment that has the blessing of heal a continent. It is on sale everywhere and can be found wherever enquired for.

"What kind of boys go to heaven?" asked the Sunday School superintendent.

"Dead boys!" cried the youngest member of the infant class.

Awful Asthma Attacks. Is there a member of your family who is in the power of this distressing trouble? No one you can render him will equal the bringing to his attention of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. This remarkable remedy rests its reputation upon what it has done for others. It has a truly wonderful record, covering years and years of success in almost every part of this continent, and even beyond the seas.

Miss Annabelle Scribble had just had her first novel published and was engaged in ecstatic contemplation of the book-jacket when a newspaper reporter called at her flat and sent up his card.

For some time the new novellist deliberated. Should she waste her valuable time on this underling? Eventually she decided that she would.

"I suppose you've called to get the story of how I did it?" she asked, when the journalist appeared.

"Oh, no," the young man corrected hastily. "Why you did it."

Miller's Worm Powders not only exterminate intestinal and other worms but they are a remedy for many other ailments of children. They strengthen the young stomach against biliousness and are tonical in their effects where the child suffers from loss of appetite. In feverish conditions they will be found useful and they will serve to allay pain and griping in the stomach, from which children so often suffer.

Recently arrested and brought to court was an Irishman, charged with a thing was a new experience. He was however, unabashed, and wore an air of a man determined not to get the worst of it. "Prisoner at the bar," said the clerk, "do you wish to challenge any of the jury?"

Pat looked the men in the jury box over very carefully.

"Well, I'll tell ye," he finally said, "o'm not exactly in trainin', but oi think oi could step a round or two wid that fat boy in th' corner.

A pleasant medicine for children is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, and it is excellent for driving worms from the system.

"May I never leave the box alive if I am telling an untruth!" exclaimed a witness at Shoreditch County Court.

Judge Clue—"If that were the fate of people who committed perjury here this place would be full of corpses. Look how my lot would be simplified, too. Every perjurer would drop dead, and I should be home by 11 o'clock."

Corns cause much suffering, but Holloway's Corn Remedy affords a speedy, sure, and satisfactory relief.

A lecturer in Aberdeen told a reporter who was present at one of his meetings that he had a few more appointments in the city, and did not wish him to publish anything of his lecture, as it might spoil the attendance at the others.

The next day he was horrified to read in the papers :—

"Mr. —— delivered an excellent lecture in the U. F. Church Hall. He gave some very good stories, but unfortunately they cannot be printed."

TIRED, WEAK, NERVOUS WOMAN BENEFITED

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Asbestos Mines, Quebec.—"After the birth of my second child, I was in a very feeble condition, nervous and weak and had headaches, backaches and terrible pains every month. I suffered two years before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got four bottles at first and it did me a world of good. I would not be without it in the house now, and have another six bottles in. I recommend it to every woman I know."—Mrs. T. Haberry, Box 114, Asbestos Mines, Quebec.

SIR HENRY DRAYTON

CHAIRMAN OF ONTARIO LIQUOR BOARD.

Has a Record of Success and Accomplishment Which Is Without Parallel In Canadian Public Life—Possesses Many Friends.

From the peaceful quietude of law libraries, with their serried ranks of musty statute books, to the storm and stress of public inquiries into graft and wrong-doing; from the chairmanship of the Board of Railway Commissioners, with all the responsibility of holding the scale of rates true and even between the many sections of Canada, to the post of Minister of Finance, Deputy Premier, and prominent member of his Majesty's loyal Opposition—from these arduous and exacting offices Sir Henry Drayton, M.P. for West York, has now emerged to become head of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, his native province, says a correspondent of the Toronto Star Weekly.

Sir Henry is entering the thirty-fifth year of his career as a public servant. He has built up a reputation as crown attorney, railway administrator, financier and statesman. Although not regarded in Ottawa as being remotely connected with brilliance, Sir Henry has a record of success and accomplishment which is without parallel in Canadian public life. It has often been said that law and politics go well together. The successful barrister rarely finds the entrance into public life closed against him.

Seldom indeed, however, has a new recruit, no matter how brilliant his career at the bar may have been, risen to high office as rapidly as did Sir Henry. Two years ago when Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen took over the premiership of the Dominion he appointed Sir Henry as acting leader of the House of Commons. At that time he had been in public life seven years.

He had, however, been handling public affairs, on a greater or smaller scale, for a much longer period. But to step into a political party at the top, to be elected to the House of Commons for the first time as Minister of Finance, the portfolio next in importance to the premiership, is a rare occurrence. Political recruits who join the colors as field marshals are always unpopular. Inevitably they incur the cordial dislike of all the party faithful who consider themselves to have been cheated out of promotion. It speaks much for Sir Henry's charm and tact that he leaves Ottawa one of the most popular men in his party.

Sir Henry is nearly 60 years of age. He was born at Thornton, Ont., in 1869. He was called to the bar in Toronto when 22 years of age and commenced his career of public service in 1892, when he was appointed city solicitor for Toronto. In all his long career as a lawyer he put in but two or three years in private practice. In 1904 he was made crown attorney for the County of York, and in the following year, which was a scandal year in Toronto, he played a prominent part in all the investigations made into the administration of the city. In due course he was made a K.C., and achieved the post of solicitor for the city of Toronto.

The war years came, bringing with them a railway problem which had to be solved. Once more Sir Henry, now a Knight Bachelor (1915), was called in to aid the Government. As a member of the Drayton-Acworth-Smith Commission he made an investigation and collaborated with Mr. Acworth in a majority report which was of the utmost value. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Minister who introduced and put through Parliament the legislation taking over the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Railways, out of which the National Railways were created, has stated that "the Drayton-Acworth report was the basis of the railway policy followed by the administration and was a prodigious achievement."

In passing it must be said that Sir Henry erred on this commission also without remuneration. The Government sent him a cheque for $15,000, but Sir Henry returned it unasked.

Onerous war duties followed. In 1917-18 Sir Henry was controller of light, power and electricity and, also, of the Transports. Then in 1919, three years before his term of the Railway Commission expired, he resigned to enter politics. He was sworn in as Minister of Finance in the Union Government. The war was over, and the post, although always an arduous one, was not so exacting in the demands upon the Minister as in preceding years. His administration was featured by the launching of the Victory Bond issue. This was the first Victory loan in which the bonds were taxed. The issue was not successful, and the new Minister received high praise.

The days of his commissionerships were not yet done. In 1921 he with two of his colleagues went on tour hearing opinions upon tariff reform. The commission travelled widely and the members heard much evidence, but they never issued a report. This was perhaps the only one of Sir Henry's investigations that was entirely fruitless.

Sir Henry's success as a parliamentarian has been achieved in spite of several handicaps. He entered politics late in life and had spent too many years at the bar and on the Railway Commission ever to capture the art of oratory.

However, these are but minor blemishes. In his nine years in Parliament Sir Henry has won a high place in the esteem of all members. He is a chivalrous fighter, quick to attack, but slow to wound. He has also a sort of encompassing charm. He new member and possesses as many friends in the Liberal ranks as in those of his own party.

GOOD BUSINESS

("The chemist has to supply a wide range of colours for all sorts of complaints. A garden shade is used to tone down a fresh complexion. Lilac for bronze skins, and cafe au lait for others. Tangerine shades are much in demand for producing a fresh-colour-ed complexion."—From a notice of the Chemists' Exhibition in London.)

Sometimes my love is tangerine,
Sometimes her face is powdered puce
And oft a larger change is seen
And lilac is her latest use;
A verdant green may then adorn
Those loved ones seldom lasting features.
It just depends on what is "worn"
By Fashion's more obedient creatures.

By sudden change or slow degree
Across that dear, inconstant face
I must have seen (it seems to me)
All colours of the spectrum chase;
Through all the lot I see her whirl,
One day pale blue, the next vermilion,
My gay, my gorgeous rainbow girl,
My captivating, coy chameleon!

They say that where the rainbow ends
Is found much gold by faery arts,
But I should say the gold, my friends,
Is gathered where the rainbow starts;
In chemists' shops the dibs are drawn
Where each and every new complexion.
From heliotrope to green or fawn,
Is sold by packets in perfection.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Napanee, June 15th, 1928.

Napanee Beaver,
Napanee, Ont.

Sir,—May a strong protest be made against extra heavy charges being used in blasting in the vicinity of Napanee. On Wednesday, the 13th inst., the writer had a hen setting, the chickens just peeping through the shell, and about 7.30 p.m. an extra heavy blast was let off, the shock was so great that for a few seconds one wondered if the walls of the house would stand. However, on recovering and thinking of the setting hen, also remembering the old saying that a heavy shock, such as thunder, would kill chickens in the shell; I immediately examined the eggs and partly hatched chickens, and found every chicken dead. Remember, there were alive an hour or so before. No farmers or poultrymen can afford such losses, especially when it is unnecessary, and only owing to carelessness or ignorance. Therefore, steps should be taken by the proper authorities to prevent repetition.

A. S. HUGHSON,
Poultry Association,
Secretary Napanee

OBITUARY.

Mr. Samuel Loucks.

An old resident of this district died at Southampton, on June 2nd, in the person of Mr. Samuel Loucks. The late Mr. Loucks, who had been in failing health for some years, was born in Napanee in 1851, and when twelve years of age moved to Amabel Township with his parents. He was married in 1885 to Elizabeth Temple, of Amabel Township, and they farmed there until about four years ago, when they retired to Southampton. Mr. Loucks was a kindly man and a good neighbor, and was held in high esteem by a wide circle of neighbors and friends. He bore his long illness with a smile. In religion he was a Pentecostal. Deceased is survived by his wife and four children, as follows :— Peter Loucks, Southampton; Mrs. Eva Pringle, Toronto; Mrs. Lottie Ferguson, Belleville, and Miss Laura Loucks, Buffalo; also two brothers and three sisters, Alex. and Wellington Loucks, of Bruce; Mrs. Renwick, Port Arthur; Mrs. Temple, Victoria, B.C., and Mrs. McIntosh, Toronto, also twelve grandchildren. The funeral services were held at his late residence on Tuesday, and were attended by a large number of relatives and friends. Interment took place at Southampton cemetery. —The Beacon, Southampton, Ont.

WEDDING BELLS

Brenton—Smith.

On Saturday, June 2nd, 1928, a very pretty wedding took place, when Edith B., youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith, of Richmond, and William Murney, son of the late Mr. Fred C. Brenton and Mrs. Brenton, of Napanee, were united in marriage by Rev. W. P. Woodger, of Napanee. The bride looked very charming in a dress of French beige satin and georgette with metallic trimming, and hat to match. The bride was attended by Miss Eileen B. Madill, of Tabridge, while the groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. Harry E. Darling, of Dartford, (Principal of Actinolite School). After the ceremony the happy couple left on a motor trip to Pepawville, Watertown, and other points in New York State. They were accompanied as far as Kingston by Mr. Darling and Miss Madill, on their return Mr. and Mrs. Brenton will reside in Napanee.

Weese—Windover.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, June 19th, 1928, at Grace Church Parsonage, Napanee, by Rev. W. P. Woodger, B.A., when Beatrice Eileen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Windover, Selby, became the bride of D. W. Weese, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weese, Newburgh. The bride wore a dress of peach georgette and lace, the bodice being made of the georgette, while frills of gold and silver lace formed the skirt. She also wore the groom's gift, a rope of French pearls. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left on a motor trip for Toronto, Detroit and Benton Harbor, Mich. The bride travelled in a dress of printed silk, with hat to match, and a navy blue poiret twill coat trimmed with satin and fur. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm, east of Selby.

Address and Presentation

Through the great kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Miller, about one hundred of the Morven congregation met on Wednesday evening, in their spacious home, to give Rev. and Mrs. Merrick and Mary a farewell, prior to their departure for their new field of labor at Cannifton. The home throughout was beautifully decorated for the occasion with potted plants, cut flowers, etc. After an enjoyable two hours spent around Mr. Roy Garrison called the gathering together, telling them the object of our assembling. An address was then read by Mrs. Frank Lake, as follows :—

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Merrick and Mary,—We meet in this home to-night with mingled feelings of joy and sorrow. Joy, as we look back over the six years of your successful pastorate and the many happy associations connected therewith. Sad, because these associations are soon to be severed by your removal to a new field of labor. Throughout the years you have presented the Word of God in a manner that you have deepened our spiritual life, and many have been blessed and strengthened. Always attentive to the sick, not only on the circuit, but those in the hospital you have by your presence and prayers, brought comfort and cheer to the sick as well as sad and lonely hearts. The demands outside of the pulpit have been many, and we have felt too strenuous, but you, Mr. and Mrs. Merrick, have been forgetful of self in the doing for others. Doubtless, you have had disappointments common to all; nevertheless, you have always maintained that cheerfulness which has been an incentive to those with whom you have mingled. You, Mrs. Merrick, shall be missed in our W. M. S., Ladies' Aid, Choir, and particularly as teacher of the Young Ladies' Class. You have presented the Word of God in an appealing and edifying manner, which has made you beloved by the members. You, Mary, shall be missed, not only in the Sabbath School, but in the Public School as well, where by your bright and cheerful disposition, you have endeared yourself to all. We feel the loss of you all keenly; we realize though our loss is another's gain. Our prayers go with you, and may you be spared long to carry on the good work you have so faithfully done in the past. We feel we could not let you leave without in some small degree show our love and appreciation of your labor and work during the six years you have been with us. Therefore, we ask you, Mr. and Mrs. Merrick, to accept this address as a slight token of our love and esteem, and as you use it from time to time, may there come to you happy recollections of your friends at Morven. As you leave we wish you to carry this thought with you. A warm welcome awaits you in the homes on Morven Circuit whenever time and opportunity affords.

Signed on behalf of your friends at Morven Appointment.

To Mary Merrick.

Dear Mary,—For six years you have been our Sally good woman, and always will your memory be green. Your deeds of love and merry ways have made you like a sunshine, never helping us to think of pleasant and beautiful things. Accept our tokens of esteem for your friendship in work and play and remember this little ivory clock. May you fill the hours with marks set for you with sixty minutes of sunshine. Kindly deeds, and may God bless and keep you.

Signed on behalf of the League and Sunday School.

Following the above addresses and presentations, Mr. and Mrs. Merrick and Mary responding, said that they felt that words were so inadequate to express just what they felt in gratitude, to the Morven friends for the wonderfully appreciative expressions, both in the address and presentation of the exceedingly useful, beautiful and very beautiful kitchen cabinet, being so glad that it was suitably described as "Presented by Morven Congregation". In continuing, they intimated that it was a real joy and satisfaction to know that their humble services had been so appreciated. Also that the remembrance of such kindness would continue to be a source of inspiration in the Master's service during the future days. Further, that the generous gift had richly repaid them for whatever they had done in seeking to advance the work of the Master in their midst.

A dainty lunch was then served which was enjoyed by all, and just before the friends departed for home they assembled in the dining room with Mr. and Mrs. Merrick and Mary, and heartily sang, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows", after which Mrs. Ernest Miller, the hostess, presented Mrs. Merrick with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, thus bringing the pleasant evening to a close.

ERNESTTOWN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular June meeting was held at the Institute rooms, and opened with the usual exercises.

The roll call was answered by "My favorite song". The President, Mrs. Hamm, then welcomed the visitors, Mrs. Ralph Ham, President of Napanee, and Mrs. Ernest Wright, Violet's President, and the Violet ladies.

The minutes of the May meeting were read and approved, followed by the correspondence. One letter was especially enjoyed, as it came from an Institute in England, Bretton-on-Foss, Gloucestershire, and told of the work being done there, also a description of the month of May, especially the birds and flowers.

The business discussed was the purchasing of a suitable gift for the pupils of three schools, Link's Mills, McIntyre's and Hawley, who stood highest in general proficiency and good conduct, and with the help of Mrs. Wright a Waterman fountain pen was decided upon, and the school inspector could not attend, especially stressing the importance of this class.

Mrs. Gerdon Young's demonstration of summer salads was enjoyed by all. One hardly needs to mention this young homemaker's efficiency in that line of work.

She gave an outline of the preparation of salads and dressings, giving many pleasing combinations of fruits and vegetables, and then made an unlooked-for surprise which was delicious, and finished by making a most attractive fruit and nut salad, called "Burnham's Delight".

In her usual businesslike manner, she had several copies of recipes, which she gave to the members.

Mrs. Hamm's little talk on "How I put my Shipping on summer cars by $2.59", explained that a few years ago common rose chambry made a table cloth and napkins for every day, and a buffett, and a few yards more of plaid in exactly the shade made over curtains and one dozen table napkins, and gave the room a very cool, summery appearance.

Then what we were all anxiously waiting for was Mrs. Ralph Ham's paper, "Women's Interest in the League of Nations", and very clever and instructive it proved to be, showing great care and thought in compiling her subject. She told us in a graphic way the origin and object of the League, what they had accomplished, and are striving to do, in fact every phase of the League, and some of the Lessons that we should learn from it. It was given in such a pleasing manner, made us feel, as perhaps we had not before, that it was our very own and also pleasure, to support this splendid work.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Ham, accompanied by a hearty clap.

The July program is to be given entirely by the Institute juveniles, except the roll call, which is the "Acts of Courtesy to Teach Children".

MORVEN

Mrs. James Curran is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ray Ham.—Mr. J. S. Fralick and Mrs. J. F. Lake spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Doller, Kingston. — Mrs. Earle Dann and son, Vancouver, and Miss Bernice Kayler, Calgary, arrived on Saturday to visit their parents and other friends. —Congratulations are being sent Mrs. Chas. E. Burt, Cornwall, and Mrs. Wm. Close, upon the safe arrival of their little sons.—Mrs. Wm. Henwood visited her daughter, Mrs. C. Wilson, Kingston, during the week.—Mr. Wilson R. Purdy, Dearborn, Mich., visited at Mr. George Fralick's, and made several calls. — Rev. W. R. Merrick gave his farewell message on Sunday evening, using as his text these words: "Hold fast to the faith without wavering, the more so as ye see the day approaching". The message was well selected and earnestly given, when we recall that Mr. Merrick has given sympathy and consolation to twenty-five bereaved families on the Morven Appointment since his pastorate began. —On Thursday afternoon a joint meeting of the W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid was held in the Brick Church. At the close of the programme, Mrs. A. Winters read the following address to Mrs. Merrick, and Mrs. Geo. Clark made the presentation.

Dear Mrs. Merrick,—It is with feelings of sadness that we are gathered here to-day, but we cannot let you leave our little circle without letting you know how much we appreciate the help you have given us in our W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid. Not only your faithful and regular attendance, but by your willingness to assist any time you were asked. We sometimes think the humble home duties well and kindly performed, do not receive the same appreciation, but are often taken for granted, but the inner circle who have been personally benefited by your kindness, feel a gratefulness not appreciated by those who know us collectively. We, with whom you have been constantly associated, esteem it a pleasure to ask you to accept this Rug, not for its intrinsic value, but as a token of our regard and esteem, and trust you may look back with many happy memories of your association with our Societies.

MRS. G. E. FRALICK,
Pres. W. M. S.

MRS. A. WINTERS,
Pres. Ladies' Aid.

They also presented Mr. Merrick with a gentleman's silk umbrella. Mr. and Mrs. Merrick were very much surprised, but thanked the members for their unexpected expression of love.—Mr. John Bell, Napanee, attended the service on Sunday evening.—Miss Irene Cowan, Toronto, visited her uncle, Mr. Bailey Hamm, recently.—Mrs. Babcock, Odessa, is visiting at Mrs. Jas. Robeson's. — The annual Strawberry Festival is to be held in the Brick Church, on Tuesday evening, July 10th.

Photo work at Wallace's.—Work left up to 5.30 at night, ready 4.30 next afternoon. All work done by an expert with over 20 years' experience. All prints on Ferrotype at no extra charge. Terms cash with order. Wallace's, Kodak Agents.

DESERONTO

The Brethren of "Craig" Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons paraded to St. Mark's Church, Deseronto, June 24th, for Divine Service, at 11 o'clock, being St. John Baptist Day. Seats were reserved for W. M. Captain V. G. Pearce, and the members of the Lodge who turned out in force. Printed forms of the service were placed in every pew, so that everyone could take an intelligent part in the Prayers and Hymns. The service was consequently very hearty and congregational. Bro. W. I. R. Eppes, Organist, and the surpliced choir rendered the musical parts of the service well, and also the anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord", in which the senior solo was taken by Mr. C. J. Knight, Jr. The Rector, Rev. Rural Dean Radcliffe, B.C.L., preached a powerful sermon from the text, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His Righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you", stressing the wisdom of putting first things first in the practice of every day life. Spring flowers adorned the altar. Many complimentary remarks were heard concerning the church parade to St. Mark's Church this year of the Masonic Craig Lodge. Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again.

An immense assortment of Bathing Caps, from 15c. for the regular cap, to 50c., 75c. and $1.50 for the heavier diving caps. See display at Wallace's.

CENTREVILLE

The Masonic service which was held on Sunday afternoon, in Centreville United Church, was well attended. On Tuesday night a Softball team was organized for the ensuing year. We hope our young people will be interested.—Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds and daughter are visiting at Mr. Briden Weese's.—Some of our young people attended the Young People's picnic of Wesley, which was held at Beaver Lake, on Saturday last.—Don't forget the lawn social which is to be held on the Town Hall grounds, on Saturday, June 30th. A good programme is being arranged.—Arrangements are being made for a Sunday School picnic to Switzer's grove, on July 4th. — Mr. Fred Brown attended the horse races at Lansdowne, on Tuesday last.—Miss Jessie Rombough is spending her holidays at her home.—Service next Sunday, July 1st, at 7.30 p.m.

COUNTY COUNCIL

Friday.

Mr. Smale, of the Department of Highways, appeared before the Council to explain to the Council the construction of gravel asphalt roads.

Council adjourned for benefit of Finance Committee.

Council resumed, and the Finance Committee reported, after considering the estimated receipts and expenditures, recommending a levy of 41-3 mills for County Road purposes on each municipality excepting Denbigh, Amherst Island and Kaladar, and 1-3 mills for debenture debt. The general rate would be 141-6 mills for the above three townships, and 16½ mills on the rest of the County.

Mr. Carscallen made a minority report, requesting the Roads Committee to amend their report by reducing their expenditure to the amount agreed upon in March.

The Warden presented a general estimate of receipts and expenditures for the year, which was read and discussed.

Mr. Carscallen asked for the year and pays on the adoption of the minority report. Yeas 12, nays 3.

A resolution to rescind the resolution of Messrs. Carscallen and Miller, at January session, was moved by Messrs. Smith and Cousins. Carried.

Mr. Carscallen asked for the year and nays on the motion of Messrs. Smith and Cousins. Yeas 9, nays 6.

Mr. Boyes presented a report of County Property Committee, reported improvements to the Court House, and recommended payment of various accounts for same. Also recommended that coal pockets be painted, and windows and sash on Court House be painted and glazed. That W. S. Wilson's tender for fuel be accepted. That some unnecessary trees in the rear of Court House be removed. That some repairs be made to the eavestrough and gutters on the Court House. Report adopted.

The various High and Continuation School requisitions were referred to the Education and Printing Committee to report.

The Police Committee reported, recommending payment of $100 for office rent, and that a desk be purchased for the Magistrate's office. Referred back to Police Committee for further information.

A communication from D. M. Wilson, C. C. A., enclosing Grand Jury Presentment. Read and filed.

An acknowledgment from Napanee Poultry Association, of grant. Filed.

A letter from Ontario Municipal Association, re convention. Filed.

ODESSA

Miss Marie Kenyon, Toronto, is spending her holidays with Mr. and Mrs. B. L. King.—Miss Gladys Topliff, Pickering, is holidaying with her father, Mr. W. E. Topliff.—Dr. and Mrs. Parkhill and children and Miss Wall, Lanark, and Mrs. Parkhill and son, Stanley, and Mr. and Mr. Crawford and family, Kingston, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Young. —The many friends of Mrs. A. E. Huggard were sorry to hear of her resignation from the Public School staff. Mrs. Huggard has been a member of the Primary room for six years, and has accepted a position in the supply staff, Kingston. The Junior Literary Club presented her with a beautiful gift on behalf of her former and present pupils with a handsome fruit set. During her stay here she put forth every effort for the advancement of her pupils, and started the Domestic Science and Manuel Training Classes. —Another fire and A League game was added to the Odessa Baseball team last Wednesday afternoon when they played Napanee at Napanee. The game was very interesting, especially for Odessa, as the score was 14-6 in their favor. Quite a number from here attended.—Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Davy returned from spending the past five months with their son, Harry Davy, Toronto.—Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hamm have returned from spending a few days with relatives in Madoc. — Mrs. Bedford, who has been visiting Mrs. Amy Snider and other friends for the past two weeks, has returned to her home in Fenelon Falls.—Mr. and Mrs. William Frink are visiting friends in Port Hope.—We destroyed the grocery store and meat shop of Frank Miller, Main street, on Monday morning. The alarm was turned in about 7.30 a.m. o'clock, and had it not been for the ready response of the villagers, and their energetic efforts in fighting the flames, the buildings could not have been saved. The building and stock were partially insured.—Earl Silver and Mrs. Silver, Main street; H. J. Smith and W. E. Smith, Spencer street, and Mrs. Wm. Toles, Ferguson avenue, have improved their homes by repainting.

STRATHCONA

We have been enjoying ideal summer weather of late, and the recent rains have been a great help to the gardens and strawberry patches.—Mr. and Mrs. Wolf Vigna, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. B. Finlay, motored to Ottawa on Saturday last to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. S. MacDonald. They returned on Monday evening.—Bill games are the order of the evening, and we have had a real good ball this year.—Misc Ruby Ham, who has spent the past few months in Ottawa, returned to her home here on Tuesday. Her many friends welcome her back.—Mr. E. McLean, our station agent, is at present holidaying his holidays. Mr. J. R. Sine, of Enterprise, is taking his place.—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoare spent Sunday afternoon in Deseronto.—Mr. G. R. Finlay is having a sun room built on his house.—Mrs. Clarence Baker has been on the sick list, but is much improved at time of writing.—Our village should be able to keep cool this summer, as Mr. Clarence Baker has real good ice cream for sale.—No Sunday School here Sunday. Quarterly service at Newbrugh Church at 10.30 a.m.

NEWBURGH

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Black, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Aney and Messrs. Fraser and Frank Bell were Sunday visitors with Dr. and Mrs. Huxtable.

Miss Alice Keough is spending the summer with friends in Ottawa, Vankleek Hill and Pakenham.

Remember the Girls' Camp at Verty Lake, July 4th to 11th. A splendid educational program and good sport, under fine supervision.

The annual Circuit Lawn Party is to be held on the Parsonage lawn, on the 26th of July. See bills for particulars.

OBITUARY.

John A. Storey, pioneer resident of Moose Range, passed away at the St. Theresa Hospital, Tisdale, on Saturday afternoon, June 2nd. He was taken to the hospital two weeks previously in a critical condition and gradually grew worse, until the end came peacefully.

John A. Storey was orn on April 18th, 1862, in Addington County, Ontario. He came west in 1899, living for awhile in Dominion City, Manitoba, moving later to Elm Creek, Manitoba, and then to Moose Range in 1911. While in Moose Range he took a keen interest in "Community betterment", and he will long be remembered for bridge building, having 100 to his credit. The splendid system of drainage in Moose Range was due to his initiative. He was a member of the Orange Order and the Masonic Fraternity.

The funeral took place at the Storey residence on Tuesday, June 5th. It was very largely attended, several out 75 cars and a number of buggies being indicative of the esteem in which the deceased was held. The service was conducted by the Rev. T. M. Beveridge, United Church minister. The address was given by the Rev. D. P. Morris, of St. Paul's United Church, Tisdale. Mr. Morris paid tribute to Mr. Storey as a "Community builder", one who rendered invaluable public service, and taking keen interest in politics and matters affecting the farming industry. The religion of Mr. Storey was found in these words, "Let me live in the house by the side of the road, and be a friend to man." He wanted to be known as one "who loved his fellowmen". He will be greatly missed by his family and neighbors.

He leaves to mourn his loss a widow, one son and six daughters, Mrs. J. A. Storey, widow; J. E. Storey, son, Moose Range; Mrs. Whitaker Ardrossa, Alberta; Mrs. McIntyre, Oakville, Manitoba; Mrs. Valeaux, Moose Range; Mrs. Clagett Hanley, Mrs. Valeaux, Kenaston; Mrs. Wood, Moose Range, and Mrs. Wilson, Portage La Prairie, Man., eldest grand-daughter was also present. Of his numerous grandchildren to fourteen were present at the funeral. The casket was banked with wreaths and sprays from the following :—The family, Reeve and Councilors Arborfield Municipality; Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Reid and family, Moose Range Orange Lodge, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reid, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Burkle, of Tisdale, Mr. Gordon Aikman, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Mc-Shannock and family, Moose Range.

Interment took place in Moose Range cemetery. Mr. Valeaux, acting on behalf of Mr. J. B. Parr, of Tisdale, was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Teacher—"Norman, give me a sentence using the word 'diadem'."

Pupil—"People who drive on to the railroad crossing should look right quicker than those who stop, look and listen."

How Delicate Girls Are Made Strong

Rich, Red Blood Needed to Keep Up Their Vitality.

It should be borne in mind that pale, bloodless girls need plenty of nourishment, plenty of sleep and regular out-of-doors exercise. But a lack of appetite and tired, aching limbs tend to hinder progress. To take the weak, thin-blooded sufferer, she must have new, rich blood, and nothing meets a case of this kind so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills not only enrich and increase the blood supply, they help the appetite and aid digestion, relieve the weary back and limbs, thus bringing new health and strength and transforming anaemic girls and women into cheerful, happy people.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the case of anaemic girls is proved by the case of Miss Lizzy Goddart, Margaretville, N.S., who says : "From the age of 12 to 15, I was in an anaemic condition. I was very thin and nervous, had no appetite and had no desire to take part in the doings of those of my age. My mother got tonic after tonic for me, but they did me very little good. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and almost from the first they seemed to be just what was needed to restore my strength. After taking the pills for a time I felt an altogether different girl. I got up in the morning feeling bright and active, and ready for work or play. Since then I have always taken a couple of boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the spring as a tonic and have thus kept in the best of condition."

Every weak girl should promptly follow the example of Miss Stoddart, feeling sure that the pills will renew her health. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RICHMOND TOWNSHIP SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The annual Sunday School Convention of Richmond Township convened at Selby in the United Church, on Friday, June 23rd, with President Rev. A. Brooks presiding. The convention comprised representatives from Napanee, Selby, Roblin, Empey Hill, Forest Mills and Westplain.

Two sessions were held. The afternoon was the opening one. This was opened by devotional exercises, led by Rev. A. E. Oliver, of Roblin. Mr. Stewart Mowers, assistant superintendent of Selby Sunday School, gave an address of welcome to the visitors. Reports were then received from the various Department Superintendents, and from the Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Will Prisken. As each report was presented, Rev. W. A. Dobson, B.A., of Bethany United Church, Ottawa, representing the O. R. E. C. headquarters, reviewed the work done, and led a discussion of problems arising out of the same. Mrs. Robert Marlin rendered a most appreciated solo.

The evening session was commenced by a song service, conducted by Rev. A. E. Oliver, after which Rev. Harry Pawson, of Trinity Church, Napanee, conducted devotional exercises. The report of the Nominating Committee was then presented by Mr. Will Prisken, and adopted unanimously. By this action the following are the officers for next year :—

President — Mr. Chas. Anderson, Selby.

Vice-President—Mr. J. C. Hudgins, Selby.

Secretary Treasurer — Mrs. Adam Prisken, Selby.

Superintendent of Children's Work—Mrs. R. J. Smith, Napanee.

Supt. of Girls' Work — Miss Laura Rockwell, Napanee.

Supt. of Boys' Work—Rev. W. P. Woodger, B.A., Napanee.

Supt. of Adult Division—Mr. W. J. Winter, Selby.

Supt. of Young People's Dept.—Mrs. John Kimmett, Roblin.

Supt. of Home Dept.—Mrs. S. Waddell, Roblin.

Supt. of Teacher Training—Rev. A. J. Wilson, B.A., B.D., Napanee.

Supt. of Missionary Dept. — Miss Mabel Stafford, Empey Hill.

Supt. of Temperance Dept. — Mrs. Nathan B. Miller, Napanee.

Rev. A. J. Wilson installed the officers. The Resolution Committee presented two resolutions which were adopted by the Convention, namely :

(a) That we recommend that each local Sunday School take a collection at least once a year and pass it on to the Township Convention Treasurer to provide a fund to be used at the discretion of Township Temperance Superintendent to furnish suitable literature for the local Sunday Schools.

(b) That we recommend that the Sunday Schools of the Township subscribe for sufficient copies of the Northern Messenger for those who will enter the Scientific Temperance Contest according to the plan promoted by John Dougall & Sons, of Montreal, and that these subscriptions be forwarded not later than July 15th.

Mr. Ted Wilde sang a solo, after which Rev. W. A. Dobson gave an address upon "The Sunday School's True Evangelism." Everybody is questioning how the next revival of religion is to take place. The Church School presents the most effective agency for promoting this. Opportunity is very apparent through the decadence of home religion, the impatience of the general public concerning the Professional evangelism, and the fact that the Church School has the machinery to do this work. As of Der Deutsch. Thirdly, quoting from Moses, "speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward", guidance and help was promised from God, so now if we are only brave to assume our responsibilities we will be guided by His Spirit, and uphold by His Strength.

Tea was served between the sessions by the ladies of Selby Church for the visiting delegates, in which their culinary reputations was amply maintained.

Next year's Convention will be held in Grace Church, Napanee.

"Can any boy or girl tell me why Adam was made a man?" asked the teacher. After a few moments' silence a voice piped out, "Please, miss if he'd been a girl there would have been nobody to nurse him."

ST. SOPHIA

Building Now Standing Was Opened 537 A.D.—Cost $216,000,000—Turks Captured It In 1453.

Easter no longer lights candles on the tomb hills of Jerusalem where once it was the greatest of great days, when Byzantium was the centre of Eastern Christianity.

While the remnants of the former Greek population gather around their old patriarch in the small church of Phanar to celebrate the resurrection with some pale reminiscence of the old pomp Easter will come and go again, a day like any other, it will seem for a thousand years the greatest church in Christendom. Saint Sophia still stands, but 475 years have passed since Christ was worshipped therein or his resurrection glorified.

In 1453 the crescent replaced the cross on the great dome when the Turkish conquerors converted the church into a mosque.

"God is in her and she shall not be destroyed" wrote the Christian builders on every brick that supports the highty cupola. Worshippers of the same One God, though of different prophets, Moslem and Christian alike believe in the ancient history and tradition that "God dwelt here, pleased with this dwelling."

The first St. Sophia, built by the builder of Constantinople, the Emperor Constantine the Great, was burned on Easter day, 404 A.D., by a populace infuriated by the Empress Eurdoxia's banishment of the great preacher, John of Chrysostom.

Reconstructed in 415, the church was again burnt to the ground in 532 during the Nika rebellion against the Emperor Justinian, but forty days afterward Justinian started its re-building.

Every day for five years, from 532 to 537, 10,000 workers labored under the mighty architects Anthemius of Tralles and Isadore of Miletus and under the scrutiny of the emperor himself. Athens, Rome, Delphi, Cyzicus, Baalbek and even the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, one of the wonders of the world, gave up their treasures of porphyry and many-colored marbles to make of St. Sophia a dream of glory—a dream that cost no less than $216,000,000.

On December 27, 537 A.D., St. Sophia was ready for solemn inauguration, and it was then, at the head of a mighty procession, that the great Justinian forgot his dignity when he crossed the portal and running like a child beneath the great glittering dome, shouted: "Oh, Solomon, I've seen you one better!"

Most of the mosaics have been whitewashed by the Turks or covered with huge placards beating the names of the early caliphs, for the Moslem religion held taboo the representation of human forms.

But such is the battle waged by the leaders of the Turkey against fanaticism ,that there is a strong likelihood that another Easter will find the placards removed, the whitewash scraped off and the glory of the Byzantine mosaics shining out once more.

SEX IN STONES.

Scientist Claims to Have Discovered Sex Differences.

A claim to have discovered sex differences in stone is made by Dr. Manolivo, a Russian scientist.

"The possibility of the existence of the male and female principle among minerals was suggested to me in the course of my researches on sex determination in human beings, animals, and plants by means of radio-active tests," Dr. Manolivo told an interviewer.

"I was struck by the fact that the same mineral possessing the same chemical properties has two forms of crystals, such as cubic and hexagonal. I applied my reaction test to the different crystallic forms of the same mineral.

"I found in the case of the eleven most typical mineral pyrites that the cubic-shaped crystals gave a typical male reaction (deglumentation) upon the substances in which they had been submerged, while the octagonal-shaped crystals gave a typical female reaction (pigmentation). This result I obtained in all cases."

Dr. Manolivo hopes to demonstrate that there is complete system of division into male and female through the whole of creation from stones to man.

Cinderella 300 Years Old.

It is just three centuries since Charles Perrault, creator of Cinderella and Red Riding Hood, was born. Perrault, a Frenchman, never dreamed that the fairy children of his brain would become immortal. He wrote poetry of an exceedingly dull order, and it was by his pen and not by his fairy stories that he hoped to win fame. Perrault conceived and wrote his stories, which he called "Tales of Mother Goose," to please his little son, Pierre. Is Lewis Carroll, a mathematician, told the tale of Alice in Wonderland to amuse two little girls.

Cinderella and her glass slipper was one of Perrault's favorite heroines. Some people have tried to insist that Cinderella's slipper of "verre," or glass, was meant to be a slipper of "vair," or fur, but one cannot imagine Cinderella in anything but a crystal slipper.

INSUL-BOARD

(INSULATING BOARD)

A Board that shuts out cold. Stops heat. Deadens sound. An extraordinary building and insulating Board designed to make home interiors more comfortable, more restful and more healthful the whole year through. An All-Canadian Board, made in Canada from the products of Canada's Forests.

INSUL-BOARD meets the need for a stouter and more rugged material for wall and ceiling insulation. Its greater structural strength has been proven under critical tests by Canada's leading engineers. It makes the walls more rigid, more enduring, more capable of resisting severe strain and stress.

INSUL-BOARD insulates completely, producing a sure and lasting shield against winter's cold and summer's heat, sealing the home interior tight against all atmospheric discomfort.

WHY WOMEN CRY.

Good Cry May Be Not Only a Sedative, But Also a Beautifier.

Why does crying help women? The obvious explanation is that crying is a great nervous outlet, but, according to a doctor who talked the matter over with his wife, a good cry may be not only a sedative, but also a beautifier.

"Have you ever noticed," he asked, "that women who appear to live in a continual condition of nervous strain are apt to have sallow complexions?

"This, after all, is reasonable, as in earlier forms of evolution the nerves developed from the skin. There is always connection between the nerves and the skin, and what injuries one tends to injure the other."

A "good cry," it seems, has much the same function as the safety-valve of an engine—that is, it averts an explosion.

"Oh, dry those tears," is therefore an admonition which should be obeyed in reason. Do not dry them until you judge that the flow has been sufficient to avert any sallow tints which seem to threaten.

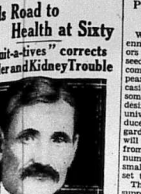
Finds Road to Health at Sixty

"Fruit-a-tives" corrects Bladder and Kidney Trouble



MR. THOMAS GRAHAM.

"I am sixty years old and tried all kinds of medicines for bladder and kidney troubles, which used to keep me from work a month at a time, until I started using "Fruit-a-tives". Thanks to "Fruit-a-tives" I have worked steadily for four years without a sick day. I have never felt better than I do now," writes Mr. Thomas Graham of Oshawa, Ont.

"Fruit-a-tives" is unique because it is made from the juices of fresh, ripe fruits, intensified and combined with strengthening tonics, "Fruit-a-tives" soon brings radiant health to those who suffer from constipation, bladder and kidney troubles. It works in nature's own way. You will find "Fruit-a-tives" the very thing your system needs. 25c and 50c a box at all dealers. Start right away—to-day.

PERENNIALS FROM SEED

(Experimental Farms Note.)

While a few hardy herbaceous perennials tend, in relation to inferior colors and patterns when grown from seed, there are a great many which come true or are pleasing in appearance as the parent stock, and economical to propagate. It is therefore somewhat surprising that the desire to grow perennial plants is so universal, there are not more produced from seed sown in the spring. While it is true that bloom will not be obtained the first year from seed, the fact that so large a number may be produceds with a small an outlay should more than offset the loss of one year's bloom.

The labour involved in producing a supply of perennials from seed is a great, provided it is undertaken in a systematic way. First, a small area in the garden or about the grounds, preferably in a sunny and sheltered location, and never in a position where water will pond in winter, should be set apart as a nursery. The ground should be dug in the fall, a good dressing of barnyard manure worked in as the digging proceeds, and the surface left rough all winter. In spring, when the ground is sufficiently dry to crumble nicely, work the surface to a depth of about two inches and rake till a fine seed bed is obtained. Then with the aid of a string or wire, open shallow drills about a foot or sixteen inches apart. By planting the seed in a narrow, straight drill, cultivation will be much easier, the young plants will be more easily distinguished from weeds, and the appearance of the nursery will be greatly improved. The date of sowing depends upon the variety, and therefore, if a few turnip or radish seeds, which come up quickly, are mixed with the seeds of perennials when sowing, it is possible to distinguish the rows and to cultivate to check weeds before slow germinating perennials have come up. During the first growing season, give frequent shallow cultivation with a hoe to prevent the formation of a crust and to check weeds. When the young plants are about an inch high, thin to three inches apart in the row.

As many perennials require winter protection in this climate, it is desirable, when the ground freezes in autumn, to apply one or two inches of straw, coarse hay, or leaves as a mulch. As a rule this should not be removed in spring till there is no longer danger of the ground being frozen hard at night.

The plants should be moved in early spring from the nursery to their permanent position (with the exception of a few perennials like the oriental poppy, which does not transplant readily in spring, but in late summer). Care should be taken to have as much earth as possible adhering to the roots when moving. A spade is the most useful implement for this purpose.

For hints on the subsequent care of perennials, write to the Superintendent of the Experimental Station, Charlottetown.

Among the many perennials which give good results when grown from seed are the following :—Achillea, Polyanthus, Alyssum, saxatile Compactum, English Daisy, Delphinium, Arabis, Coral Bells, Sweet William, Chinese Lantern Plant, Campanula, Baby's Breath, Columbine, Iceland Poppy, Oriental Poppy, Perennial Scabiosa, Scarlet Lychnis, Sweet Rocket, Snapdragon, Sweet Scabious, Thrift, Thrum, Hybridum, Anchusa, Monk's Hood, Dictamnus, Lupine, Veronica, Perennial Sunflower, Bocconia, Globe Thistle, Heliopsis, Hollyhock and Everlasting Pea.

SOME LATER INFORMATION ON SELF-FEEDING HOGS

(Experimental Farms Note.)

The practice of self-feeding the meal ration from the time the pigs are weaned until they are finished has, in the past, the majority of cases, resulted in a smaller number of select hogs being produced than when a similar meal ration is hand-fed. Self-fed pigs are at liberty to consume all the meal or grain which they desire and all pigs in the lot have an equal opportunity to do so. On the other hand, trough-fed pigs receive their feed at stated intervals during the day, and, as there is often much crowding, the stronger and more vigorous individuals obtain more than their share unless the attendant is on hand to regulate the feeding in such a manner that the self-fed hogs are more uniform than the trough-fed hogs but that they are shorter and not suitable for the production of Wiltshire sides. This is because all the pigs get all the feed they desire and unless this feed is conducive to the growth of bone and muscle, they will develop into short, thick hogs.

It is usually accepted that a ration of good variety which contains about 21 per cent of protein is about right for young weaned pigs, and also that the protein requirements decrease as increased until about 15 per cent is fed during the finishing period.

As a matter of fact, these figures appear to be somewhat lower than is required for the maximum growth and development of bacon hogs which are finished when about 200 pounds in weight.

A test recently completed at the Central Experimental Farm, at Ottawa, in which a ration of meal and milk which contained 24.5 per cent of protein for weaned pigs and this gradually decreased to 22.6 per cent for the pigs when finished was decidedly superior to a ration containing 20 per cent for weaned pigs and gradually reduced to 15 per cent. These were self-fed.

The self-fed hogs on the higher protein ration attained an average weight of 217 pounds at eight months of age and were quite well finished. Pigs of the same age and breeding which were trough-fed identically the same rations continued to gain and failed to finish for another three weeks, this indicating that the ration was relatively too high in protein for finishing trough-fed hogs but about right for the self-fed hogs. While there must necessarily be a gradual reduction of the protein constituent, or a widening of the nutritive ratio, as the feeding period advances care should be taken to maintain a relatively higher protein content when self-feeding the ration than when it is trough-fed in order to produce a good type of bacon hog.

MATRIMONIAL PUZZLES

Queer Marriage Mysteries Come Under the Notice of Registrars and Justices of the Peace.

A registrar of marriages in England, in an article in a Tit-Bits states that twenty-six marriage puzzles have come to him in his observation during his seventeen years of experience.

"We are a little early," one bridegroom remarked, "but witnesses will be here directly." ¶ ¶

He removed his cap and somewhat tight collar, and then came away with it a wig or toupee the kind that dovetails into what is left of the real hair. Startled, his bride gazed at the expanse of baldness, gave a startled cry, picked up her handbag, and went. The man made no attempt to follow.

"Great Scott! I forgot all about it!" exclaimed a bridegroom when I put my usual question about the ring. I told him he could get one at a jeweller's a few yards away. Off he sped, his bride went, but they never came back!

The man wanted a fifteen-shilling one," the jeweller told me. The girl wanted one at three pounds. From arguing, they progressed to quarrelling. Suddenly she smacked his face hard, and left! ¶ ¶

"Oh, dear," I told another bridegroom, "it's not my job to provide witnesses. You had better go outside and ask the two people if they will oblige you."

He and his bride went out to get witnesses, but failed to return. Meeting him later, I asked the reason.

"Luck was out," he replied, gloomily. "I went up to a stranger, and when he turned round he and my girl recognised each other. It seems they had been engaged, quarrelled, and parted. And—and—well, they made it up then and there, and she said she was finished with me."

The next was rather a pathetic case. When I explained to that part of the ceremony where the bridegroom has to pledge himself, he stuttered and stammered. He tried desperately, but could not get the words out.

"I was going to suggest a rest for a minute or so when his bride snapped, 'I'm not going to marrying a stuttering idiot. Good-bye.'"

And off she went. The man told me he had stuttered years before, but had been cured. The excitement of the wedding had brought the affliction back again. I was very sorry for him.

Taking advantage of the bridegroom's removal of his overcoat, a bride, much perturbed, whispered to me: "Please—I'm so sorry for the trouble—but am now a widow in the certificate."

Sharp ears, helped by a sudden lull in the traffic outside, made the bridegroom catch the word "widow," and he insisted on explanations. The result was that the ceremony stopped, and he had snapped, "No bloomin' widow for me!" he flounced out of the office.

What mystery lay behind the following I do not know. Another bridegroom. "Last chance."

"Never," snapped the bride. And at that the man, putting a fresh ring into note on my desk, bowed to the woman, and went.

DISCOVERY OF ICELAND.

The MacDougalls First to Land on Northern Isle.

Though Iceland now belongs to Denmark, it was discovered by the MacDougalls of Argyllshire, ancestors of the family which now resides at Dunolly Castle, and whose eldest daughter is known by the picturesque name of the "Maid of Lorn."

In early days the MacDougalls were sea rovers, and when on their adventurous voyages they always had with them several ravens—their mascot bird. Sailing along the sea-worn ward on a voyage of discovery, a MacDougall chief let loose a raven, hoping it would show where land lay, but the bird returned in the direction when they had come from.

Continuing their voyage, another raven was released, and after circling around overhead, it came back to the ship. Knowing the raven's wonderful instinct for making for land, they knew there was none near.

On they sailed, and then let loose another bird, and set off in the direction they were sailing. Following it, these intrepid voyagers of the Western Isles reached the unknown land of Iceland.

THRILLS ON A SPIRE.

Man Climbs Steeple of Dom Twins, 520 Feet Above Street Level.

A daring exploit was that of a Cologne (Germany) man who for a wager climbed the south steeple of the famous Dom Twins, and, on reaching the top, placed a chair on the platform, then stood on his hands with his feet in the air. It was a perilous climb, for the Dom rises to a height of 520 feet above street level.

The youth ascended by means of the stone Gothic ornaments and carvings with which are characteristic of the spires. The climb took him five and a half hours. Nobody thought he would surmount the great stone "wreath" which is about 60 feet from the top, but the youth accomplished this, although it meant climbing outwards.

Then he rounded the stone ball of the apex and stood on the peak of the spire. The climb took him five cigarette, had a look round, and accomplished his dancing and balancing feats, after which he descended.

When he reached the pavement he was taken into custody, submitting cheerfully when the loser of the bet came along and settled his obligations with a packet of cigarettes!

$2,219,700,00 In One Year.

Educational, philanthropic, religious and charitable organizations in the United States received contributions of $2,219,700,00 in 1927, according to a survey made by the John Price Jones Corporation, which conducts financial campaigns. In a statement summarising its survey, that corporation pointed out that the total was more than the year's income of either France or Germany.

The survey says that in the last two decades philanthropy in America has been organized along big business lines and on a big business scale, and that contributions have increased annually in large amounts.

Greece Is Draining Bogs and Lakes and Are Buying Modern Farm Implements.

Wheat production in Greece, despite the fact that three-fifths of the people are given over to agricultural pursuits, is not sufficient to meet the standing need of the country. This is mostly due to the poorness of the cultivable land. The area under cultivation does not exceed 20 per cent. of the total area of the whole country. This may be attributed to the geological formations of the soil, a large part of which is composed of mountainous and rocky regions.

But farming is being done in Greece mostly by primitive means and very little has been done toward intensive culture. About 40 per cent. of the cereals consumed in the country, amounting to 400,000 tons annually, are imported.

The climate of Greece is extremely favorable for the production of fine agricultural products, so that all that is necessary to render Greece self-supporting in this matter is intensive methods of cultivation, suitable manures, selected seeds and modern implements.

The reclamation problem is still more vital from an economic and social point of view. There is in Greece much land marsh and bog land. The most extensive marshes are in Salonikli, Drama, Pelli, Arcadia, Maritza, Larissa and Etolia-Acarnania, and cover an area of 778,000 stremmata. The lakes are land locked and have no outlets into the sea. One of the great concerns of the Greek Government is to reclaim these vast tracts of land which represent the most fertile parts of the country and thereby ease the country's economic situation. The convention concluded with the Foundation Company of New York is directly intended to remedy this difficulty.

Macedonia is the granary of the whole country. This section has been endowed with many natural gifts which can be exploited with the best results. The construction of new roads forms one of the important items of the Coalition Government's program. These will cost about 2,500,000,000 drachmae, but it will more annually to the treasury a revenue of 300,000,000 drachmae, in the way of taxes, which might for the most part be used for the construction of new roads. These highways and byways will be made chiefly in rural regions to facilitate the transport of the farmer and render his labor more productive and valuable.—Christian Science Monitor.

FERRY TO FORTUNE.

How Cornelius Vanderbilt Got His First Start In Business.

Can you imagine a man who began his career at sixteen with a small sailing boat, bought for £20 with money his mother took from her hoard in the clock, being worth more than £20,000,000 when he died? Such was the extraordinary story of Cornelius Vanderbilt, who died just over fifty years ago. He started sailing passengers to and from Staten Island over New York and ended by being the dominating figure in American railways.

By the time he was sixteen, "Corneel," as he was called, was far too go-ahead to be satisfied with his father's ideas. Before giving him the £20 for his boat, his father and mother made a bargain that "he should plough and set an eighth acre field before his birthday. Corneel rounded five sails in his craft and got them at work clearing the field. He finished the job the day before his birthday.

Next morning he was at the ferry ready for passengers. A year later he paid back his mother's £20 and gave his father $1,000. At twenty-three he had three vessels and about $8,000 in cash. He scrapped his sails and took to modern steam sailing.

At seventy Vanderbilt made another change. He sold his steamships and went into railways.

Urges Japanese Drink Milk.

Japan, where milk as a food for adults is comparatively unknown and where dairy products are rarely eaten, has been advised to turn toward these products if it wishes to improve the physique and height of the race. The plea is made by Koken Ikagami, chief of the veterinary section of the metropolitan police board. He points out that the Government has appropriated $250,000 for the establishment of five large poultry supply stations in the country. Ikagami points to the United States as the best example.

He urges the Japanese to establish milk stations throughout large cities, as in the United States, and to imitate the American farms, where one or more cows are almost considered part of the scenery. One must travel far through Japan to see cows. Ikagami produces figures which tell the story graphically. The United States consumes 100 gallons of milk per capita, Switzerland 111 gallons each year, while Japan consumes but .48 gallon.

FILMS WILL COST $115,000,000.

1928-1929 Expected to Be One of the Biggest In Movie History.

That the year of 1928-29 will be one of the biggest production years in the history of motion picture industry is borne out by figures given out in Hollywood by the Association of Motion Picture Producers.

These figures show that a schedule of the various producing companies will bring an expenditure of $115,000,000 in production cost alone on the coast for the year.

Studio improvements will involve more than $5,000,000, while the studio payroll in Hollywood and surrounding territory for one week takes off vast proportions with more than $1,000,000 spent in weekly salaries with the various studios employing more than 25,000 people.

In addition, the advertising of the motion picture industry for the year runs into proportions with more than $67,000,000. The outstanding feature of the new year's program is the developing of New Studio City in San Fernandino valley where Mack Sennett and Paramount have already built stages and others own sites on which they anticipate building at an early date.

CAMBODIA LIKES JAZZ

PNOMPENH, THE CAPITAL, IS A BUSY PLACE.

Malayans, Annamites and Indians Mix With French—Elephants and Ox-Carts Compel Autos to Keep Within Speed Limit.

A busy Oriental capital, where modern French buildings rise and ancient pagodas from the skyline; where gaily bedecked royal elephants and rickety native ox-carts still compel foreign-made motor cars to keep well under the speed limit on paved, electrically lighted streets; and where French colonists rub elbows with a hodge podge of Cambodians, Malayans, Annamites, Indians, and half-castes of all of these. Such, according to a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographical Society, is Pnompenh, capital of Cambodia, recently the scene of the elaborate funeral procession of King Sisowath.

"Most travellers who visit Pnompenh are on their way to Angkor, venerable city of Khmer culture, which lies farther north. A brief stop at the capital's welcome, however, for the little Cambodian city, with its sand and lofty palms and towering tropical trees is restful to the eyes of the river-boat passengers after monotonous miles of rice fields, thick jungle growth and flat country that border the river bank nearly all the way up from Saigon. And it is a relief to be out of the cruising radius of persistent Mekong mosquitoes.

"Stevedores by the score, swarming over cargo boats at the quay indicate that the capital is important commercially. Situated at the junction of a branch from the Great Lake of Cambodia and the main channel of the Mekong from the Tibetan hills, large quantities of fish, rice, indigo and cotton from Upper Burma, portions of Siam, Laos and northern Cambodia are brought here for marketing. Smaller cargoes from nearby farms and paddy fields arrive in the hundreds of sampans and smaller craft that dart about the tiny harbor like so many water beetles.

"When a boat docks there is a rush for the 'Permission Office' where 'permissions' are granted to visit the king's palace. But those who expected to see a richly-adorned abode of an eastern potentate are soon disillusioned. Without, the several buildings called the palace are unpretentious, and within there is little that would attract more than ordinary attention except a life-sized Buddha of solid gold studded with diamonds and a hallway floor laid with engraved silver tiles. Five or six hundred female retainers live in a separate colony, among whom are the dancing girls. They, in their golden gowns, royal jewels, and flaras that resemble miniature carved steeples, have become famous for their charm and grace.

"Near by is the Khmer Museum, with a collection of sculptured stones, implements of war and peace, and the weatherbeaten royal pagoda; and an ancient temple approached by a long flight of steps with a stone railing representing Naga, the sacred seven-headed cobra. Here the sacred reptile adorning the roofs of some of Pnompenh's buildings resembles crooked lightning rods on American farm houses.

"The city's thoroughfare that has a right to be called an avenue leads from the palace to the public park. Up all his friends, and with offers of free sails in his craft got them to work clearing the field. He finished the job the day before his birthday.

Next morning he was at the ferry ready for passengers. A year later he paid back his mother's £20 and gave his father $1,000. At twenty-three he had three vessels and about $8,000 in cash. He scrapped his sails and took-to modern steam sailing.

At seventy Vanderbilt made another change. He sold his steamships and went into railways.

"A stroll along the 'Main street' reveals a bit of life in the Cambodian capital. There are Frenchmen in white linens and broad-brimmed sun hats; bronzed, native women, with boyish bobs, attired in bright colored cloth which is draped to form bewildering breeches; Indian money changers in white ready to begin an innocent victim; and unkempt cooks hired by the ambulatory kitchens equipped to serve a la carte rice or odoriferous fried fish. Other shoppers are out of sweetmeats and trinkets, while their wares, a strange confusion, weird strains emanate from the Annamite colonial official lives in a palatial home amid broad lawns and flowering trees.

A Bank-Note Issue.

Do you know why the numbers on bank-notes are so twice? In the eighteenth century, when Bank of England notes had to be sent by mail, they were cut into halves and the separate halves sent by different mails. This was to prevent the enemy from falling into possession of, for when the mails were carried by land they were frequently robbed by highwaymen. But cutting the notes, the sender could await the acknowledgment one half before dispatching the other.

Naturally the matching of these halves was a difficult and costly business, and for this reason an arrangement was made in 1791 for numbers to appear on both halves of bank-notes.

Address and Presentation

On Thursday and Friday evenings, June 21st and 22nd, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Merrick and Mary were given farewell presentations at the Parsonage, Morven. Notwithstanding the wet weather on Thursday, a large number of the Switzerville friends came for the occasion. On Friday evening the Violet friends came to pleasantly surprise their Pastor and Mrs. Merrick and Mary, before leaving for Cannifton.

In replying to the addresses of appreciation, Mr. and Mrs. Merrick said that the kindness of the friends had been overwhelming and very much more than they deserved. Yet they were grateful to receive these expressions of their appreciation because it helped them to realize very deeply that their work among them had not been in vain.

Presentation and Address from Switzerville Appointment

Switzerville, June 21st, 1928.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Merrick and Mary,—It is with mingled feelings that we are gathered here to-night, feelings of sadness in losing a beloved Pastor, but also feelings of joy in knowing that some other flock is receiving a devoted and untiring Pastor. It is all for the best that such partings should occur, and we assure you that our prayers will follow you in your new field of labor.

You came here to a broken circuit, you are leaving a united circuit, and have done everything humanly possible to make it so. You have had your trials, you have met obstacles, but you have met them and overcome them with that undaunted courage so characteristic of Englishmen. You have been a good soldier of Jesus Christ. Your sermons on each and every Sabbath have been intensely spiritual, always pointing us to our Lord Jesus Christ.

Please accept this purse as a remembrance of the folks in Switzerville, and also accept our wishes for a long and happy ministry in God's vineyard.

May the Good Lord, who has sustained you in times past, continue to bless you in your work.

VERNON PAUL,
EVERETON WATERS,
STANLEY WATERS,
JOHN WILSON.

Presentation and Address from Violet Appointment

To Mr. and Mrs. Merrick and daughter, Mary,—We, the members and adherents of the Violet United Church of Canada, have assembled together to-night that we may in some measure express the high esteem in which we have held the services of our Pastor, Rev. Mr. Merrick, and his partner in life.

The six years of your sojourn among us have glided swiftly, pleasantly, and may we not say profitably away; and we regret that you are leaving us, to take up your duties in a new field of labor. At the same time we are comforted to know that you will not be so far removed from us but that we shall still hold fast the same loving friendship which now joins us in heart, and hope to meet many times again. With one accord all unite in invoking God's presence with you in whatever vineyard He may call you to perform the work of the Spirit, and then through all the vicissitudes of life that may or may not chance to come, all shall be well.

We ask you now to accept these gifts as tokens of loving friendship, that they may be memorials to keep ever green a remembrance between us.

To Mr. and Mrs. Merrick we present this electric reading lamp and candle holders. To Miss Mary, we present this every clock.

Signed on behalf of the members and adherents of Violet United Church of Canada.

Address and Presentation from Maple Leaf Institute

Napanee, Ont., June 25th, 1928.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Merrick,—On the eve of your departure from our midst, we, the members of the Maple Leaf Institute, desire to thank you for the help you have so willingly given us in our work. We have always found that in time of need you have both been ready at all times to assist us by your kindly advice as well as by the addresses you have given at our meetings, also the songs so beautifully rendered, and although we realize you are entering a larger field of endeavour, it is with a very deep feeling of regret that we find you are about to leave us. We feel that we are not only losing our Pastor, but two very dear friends, and we would like you to accept these Membership Pins as a slight token of our best wishes for you in your new labours, and also the appreciation we feel for the kindly interest you have taken in our Institute while you have been with us.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Maple Leaf Women's Institute.

MRS. SPERRY H. FRASER,
Secretary Treasurer.

WEDDING BELLS.

Cook—Drew

A quiet June wedding took place on June 16th, at 10 o'clock, in Sydenham Street United Church, when Della Ellen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Drew, of Moscow, was united in marriage to Thomas Harold Cook, only son of Mr. Simon and the late Mrs. Cook, of Wesley.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Baldwin. The youthful bride looked lovely in a dress of shell lovely georgette, with hose and gloves to match, while her shoes were black satin. She was attended by Miss Maggie Cook, sister of the groom, while the groom was attended by Mr. Victor Drew, brother of the bride.

The gift to the bridesmaid was a string of pearls and to the best man a set of gold cuff links. After the ceremony lunch was served at the Grand Cafe. The happy couple left by train for Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a suit of sand Kasha, with hat to match. They will reside near Wesley, where the groom is a prosperous young farmer.

OBITUARY

Samuel Archibald Switzer.

The death of Samuel Archibald Switzer, in his 78th year, occurred on Tuesday, June 19th. Deceased had been in failing health for the past few months.

The late Mr. Switzer was born in Camden Township in 1850, and was a prosperous farmer, both in Camden and Seymour, having spent forty years in the latter place, coming to reside in Trenton about nine years ago.

His first wife was Miss Catharine McKeown, who predeceased him five years ago. In 1924 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Effie Procter, who survives him. He is also survived by one son, Joseph Albert, of Frankford, and two granddaughters, Mrs. Harry Barmum and Miss Irene, both daughters of Wm. Ford, of Seymour; and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret South, of Roblin, and Mrs. Hannah Denison, of Napanee.

The funeral took place from his late residence, Dominion St., on Thursday, June 21st. Service was conducted by Rev. C. B. Sissons, assisted by. Rev. Mr. Daniels, at Zion Church, Seymour, where interment was made beside his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Ford and Mrs. Wm. Watson, both of whom predeceased him some years ago.

IN MEMORIAM

Sacred to the memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Wm. J. Walsh, Napanee, No. 3, who departed this life June 30th, 1927.

While midnight stars are gleaming,
On a lone and silent grave,
Beneath it sleeps our darling mother,
The one we could not save.
Her weary hours of pain,
Her tortured nights are past,
Her ever patient worn-out frame
Has found sweet rest at last.
Long days, long nights she bore her pain,
To wait for cure, but all in vain.
Till God himself knew what was best
He took her home and gave her rest.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear Mother,
Peaceful in your grave so low.
You no more will join our number,
You no more our voices hear.
Yet again we hope to meet you,
When the day of life is fled.
And in heaven with joy to greet you,
Where no farewell tears are shed;
As we loved you, mother, so we miss you,
In our memory you are near, loved, remembered, longed for always,
Bring many a silent tear.

Sadly missed by her daughters, Nellie and Ada. 26ap

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our darling Laura, (Mrs. James Herrington), who departed this life on July 1st, 1920.

The blow was hard, the shock severe,
We little thought her death so near;
It is only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting even with a farewell.

Sadly missed by Mother, Mrs. M. Young, Sister and Brothers. 26a

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving memory of Annie Norris, beloved wife of Wm. Norris, who passed away June 26th, 1926.

Two long and lonely years have passed
Since dear Annie went to sleep;
God called her home to be with Him
And make his angel band complete.
We miss her kind and willing hand,
Her fond and loving care;
Our home is dark without her,
We miss her everywhere.
We loved her, no tongue can tell
How much we loved her and how well;
God loved her, too, and thought it best,
To take her home with Him to rest.
Ever remembered by Husband and Family. 26a

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Wm. Walsh, who passed away June 30th, 1927.

We often think of days gone by,
When we were all together,
The shades of our lives is past.
And our loved one gone forever.
To-night the stars are shining,
Upon a lonely grave;
Where sleepeth there without dreaming.
One we loved but could not save.
Sleep on, dear mother, your cares are ended,
Rest in peace, your work is done;
You are gone where those who loved you,
Will meet you one by one.
Sadly missed by her Sons and Daughters. 26ap

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Wm. J. Walsh, who passed away June 30th, 1927.

Her charming ways and smiling face
Are a pleasure to recall;
She had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
She did not fail to do her best.
Her heart was true and tender,
She wanted her for heaven she left,
That's something to remember.
She bade no one a last farewell,
She said good-bye to none,
The heavenly gates were opened wide,
A loving voice said "come".
Forget her, no, we never will,
Although dear one you're lost from sight;
Her memory is as fresh to-day,
As on the day she passed away.

Even remembered by her Sons, Edmund, Harry, Percy, John and Perdy.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond remembrance of my Father, Wm. Joseph Young, who departed this life on June 28th, 1927.

Not forgotten by his daughter, Edith. 26ap

The explorer arrived on the South Sea Island bringing with him many wonderful things the natives had never seen before. These included a mirror, which he presented to the chief of the local tribe.

Gazing at his own reflection, the chief mistook it for a picture of his father, and carefully hid the mirror away. Each day, however, he would carefully take it out for another reverent inspection.

Then one day his wife, a lady of uncertain temper, discovered the mirror, and looking into it, exclaimed, indignantly :

BRITISH ARMY BOYS

Three Thousand Boys Always Under Training for Various Trades in the Army.

It was recently announced in the newspapers that the British War Office in conjunction with the National Institute of Industrial Psychology, London, is experimenting with a scheme for boys entering the British army. There are three thousand boys always under training for various trades in the British army, and these boys are now being tested psychologically to determine the particular trade for which they are most fitted.

The other day I had the privilege of visiting the National Institute of Industrial Psychology, London, writes Margaret Hillman, where I was shown the various tests that have been devised for discovering the special abilities required for different types of work.

An interesting test for mechanical ability was a box divided into twelve compartments, each containing the separate parts of, say, a lock, a mousetrap, a bicycle bell, and other simple mechanical devices. Each boy is asked to put the articles together, ten minutes being allowed to do them all.

I was then shown a test for general intelligence consisting of twenty questions to be answered in nine minutes, such as: "A signpost stands at four cross roads running north, south, east, and west, but an accident has caused the post to twist so that the east finger now points to the south. A traveller walks down the road marked west. In what direction is he walking?"

For speed and dexterity there was an interesting test of placing little wooden pegs into holes in a block of wood. The boy is asked to fill in one row of holes as quickly as possible, and then take the pegs out again, using his right hand only. Still holding the pegs in his right hand, he must put them back again into the row of holes without dropping any. Needless to say the boy whose fingers are all thumbs invariably fails in this test.

A test for reasoning is a series of eighteen problems that must be solved in ten minutes, such as: "In a certain territory 80 per cent. of the inhabitants were against German rule, and 60 per cent. were against French rule. Were there any against both French and German rule?"

The most unexpected test of all is a list of twenty-eight personal qualities with their opposite defects. Each boy is asked to mark the one trait in each pair that he possesses. "Orderly or Disorderly? Patient or Impatient? Vain or Modest?" "Industrious or Lazy?" This relentless inquisition ends with the searching query: "Superior Character or Inferior Character?"

Boys show remarkable honesty in answering these very personal questions, I was told. They seldom claim virtues that they do not possess, and cheerfully admit all their little failings.

"PADDER TENNIS."

London Plays a Sort of Miniature Lawn Tennis.

The new outdoor sport of London is "padder tennis," a sort of miniature lawn tennis, played with solid rubber balls, wooden rackets, a net and court, all designed so that any stroke used in "padder tennis" produces exactly the same result as though made in ordinary tennis.

Thus it gives actual tennis practice, yet can be played on small suburban lawns where tennis is impossible because of space limits. The rules are the same as in tennis, but the courts are only one quarter the size of a tennis double court, and the entire set, consisting of balls, four rackets, net, ropes, posts, and tapes for marking, costs about three pounds.

The new game was first supported by W. T. Tilden, the former world's champion, and has since been approved by many prominent tennis players. The L.C.C., realizing its value, had a demonstration recently in Battersea Park, and has decided to lay down four hard courts, charging the public twopence per head per game. Other parks are also to have hard courts.

A Big Producer of Cocoa.

Half the world's supply of cocoa is produced within the relatively small region of the Gold Coast, the output for March alone from that territory being over 12,000 tons. So large is the annual amount raised that the raisers are complaining that their crop is handled by too few buyers and prices are very irregular. It is thought that this situation may be remedied by a movement originated by the West India Committee in London for the establishment there of a Cocoa Exchange on similar lines to that of New York.

Robert Burns' Homestead.

Robert Burns' homestead of Ellisland, six miles from Dumfries, where the poet wrote "Auld Lang Syne" and "Tam o' Shanter," has been bequeathed to the British nation by John Wilson Williamson of Westside-wood, Lanarkshire, who acquired it five years ago.

JERUSALEM'S WATER SUPPLY

Engineers Are Now Using Old Reservoir, Which Was Built In Days of Pontius Pilate.

The tapping of the spring in the Ain Farah gorge, with a view to increasing the water supply of Jerusalem, calls attention not only to this historic gathering-place of the shepherds of Palestine among the hills of Judea, but to the vexatious problem of how to provide an efficient water supply for the Holy City, writes Harold J. Shepstone, F.R.G.S., in Chambers' Journal. Ever since the British took over the city from the Turks they have been harassed over this question of water. This is remarkable when it is remembered that Jerusalem has a population of nearly seventy thousand, and is one of the oldest cities in the world.

Yet during recent months the shortage of water was so acute that building operations were stopped and water had to be rationed, the allowance per family per day being five gallons. Furthermore, this was obtainable only on six days of the seven, and it had to suffice for drinking, cooking, washing and cleaning.

When, as a result of the World War, Jerusalem was taken over from the Turks, it was entirely dependent upon the rainfall for its supply of water. This was caught during the rainy season on the flat roofs of the dwellings, and stored in underground cisterns until needed. One of the first acts of the British was to clean out these cisterns, some six thousand in number, repair, number and cover them over. Some of these cisterns had not been cleaned out for forty years or more, and their condition may be imagined.

On the coming of the British, the Jews began to return in large numbers to the city of their forefathers, and it was evident to all that something must be done to increase the water supply.

So British engineers went to the Virgin's Fountain, just outside the city. This is a spring, but inclined to run dry in summer months. They sunk a well here, and managed to increase the flow. Then some fifteen miles south of the city an old reservoir, known as Birket Arroub, built by Pontius Pilate, nearly two thousand years ago, was repaired, and this fine relief water was pumped to the city reservoir, holding 2,250,000 gallons.

Three ancient reservoirs known as the Pools of Solomon, lying to the south of Bethlehem, and said to have been built by Solomon, were also repaired.

Referring to the recent work in connection with the spring at the Ain Farah gorge, Mr. Shepstone adds:

One of the first tasks of the engineers was to build a roadway down the gorge. On account of its steep-ness and the rocky character of the country, this proved a great feat. It called for a great deal of blasting and the construction of many hairpin bends.

The spring itself gushes out from a mass of broken rocks and then flows for a considerable distance through the ravine, turning it into a delightful oasis. From time immemorial the gorge has been the gathering place of the shepherds of Palestine. This wild spot is associated with the Twenty-third Psalm, for here David is said to have spent his boyhood days tending the sheep, and it was the experience he gained here as a shepherd that led him to compose the Psalm, "The Lord if my shepherd ——."

The spring has been enclosed, a tank erected, and a pumping plant installed. Half way up the gorge there is a second pumping station and a third at Anathoth, the home of Jeremiah. But means of these stations the water is raised to the main tank on the highest point of Mount Scopus.

This is virtually a continuation of the ridge of Olivet, and overlooks Jerusalem. The capacity of this tank is two hundred thousand gallons, equal to twenty-seven hours' flow of the spring. The engineers, however, have arranged for water still to flow through the gorge, and the shepherds will continue to gather here as they have done since David's day.

Where Dr. Manette Lived.

Carlisle House, Soho, recommended as "especially worthy of preservation" by the Royal Commission on Historical Monuments, is one of the very few seventeenth century houses remaining in London in practically the same condition, externally and internally, as when first built.

It was here that Dr. Manette and his daughter Lucie lodged, as described by Dickens in his "Tale of Two Cities," to which circumstance the nearly adjacent Manette street owes its modern name.

In Stuart times, when it was the town residence of the Duke of Carlisle, the mansion stood in the midst of extensive cherry gardens, the last remaining portion of which, at the rear, is being occupied by a "picture palace" now in course of erection.

Consul for Northern Alberta.

H. P. Mouritzen has been appointed Danish Consul for Northern Alberta with headquarters at Edmonton. Increasing Danish settlement, estimated at 3,709 in 1927, is given by the Danish Government as the reason for the establishment of the consulate. The territory will likely extend from 3rd Deer north.

During the last seven years more than 659 war cemeteries have been constructed in France and Belgium. The work of the Imperial War Graves Commission is now nearly completed.

THE MAKING OF INDIA.

Britain's Influence Has Been Great Moral Basis of Progress.

The first gift of the British to India was universal peace in Sweden from foreign invasion and internal disorder, observed Prof. Jodu Nath Sarkar, the eminent Bengali scholar, who is the vice-chancellor of Calcutta University, in a lecture he gave recently.

The speaker added: "The British have admitted us to the entire outside world; not only in Asia, but in all other continents as well; and they have admitted the rest of the world to us in a degree not dreamt of under Moslem rule. India has now been switched on to the main currents of the great moving world outside and made to vibrate with every economic or cultural change there. An isolated life is no longer possible even for our remotest villages."

"It is therefore," continued Prof. Sarkar, "of peculiar advantage to us that in this age of world forces our official language is English and that it has diffused itself all over India as the medium of trading and political and fultural correspondence. No other European language has the world-wide currency of English, or is used by such a large proportion of the human race. And English literature is the richest in the world on account of its own original works as well as the translations from all other languages in almost every branch of thought.

"The greatest gift of the British besides universal peace and the moderation of society—and indeed the direct result of these two forces—is the renaissance which marked our nineteenth century. Modern India owes everything to it, literature, education, thought, and art; but in the last generation it became a moral force and reformed our society and religion; still later, in the third generation from its commencement, it has led to the beginning of the economic moderation of India," concluded the vice-chancellor.—Christian Science Monitor.

FIRE HOUSES FOR WEDDINGS.

London Firm Supplies Staff, Supper, and Champagne.

Hiring a house for a few hours in the west end of London for a ball or wedding reception is likely to be the fashion in the coming season for many Westerners from abroad or the provinces.

A catering expert explained to a Daily Mail reporter that the wealth who wants her daughter's coming-out dance to have a personal touch, instead of being one of several that may be held on the same evening at a hotel, takes the house furnished and staffed, and the charge includes a supply of champagne, supper, and band.

There are houses available for such a purpose in some of the most fashionable residential quarters in London; in Belgrave Square, S.W.; Grosvenor Square, W., and Ennismore Gardens, S.W., to name a few.

A hostess can arrange a wedding reception for about 200 guests in one of these houses for 10s. a head.

For about £100 there would be provided:

Champagne and other refreshments.

Palms and flowers.

Butler, footmen and waiters.

Cloakrooms, with staff.

A ballroom, with band.

Rooms for display of presents.

And a detective.

In Laurier's Honor.

According to the records of the Geographic Board of Canada, Sir Wilfrid Laurier is commemorated in Canada by some seventeen place-names. On the Nova Scotia coast is Laurier Rock; in Quebec are the villages of Laurier, Laurierville and Mont Laurier, as well as Laurier Township. Ontario also has a Laurier Township, and has, too, a Laurier Lake. Manitoba has a Laurier Village. Saskatchewan has a Laurier Municipality, while in Alberta are Laurier Municipality and Laurier Lake. In Mackenzie District, Northwest Territories, is Laurier river, and in British Columbia are Laurier Pass, Laurier Peak, Laurier Cove and Mount Sir Wilfrid. British Columbia also has a Lady Laurier Mountain, and there is a Mount Laurier in Yukon.

Town of Wealthy Girls.

Women predominate in the town of Hinckley, Leicestershire, England, there being nine women to every man, and most of the girls are well-to-do.

Hinckley is responsible for half the silk stockings produced in England. But though the stockings they make might be good enough for most girls, the Hinckley girls don't wear them. Why? Because they earn anything from £2 to £6 a week, working only five days a week, and can afford better than their brothers and fathers and can afford Paris hose.

Hinckley girls are pretty and shapely of figure; they wear good clothes, and wear them well.

Seeks High Rail Speed.

An engineer in England is working on a plan to increase the speed of railroads to 200 and 300 miles an hour. He plans to eliminate trains, substituting a single car containing the propelling unit, which will be operated by electricity or gasoline and streamline to decrease air resistance to the utmost limit. Each car will carry from 40 to 350 persons, and there is a special arrangement replacing the usual flanged tire to prevent derailment.

Calgary's Population.

Calgary's municipal report on the city's population places the total at 73,300 this spring. The figures given by the census of 1926 were 65,513.

British-Made Automobiles.

Canada buys only one-tenth and Australia one-third of the automobiles they need from British countries.

A JUNGLE WOMAN OF OLD.

Found Wax-Tinted Skeleton Among Bones of Lions and Hyenas.

At Boccadifalco, near Palermo, a prehistoric burial place has been discovered in a gravel quarry.

Remains unearthed include a human skeleton of the new Stone Age, some part of a baby elephant, or dwarf elephant, and relics of lions, hyenas, cave bears, gazelles and jungle animals generally.

Near the human skeleton, which lay on its side with the knees bent and the hands folded as if in prayer, were earthenware vases decorated with primitive designs of lines and dots.

This prehistoric person's bones appear to have been preserved by the process still surviving among the Mato Grosso Indians of South America, of removing the flesh from the bones of the dead before burial and treating them with a red wax.

Traces of red have, in fact, been found on the Boccadifalco skeleton. It is supposed to be that of a full-grown woman.

Photographs Ball'-Eye Hit.

The latest modification of the favorite pastime of amusement parks—the "hit-the-nigger-and-get-a-cigar"—has just been patented in Paris by A. Dufour, and rewards the winner with a flashlight photograph of himself winning the prize. The darkly-complexioned victim is replaced by an effigy, holding the cigar in his mouth, and the contestant tries to hit the cigar with a rubber ball. If he succeeds, an automatic camera and flash-light is set off, and the winner receives the photograph.

Eggs and Ham-mer.

To show how strong egg shells may be made by the proper feeding of hens, a device has been exhibited which delivers a 25-pound tap three times a minute on the end of an egg for hours at a time without cracking the shell.

Largest Artificial Lake.

A gigantic thrift plan worked out by the United States Reclamation Service has resulted in the formation of the largest artificial lake in the world. It is formed by the newly built Elephant Butte dam, 125 miles from El Paso, Texas, on the Rio Grande river.

The great inland sea has a shore line of 200 miles, covers fifty square miles and impounds water enough to cover an area equal to the state of Delaware. Its irrigates 150,000 acres of land below the dam in Texas and New Mexico.

An elevation of 4,000 feet gives this land a good, healthful climate where wheat can grow in winter and a crop of Egyptian corn can mature in the summer on the same land. Alfalfa for range animals is the chief crop, with long-staple cotton pushing it for first place.—Thrift Magazine.

The Home Doctor
Baby's Own Tablets

Baby's Own Tablets meet all the need that exists in every home where there are young children. They are a laxative, but do not gripe. They are soothing, but do not contain one particle of opiate or other ingredient that can in any way do the slightest harm to the most delicate child.

Baby's Own Tablets relieve fever, relieve colic, banish constipation and indigestion, check diarrhoea, sweeten the stomach and allay the irritation that accompanies the cutting of teeth. They quiet the nerves and promote health-giving sleep and repose. In fact they are as good as a doctor in the home, and thousands have used them for their little ones she will use nothing else. Thousands of mothers testify to this. Among them is Mrs. Hurst, Pine Falls, Man., who says:—"I was told to try Baby's Own Tablets by a friend who had used them for all her little ones and said she could not do without them. After using them for my baby boy I quite agree with her and certainly think they are the finest medicine in the world for little ones."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

INDIAN CORN.

All Available Evidence Points to It Being Indigenous to America.

The question as to where Indian corn had its origin has never yet been fully determined. Like most other things it descended from ancient times, and all available evidence points to it being indigenous to America.

The fact that the American Indians celebrate the harvest season with religious song and dance may have some connection with this origin.

It is a monoecious plant, the male producing the flowers in a panicle at the summit while the female bears the cobs in the axle of the leaves; the grain growing on spikes, which are tasseled and silvathed.

These sheaths are used by the Burmese for the outer covering of their gigantic cigars while the tender leaves are utilized for the manufacture of the same weed by the natives of South America.

As it possesses great nutritious properties, it is one of the most extensively used grains in the world. There are more than three hundred known kinds, the plants being of different sizes, while the seed varies in shape, color and size.

Our Foreign Words.

How many foreign words do you use in a day? Perhaps hundreds, especially if we regard American slang words as belonging to a foreign language.

It is true that by usage many words have become part of our own speech, but pool is Keltic, ill is Scandinavian, yacht is Dutch, waltz is German, phantom is Greek, and extra is Latin.

Nearly every military term is French, grenade is Spanish, macaroni is Italian, cañon is Portuguese, chints is Hindu, lilac is Persian.

Sabbath comes from Hebrew, alcohol is Arabic, bosh is Turkish, sago is Malayan, tea is Chinese, and skunk is American Indian.

Kicking a Tire is no way to test it!

ONLY a pressure gauge can ever give you a true indication of inflation.

There is a correct pressure for your tires. It depends on the size of the tire and the wheel load. At that pressure your tires will give you maximum mileage. If your tire inflation goes three pounds below that correct pressure you cut mileage from the life of your tires.

Use a gauge.

Better still, drop in at a Dominion Tire Depot once a week and have every tire inspected, and the pressure checked. Let an expert search for cuts and bruises. Often a slight repair will prevent a blow-out.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

"Well, I always did say that Mrs. Brown would never marry again."

"I suppose she thinks there's not another man in the world like her late husband."

"No. Quite the contrary. She thinks there is, and she's afraid she might get him."

It Testifies for Itself.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil needs no testimonial of its powers other than itself. Wherever tries it for coughs or colds, for cuts or contusions, for sprains or burns, for pains in the limbs or body, will know that the medicine proves itself and needs no guarantee. This shows why this Oil is in general use.

Patrick had had his pocket picked and was stranded in the great metropolis without a place to lay his head.

He crossed the road and entered the imposing portals of a magnificent hotel. A night clerk informed him that the first-floor rooms were ten-and six, the second-floor eight-and-six, and so on—each floor being two shillings cheaper than the one below it.

Patrick counted the money he had left and then led the clerk outside.

"But," protested the clerk, "don't you want a room, at all?"

"No," answered the son of Erin, having cast an eye over the hotel; "your building ain't high enough."

Mothers Value This Oil. — Mothers who know how suddenly croup may seize their children and how necessary prompt action is in applying relief, always keep on hand a supply of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, because experience has taught them that this is an excellent preparation for the treatment of this ailment. And they are wise, for its various uses render it a valuable medicine.

Henry—"I hear Walter's engagement's been broken off. How's that, old man?"

Herbert—"He was trying to tell Phyllis how time stood still whenever he looked in her eyes, and it appears the silly ass didn't get it quite right. At any rate, he gave her to understand that, in his opinion, her face would stop a clock."

Help for Asthma. Neglect gives asthma a great advantage. The trouble, once it has secured a foothold, fastens its grip on the bronchial passages tenaciously. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is daily benefiting cases of asthma of long standing. Years of suffering, however, might have been prevented had the remedy been tried when the trouble was in its first stages. Do not neglect asthma, but use this preparation at once.

Two college students were arraigned before the magistrate, charged with hurdling the low spots in the road in their motor car.

"Have you a lawyer?" asked the magistrate.

"We're not going to have any lawyer," answered the elder of the students. "We've decided to tell the truth."

In all infantile complaints that are the result of the depredations of worms in the stomach and intestines Miller's Worm Powders are found an effective remedy. They attack the cause of these troubles, and by expelling the worms from the organs insure an orderly working of the system, without which the child cannot maintain its strength or thrive. These powders mean health and improvement.

"But you are not always bothered with poor light, are you?" inquired the gas company's clerk.

"Oh, no, not always!" replied the complaining householder.

"Ah, I thought so. It's only at certain times that you notice it, eh?"

"Yes, only after dark!"

Complete in itself, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator does not require the assistance of any other Medicine to make it effective. It does not fail to do its work.

The sailor had been showing the old lady visitor over the ship. In thanking him she said:—"I see that by the rules of your ship ties are forbidden." "Lor' bless yer 'art, ma'am," replied Jack, "we 'ere the apples in the Garden of Eden."

Paring a corn is both risky and ineffective. It is much better to use Holloway's Corn Remover and eradicate them entirely.

"Your wife is very systematic, isn't she?"

"Yes, very. She works on the theory that you can find whatever you want when you don't want it by looking where it wouldn't be if you did want it!"

MAKING MEN INVISIBLE.

Inanimate Bodies of Men and Animals Transparent.

A Russian savant, Dr. Vassilief, announces, after many years of experiments, that he has succeeded in making the inanimate bodies of men and animals transparent and invisible, and that he hopes so achieve the same success shortly with living bodies.

"I do not see much practical interest in making living human bodies invisible," explained Dr. Vassilief, who went to Paris to carry on his work after the Russian revolution, "but it will be of tremendous therapeutical importance if I can make them transparent, as it will then be possible to study and treat all kinds of organic and functional diseases with perfect knowledge and assurance.

"If the bones and organs themselves have become invisible also, they can be slightly colored. The practice of surgery and medicine will become far more efficacious and irrelevant, and dissection will be unnecessary."

Dr. Vassilief's process consists of treating the body with various acids and reagents, and he has a large number of specimens in his laboratory to prove the success of his methods.

Hawaiian Volcanoes.

A new road in the Hawaii National Park has just been completed at an expense of $150,000, making accessible a chain of eight extinct volcanic craters. Though these are smaller than the huge fire-mountains which give Hawaii its chief fame, they are of great interest both as natural spectacles and as scientific "specimens" demonstrating certain phases in volcanology. The craters all lie along a great fissure in the earth, which was formerly a source of great lava flows, and from which a small flow issued as recently as 1922.

DISTRICT ANNUAL MEETING OF THE INSTITUTE OF LENNOX COUNTY

The thirty-first District Annual Meeting of the Institutes of Lennox County met in Odessa Town Hall, on Wednesday, June 20th, at 2 p.m. The able President, Mrs. Milliken, herself a pioneer Institute member, was in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of the Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

It was decided that Mrs. Raymond Fretts, of Maple Leaf Institute, act as press reporter for the meeting. The President welcomed to the meeting Mrs. J. D. Shibley of Harrowsmith, and Mr. Laughland, Agricultural Representative of Napanee, and those present waited in pleasant anticipation for the time to come when they should address us.

The address of welcome was very nicely given by Mrs. Smith, President of Odessa Institute. In closing she said she hoped to hear discussed at this meeting two questions that were uppermost in the minds of their members, namely, maternal mortality and co-operation of committees with schools and teachers. She expressed pleasure at being able to include in her welcome for the first time a Junior Institute.

Mrs. Reid Roblin, of Adolphustown, very ably replied to this welcome, and gave us many beautiful thoughts to store in memory. She closed with that beautiful poem of Henry Van-Dyke's, found in our Public School readers, "Let me do my work from day to day", etc.

The President then gave a very concise and interesting address. She announced that this district had decided not to join Frontenac in exhibiting flowers at their Fall Fair, but to confine exhibits to Napanee and Odessa Fairs for the present. She said, there were ten senior branches and one junior branch in the district, and all were represented at the meeting. She traced the growth of Institutes from the first Institute at Stoney Creek, Ont., until now there are 1070 Institutes in Ontario, and over 7000 in the world. It has been well said that "pluck" not "luck" is the reason why women succeed in Institute work.

The minutes of the last District Annual at Adolphustown were read by the Secretary, Mrs. A. P. Young, and approved by the meeting.

The financial report showed a balance of $3.96 on hand for district funds, and a total balance of $935.30 on hand among the Institutes of the district.

After a discussion some matters not clearly understood were arranged satisfactorily. It was moved by Mrs. Cummings, seconded by Mrs. Phippen, that the summer series delegates' entertainment and transportation expenses be borne by the branches. Carried. It was moved by Mrs. Hamm, seconded by Mrs. T. Craven, that the sum of 5c. per member be paid by all branches to the district funds. Carried.

The reports from the eleven Branch Institutes of the district were then given, namely from Adolphustown, Bath, Bay View, Conway, Ernestown, Maple Leaf, Napanee, Odessa, Violet, Wilton and Napanee Junior Institute. These reports showed wonderful work accomplished by the branches during the year. The work included lectures, addresses, papers, short courses, debates, mock trial, demonstrations, contests, music, current events, prizes for general proficiency in schools, school first aid kits, flowers and fruit for the sick, Xmas stuffs at fall fairs and plowing match, mother and daughter banquet, naming of streets, improvements on community halls, aiding and managing libraries, piecing quilts, layettes for deserving mothers, entertainments, roof on church sheds, aid to unfortunate fire sufferers, and baskets of Xmas cheer.

Adolphustown is the oldest branch in the district. Bath is the "baby branch" being organized within the last month. Bay View is saving diligently to build a community hall. Violet showed work equal to the best of them, and has only been organized fifteen months. Already every available resident lady is a member of the Institute. Napanee Junior Branch is but recently organized, and is a result of the four weeks' course provided for girls by the Department of Agriculture during February. They aim to devote their attention to social service work since after careful consideration they deem it the most worthy.

A vocal duet was then given by Miss Babcock and Mrs. Reid, of Wilton, and Miss Helen Milling, of Maple Leaf, gave a splendid reading.

Mr. Laughland was then asked to speak and favoured us with a short address. He asked that each Institute try to arrange for a special meeting during July, when a representative from the Department of Agriculture would be in the district and give a poultry culling demonstration wherever possible. He encouraged each branch to hold a flower exhibit at a meeting during the latter part of August. He asked the support of the Institutes for the Chautauqua, which is going to visit Napanee again this summer. He very kindly offered to show moving pictures to the Institutes and to help in whatever way he could.

We were pleased to note in the reports that so many of the Institutes have availed themselves of Mr. Laughland's able services.

Mrs. Crowe, of Ernestown, favoured the audience with a vocal solo.

Mrs. T. Asselstine and daughter sang a pleasing duet. Miss Rutton, who was sent by Adolphustown to the Guelph Girls' Conference, gave a report.

Mrs. Shibley, the speaker of the day, and Provincial Delegate, then spoke and gave many points on Provincial Federation. This federation is ideal in linking up our strength but for service. Our efforts must not end in our own community. There are now Dominion and Imperial Federations, and we feel proud to belong to a world wide institution. Seventeen delegates represent our Ontario federation—one from each sub-division chosen by the delegates from the districts and they express the ideals of our Institutes. Such questions as maternal mortality would be remedied if such an organization as our Federation took it up, whereas the efforts of a single institute here and there are not effective. The Federation has helped materially in classifying the work of the standing committees by their co-operation with the Department. The study of health takes first place and should be stressed in all branches. Home economics is helped by the short courses. Each branch should review the League of Nations' bulletins as an aid to Education, Agriculture, Legislation, Immigration and Immigration, Relief and Historical research are worthy topics. Canadian Industries is also important, and it is largely through the work of Institutes that there has been a reduction in hydro rates in Ontario. She asked the Institutes to censor the books for the libraries in their communities. She suggested a new Community Song book now available. Somehow this address was very inspiring, and lifted all above the small and petty problems of the work.

A solo was then given by Miss Sproule, of Odessa. A collection amounting to $11.03 was taken. Mrs. Phippen and Mrs. Day were appointed to audit the books.

Mrs. Shibley then took charge of the election of officers. The District very reluctantly accepted the resignation of the Past President, Mrs. Miller. She has certainly been a leader to all the Institutes, and as such shall she be missed. The officers for the new year are as follows :—

President—Mrs. F. Hamm.

1st Vice President—Mrs. E. Wright.

2nd Vice President—Mrs. J. Laughland.

Secretary Treasurer—Mrs. A. P. Young.

Honourary President—Mrs. Miller.

Federation Representative — Mrs. Ralph Hamm.

Member of Executive to Kingston Convention—Mrs. Dr. Mabee.

Auditors for next year—Mrs. Roblin and Mrs. Phippen.

The new President then took the chair and gave thanks for her election.

The meeting closed by singing "God Save the King".

The Odessa ladies served a delicious lunch of ice cream and cake to about 160.

Mrs. Snider, of Wilton, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Odessa for their entertainment. This was seconded by Mrs. T. B. Anderson, and heartily voiced by everyone.

An invitation from Maple Leaf Institute for the District Annual Convention in June, 1929, was accepted.

STONE TREE 1,000 FEET TALL.

Found in the Big Bend Country of Texas.

Four Governmental departments at Washington have recently all stirred up over a new issue. The United States Forest Service, Geological Survey, National Parks Bureau and Smithsonian Institution are having a thrilling time all their own over a discovery of a petrified tree in Texas whose stump measures 40 feet in diameter, that extends 100 feet underground and when it flourished, millions of years ago, must have hovered 1,000 feet above the ground level.

There are two parties, pro-petrified tree and anti-petrified tree, with their blocs of scientific folk taking sides and making preparations to send expeditions to the Big Bend country of Texas to learn the truth.

The Big Bend in the Mexosoic age was a habitat for the dinosaur, the enormous three-toed lizard, fossils of whose vertebrae and limb bones have been unearthed four miles south of the Big Bend post office and identified by Prof. S. W. Williston, of Chicago University. Before the fierce dinosaur roved this country, and when it was covered by enormous crocodiles, oysters 30 inches long, sharks twice as large as those of the present time, turtles, sea urchins, saurians of all sorts and big spouting fish a day but unrecorded life in what is now known as Brewster, Presidio and Jeff Davis counties. For the fossil remains of all these sea animals have been found, and are still being discovered, especially around Rattlesnake mountain.

No wonder, perhaps with such a preconceived set, that a later period developed 1,000 foot trees.

Prof. J. A. Udden, geologist on the Texas University faculty, has made surveys through the region, and discovered many of the above-named fossils, as well as enormous petrified tree trunks. As far back as 1907 he wrote a detailed account of his findings. His own story tells of discovering tree trunks three and six feet in diameter, although he did not run across Gaither's giant. — New York World.

The Wood Makers.

The ancient Britons, we are told, dyed their bodies with woad. The manufacture of dye from woad is still carried on, although it is not used for its original purpose.

Huge, cumbersome wooden rollers drawn by horses are used to crush the plant, and in the Fen country, a small is still in communal use, its processes probably differing little from those of two thousand years ago.

Woad has its uses in newer industries, and for certain purposes its value still remains superior to all modern substitutes.

The Oak Apple.

The oak apple is a gall or growth of the oak round the egg of a tiny insect. The egg hatches into a grub, and in due course the grub eats its way out of the gall. Before it has done so no hole is to be seen.

FASTEST THINGS ON EARTH.

Man Continues His Mania for Moving Faster Than Any Living Thing.

Faster than the wind, quicker than the birds, speedier than the swiftest fish, man continues his mania for moving more rapidly than any living thing on earth, in sea, or air.

The fastest known bird is the spine-tailed swift, which achieves 220 miles an hour over the mountains of Asia, but this is slow compared with the 284.2 miles an hour registered by Flight Lieut. Webster when he won the Schneicer Trophy for Britain with an average speed of 281.6 miles an hour. This dash through the skies has been surpassed by the Italian pilot, Major de Bernardi, with the amazing figure of 318.7 miles an hour.

The fastest fish, the Florida tarpon, covers 80 miles in an hour, but boats have beaten this.

The Indian cheetah, or leopard, is supposed to be the fastest creature on legs, occasionally attaining 60 miles an hour, but this is creeping compared with Capt. Malcolm Campbell's 206.9 miles an hour at Daytona Beach. And now these figures have been passed by Mr. Day Kelsey, whose official speed was given as 207.5 miles an hour.

Despite these achievements, it may be that the engine-driven racer is already obsolete, for it is claimed that a new German rocket car has reached a speed of 425 miles an hour, or rather more than seven miles a minute!

Man, however, is not the swiftest thing that exists. One creature in motion is an instantaneous blur of orange, and has been discovered. This is the Cephenomyia, or doer bot-fly. No bigger than a bumble bee, it can travel 815 miles in an hour—almost half the speed of a rifle bullet.

How is such a flight accomplished? Science knows little about this fly except that it spends much of its time on rocks in high, clear altitudes, exposed to the powerful ultra-violet rays of the sun. Does the insect's dynamo get its tremendous energy from the sun?

Its wings must vibrate several thousand times a second, while the propeller of a flying machine makes only 2,000 revolutions a minute.

No one believes that man has reached the limit of speed his machines are capable of developing, but several problems remain to be solved. When Alcock and Segrave made 203 miles an hour his car travelled two and a half miles beyond the last timed mile, when it was found that the metal of his brake shoes had melted.

Shape is an important element in the attainment of high speed. It seems logical to make a prow sharp so that it will cut the air like a knife, but experiments with artificial hurricanes in wind tunnels have disproved this.

It is possible that in the span of a single lifetime mankind will go from the first crude heavier-than-air machine to 1,000 miles an hour and the globe girdled in a day!

FISH DON'T FORGET.

Certain Animals Have the Ability to Learn by Experience.

Many scientists have made experiments to determine whether or not certain animals have the ability to learn by experience.

Prof. Norman Triplett, an Englishman, recently set out to learn whether a fish, a creature low on the evolutionary scale, could learn to control its natural desire to dine on small minnows. To this end he placed two perch in a glass tank.

They were allowed to feed on minnows for several months. Then a glass partition was slipped in to divide the tank in two. At first the perch rushed forward so that they collided with the barrier full force.

They butted their heads against it a number of times until they appeared to learn that such efforts were fruitless. Later, when the glass barrier was removed, the fish did not molest the minnows; for they seemed to have learned to control themselves. Previous to this experiment many biologists had insisted that fish were incapable of learning.

In another experiment a frog was fed on a diet of cockroaches. Then an electric battery was connected with the damp sand on which the frog was seated; a fine copper wire was connected with the battery and wound around the cockroach. When the frog snapped up the bug he received a mild shock and hastily spat out his mouthful. For nine days the unfortunate frog refused to eat at all, and during several weeks of experiment turned his head away from specimens of this delicious meal available of cockroaches. One experience was sufficient to teach him his lesson.

FASCISTS RESIST ALIEN WORDS.

Young Writers Insist on Italian Equivalents.

Purging of Italy from "foreign influences" is ordently advocated by a school of young fascist writers, for that is baneful in Italian life they attribute to the permeation of alien political, social or literary influences. The desirable elements they designate as manifestations of the true Italian genius.

Foreign words employed in sports and games are the latest intrusions to provoke these Italian Nationalists. If their newspaper crusade succeeds, the words "knock out," "knock down," "ball," "router," "trainer," "team," "ground" and "corner" will be heard no more in athletic circles and will disappear from the press. Italian equivalents will be employed.

Elastic as is the Italian language, there seems to be no exact equivalent for "sport" and "record." These two invaders may be tolerated. Of course the reformers have yet to destroy the habit palsways of their fellow-countrymen who have grown accustomed to these alien terms in the country from which they derived their sport.

Gum-Dipped Tires Save You Money

Gum-Dipping is an exclusive Firestone process. It insulates and impregnates every fibre of every cord with rubber and prevents the cords from chafing against each other.

In ordinary tires these cords are uninsulated. In flexing they chafe against each other, causing internal heat and friction which softens the rubber, causing blowouts and tire failure.

These better tires cost you no more, yet they give thousands of extra miles. See your nearest Firestone Dealer.

ODESSA LADIES' AID SOCIETY

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. Atkin Snider, on Wednesday, the 13th inst. The President opened the meeting with Hymn 254. Mrs. J. H. Babcock led in prayer, and the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Bedford, of Penelon Falls. She chose the 30th Chapter of 1st Corrinthians. All were pleased to have Mrs. Bedford with us again. She was very helpful to our society when on this charge eight years ago. The minutes were read and adopted. There were twenty-five members who answered the roll call, one new member and three visitors. It was moved and seconded that new linens be purchased for the communion table. Also that their annual picnic be held on July 11th, on the J. H. Babcock lawn.

The business meeting closed with Hymn 120, and the Lord's Prayer in unison.

A short programme followed. Reading by Mrs. J. H. Babcock, on "Canadian Women", subject: "Who Will Buy My Lavender?" Solo by Miss Geraldine Fraser, accompanied by Miss Margaret McQuade. Reading by Miss McQuade, "Did You Ever Lose Your Temper?" and a solo by Mrs. H. J. Smith.

Mrs. Storms moved a vote of thanks to those taking part in the programme, seconded by Mrs. Marion Fraser.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, and the collection amounted to $4.85.

NAPANEE GOLFERS RETAIN DISTRICT TROPHY

The annual tournament for the district cup was held at the new course of the Napanee Golf and Country Club on Wednesday last. Strong teams from Belleville, Trenton nad Picton came here to play the Napanee team, who were successful in winning it last year.

The day was almost perfect for the game, the wind not being strong enough to bother the flight of the ball, but serving to cool the air. The fairways were in good condition, and the greens are getting better all the time, although they are not yet all they should be.

In the morning Napanee was matched against Belleville, while Picton and Trenton played together. The local club fielded a very strong team and they had no difficulty in defeating their morning game, every player being up on the round. The results were as follows:

Napanee.		Belleville
W. VanDusen	1	J. Ligault 0
F. Bentley	1	L. McConnell 0
Capt. Ham	1	A. Ketcheson 0
D. B. White	1	A. McConnell 0
K. S. Ham	1	B. Donnan 0
H. W. Huffman	1	W. H. Reeves 0
C. I. Maybee	1	J. Whalen 0
L. Douglas	1	O. H. Scott 0
	8	0

At the same time that this match was in progress Trenton was successful in defeating Picton:

Trenton		Picton
Dr. Aylesworth	0	W. Croft 1
W. G. Avery	½	C. Wright ½
M. D. Anderson	0	C. Oolliver 1
R. Y. Weymess	1	F. Healey 0
J. G. Squires	1	M. Reeves 0
O. Nolan	1	J. Carter 0
W. W. Miller	0	Dr. Knight 1
A. A. Cullen	1	C. Carter 0
	4½	2½

Lunch was served all the players in the Club House, after which the two winning teams met, and the two losing teams engaged in a consolation round. The result of the consolation were: Picton 4½, Belleville 3½.

The big round of the day, however, was the championship contest between Trenton and Napanee. The large gallery was on hand to watch the players drive off, and many fans offered their services as caddies in order to watch their favorite players make the round. Each game was closely contested, but Napanee, having the advantage of a more intimate knowledge of the course than their opponents, proved the stronger team. The scores were:

Napanee.		Trenton
W. VanDusen	1	Dr. Aylesworth 0
F. Bentley	1	W. G. Avery ½
Capt. Ham	1	M. D. Anderson 0
D. B. White	1	R. Y. Weymess 1
K. S. Ham	1	J. G. Squires 0
H. W. Huffman	1	O. Nolan 0
C. I. Maybee	1	W. W. Miller 0
L. Douglas	1	A. A. Cullen 0
	6	2

Dinner was served for the visiting players in the Campbell House dining room at 7 p.m., after which they were entertained at the homes of the Napanee members.

It was a most enjoyable day for everyone, particularly for the victorious Napanee Club, who retain the handsome district cup for another year. All the players are looking forward to the game next year, which will be played in Trenton.

Presentation and Address

On Wednesday evening, June 29th, 1928, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Balstone were given farewell presentations on the Parsonage lawn. Owing to the cool evening, the crowd gathered in the Sunday School room, where a good programme of music and recitations were given under the direction of Mr. S. Mowers as chairman. After the programme Mr. and Mrs. Balstone were called to the platform and presented with the following address by Mr. S. Sexsmith —

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Balstone—Once more as the hands of time roll round, we, the people of Selby congregation realize with sorrow and regret, that the last hour has struck, when we will be privileged to meet together as pastor, pastor's wife and people.

During the past three years, Mrs. Balstone you have filled your place as minister's wife with dignity and tact in the difficult roll of your high and sacred trust. That your efforts have been appreciated in all the branches of the church is to say the least, and especially in your efforts as choir leader, where with the co-operation of our very efficient pianist you have made the universal language of song full of inspiration and loveliness.

With all the disappointments common to all, neither of you ever faltered in the discharge of your duties. While physically unable, Mr. Balstone, you have taken your place behind the sacred desk, and preached the word that has been a spiritual uplift throughout the generations.

That you will be missed not only as pastor and wife, but as friends and neighbours, is born out by the fact that by the high stamp of Christian character you each possess, you have gained the respect of the entire community irrespective of creed and denomination. While we feel the loss of you keenly we also feel that we cannot let you go without in some degree showing our esteem for each of you, and our appreciation of your efforts while you have been with us. Therefore, we ask you to accept these gifts as a slight token of the love and esteem in which you are held, and as you are called upon to serve them, may they remind you of friends in Selby, where a warm welcome awaits you whenever permitted to return.

Mr. and Mrs. Balstone made very suitable replies, which they are very capable. A number of short addresses followed, and this part of the evening's entertainment was brought to a close by singing "God Be With You Until We Meet Again", followed by the Benediction by our Pastor. After which refreshments were served, and enjoyed by all present.

Signed on behalf of the congregation.

MRS. W. JACKSON.
MRS. H. WINDOVER.
MRS. W. HUDGINS.
MRS. F. WEESE.
MRS. W. J. WINTER.

DORLAND

Despite the damp weather on Friday and the threatening clouds in the evening, Jack Elder and his troupe were greeted by a full house. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. L. Haycock, Sr., in his usual witty style. The music was excellent and the audience thoroughly enjoyed the programme. The bagpipes and Scottish dances were an uncommon treat. — More pleasant weather would be appreciated the next two Friday evenings, as a lawn social is to be held on the rectory lawn July 6th, and at Mrs. T. Davis' July 13th. Good programmes are being prepared and favorable weather will insure a pleasant evening.—Mr. J. A. Humphrey spent a few days in Kingston last week. — Mr. F. S. Rollin's new house was completed on Monday. — Mr. Lewis Magee, who has been in Chicago for several months, returned home last week.

CAMDEN EAST

A very pretty wedding took place in the Anglican Church, on Wednesday, when Miss Margaret McCormick, and Mr. James Robinson, of Switzerville, were married. A number of friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left immediately on their wedding tour to Toronto and Niagara Falls. Their many friends wish them much happiness through life.—School closed on Friday for the summer holidays.—Mrs. Burnett is able to be around again after her recent illness. — Dr. and Mrs. Huxtable, of Newburgh, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo Black, on Thursday.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Stewart spent the week-end at Westbrook, with Mr. and Mrs. P. Rose.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Black took dinner on Sunday at Newburgh with Dr. and Mrs. Huxtable.—Mrs. Norman Blakely and children spent a day recently at Napanee, with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wright.—Mrs. Mackey, of New York, arrived on Thursday to spend the summer with her sister, at the old homestead.—Mrs. W. Cameron and baby, of Glenvale, is spending a few days the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jeffrey.—The Australian Medicine Co. were in the village for the past week, and held a concert every night, advertising their medicine, and giving prizes. Hugh Stewart won the prize for holding a brick at arm's length, for longest of four young men, and Mrs. Victor Edgar gained the prize for hammering four nails the quickest of four ladies. Miss Bessie Bunch won a wrist watch in a contest for the most votes.—Mr. and Mrs. Alva Emberly spent Thursday evening with Mrs. J. McGarvey.—Mr. Jeffrey, of Glenvale, visited his son, Mr. C. Jeffrey, on Friday.—Mr. Russell Clodd, who is in Kingston General Hospital, after undergoing an operation for appendicitis, is getting along as well as could be expected.—Miss Maude Wright and Miss Frances Alkenbrack, and Miss Bessie Stedman have arrived home from their studies for the summer vacation.—Miss Hitchens left for her home on Wednesday, to spend the holidays, and Miss McCormick, of Napanee, visited for the week-end.—Quarterly service in the United Church next Sunday, at 7.30 p.m. Sunday School at 10.30 a.m. Everybody welcome.

A ROOSTER DAY

Poultry raisers who build up a trade in strictly fresh eggs known by the name of "specials" see to it that the male birds do not run with the flock. Not only do they consume a certain amount of expensive food but fertilized eggs do not keep nearly as well as those that are sterile. Indeed after warm weather arrives the male birds should be done away with, except, of course, in flocks of the breeders of pure bred fowl who produce stock and eggs for breeding purposes. The uselessness of the male in the laying flock is being recognized in many quarters and a prominent newspaper in Eastern Ontario, the Renfrew Mercury, has started a campaign of education that a "Rooster Day" be organized. The Editor in urging this points out that the keeping of males throughout the year is an economic loss which in the aggregate means a waste of thousands of dollars in every township. The cost of maintenance of each bird is about $1 per year each. Only those who want eggs from their own premises for hatching, it is pointed out, need keep a few of male birds, and as the time is arriving when poultry raisers are adopting the practice of renewing their flocks by the purchase of baby chicks, there is no reason whatever in keeping over the male birds. A Rooster Day, it is believed would in a very real sense be a "booster day" for the poultry industry, which is steadily gaining in importance. A leaflet of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa recommends the killing off of the male birds after the breeding season and sets the first of June as the time when roosters should be sent to market, because after that date the flesh becomes poor, millions of dollars are lost through eggs partially incubated which are produced in the summer months. (Issued by the Director of Publicity, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.)

BASEBALL

Odessa vs. Adolphustown.

With a widely different personnel, the Adolphustown team defeated Odessa, by score to 8-5, to score their first win of the season. Jack Frost did the pitching for Adolphustown, and struck out about fourteen men. Hardy Millard's catching for Adolphustown was all that could be desired. Neat catching for Odessa, caught very well by many little pranksters, while the Kingannon brothers pitched good ball for the home team. Mr. Loucks, who did the umpiring, did his best to be impartial, fairly, but it is rather hard for one man to handle the whole game.

Following is the score by innings:

Adolphustown	3	0	1	1	0	1	0	1	—8

INHOSPITABLE INDIANS.

Student Leaves for Great Bear Lake to Study "Hareskins."

The prospect of studying a primitive culture, which has been maintained for thousands of years untouched by outside contacts, is taking Cornelius Osgood, graduate student of ethnology at the University of Chicago, on a fifteen months' expedition to the Canadian barren grounds, the region around Great Bear Lake, says a Science Service bulletin. The 1,000 mile trip from Waterways will be made by canoe and dog team. He expects to reach Fort Norman, the last outpost of civilization in that region, some time in August.

Almost nothing is known of the Hareskin Indians, which he will study, except that they are sullen and inhospitable. Two white missionaries who tried to convert them were murdered. Mr. Osgod hopes, if it is possible, to live with them during the long winter season, getting first hand observations of their manners and customs. The difficult language of the Hareskin tribe presents a problem but Mr. Osgod expects, if he receives a friendly reception, to make himself understood by using Athabascan word stems. The Hareskin tribe is a member of that linguistic group.

Prof. Edward Sapir, University of Chicago anthropologist, believes that this expedition presents "an almost unparalleled opportunity of studying a primitive people who have been uninfluenced by outside cultures."

Animals for Berlin Zoo.

Four Antarctic sea elephants, among the rarest of all large animals, have been taken to Hamburg by the great animal-importing firm of Carl Hagenbeck Company, says a Science Service bulletin. At the present time no European zoo can boast the possession of a specimen. Other importations from the Antarctic include 25 king penguins and 25 gold-crested penguins.

South America has contributed two very rare animals, the maned dog and Marcilians wolf, in addition to better-known creatures such as tapirs, ant-bears and jaguars. From Africa a new sub-species of chacma, a kind of baboon, has been brought for the first time.

GIRLS WHO RUN AWAY.

Severity of Parents Usually Causes Flight, Expert Declares.

For two decades the runaway girl has been a particular study of the Girls' Service League of America, which recently celebrated its twentieth anniversary in the number of runaways as a decrease in their average age. We are now getting a lot of girls only fourteen or fifteen. Sometimes twelve-year-olds come. The former average age, seventeen, has dropped by a year or more."

Asked to outline the usual runaway girl's adventure, Miss Miner said:

"Her first thought is for money to finance the trip. She may tell a neighor that some member of the family is ill and borrow $5 or $10, or she may take money that her mother has put aside for rent, or she may run away with her week's wages.

Before starting on her journey the girl usually writes a note, to be left behind, explaining her departure, usually reading: 'Don't worry; I'm going away to earn money and send it home,' or 'Don't worry; I'm going away to marry a rich man'; or, as happened lately, 'Don't worry; I'm going away to marry Lindbergh.'

"Are you wondering how runaway girls get identified and sent home? Let a runaway talk to you for ten or fifteen minutes, telling 6h after 6h, and presently she will get her alibi tangled up. The parents who were dead at the 6h at five minutes before 11 will be quoted as living at 11.10, or the home away out in Nebraska will have moved back to New Jersey.

"Mainly it is parents who are to blame for a girl's running away. They may be too severe, and an adolescent girl resents being spanked for smoking a cigarette. They may be too ambitious, and expect too much of a girl; then, if she gets reprimanded at school or college, or is afraid of failure in approaching examinations, she will be inclined to run."

A POWERFUL MORAL.

They Old Miser, the Treasure, and the Stone.

There seemed to be an unusually power moral in the following legend, which we ran across while meandering through some dust-laden literature the other day, remarks the Toronto Globe:

An aged Chinese, noted far and wide among his neighbors for his penuriousness, was one day discovered running frantically up and down in front of his small fruit, beating his breast and crying out in doleful lamentations.

"Woe is me!" he cried, "woe is me! Some one last night stole away the treasure which I had buried in my garden, and left a stone in its place."

"And why do you weep?" asked a neighbor. "You never used your treasure. Bring yourself to believe that the stone is still your treasure, and you will be as well off as you ever were."

The neighbor was right. A buried treasure is of no more value to the world than a buried stone. One of the pathetic truths of life is that so many fail to realize this fact. Had the old miser been generous enough to have shared his treasure with a needy world, he could at least have had the comfort of knowing that many would have joined him in bewailing his loss. But he had lost that which was of value to no one. Not even he himself had made use of it.—

HASTENS TO WINE'S DEFENCE.

M. Poincare Says France Is Encouraging Wine-Drinking.

France officially has rushed to the defence of the golden grape and its by-products from fizzing champagne to sparkling Marsaudy.

"We will take up the defence of wine and undertake to convince its slanderers of their error," M. Poincare, the French premier, declared recently.

"Naturally, every country is free to pass any legislation it desires, but we cannot be forbidden to hope that America will some day see that wine is health, courage and life.

"If wine was poisonous, we would have discovered it long ago. The Latins, who have always been wine drinkers, would have found it out since the days of Homer. Here in France we have discontinued the taxes on that hygienic drink.

"You can be sure we will do what we can to re-open those foreign markets closed to us now. With the aid of our new national wine office and the international office in Paris we hope to lift the ban abroad and to get better customs conditions for our product."

Rail Motors In Hungary.

Railmotor trains in increasing numbers are being used on Hungarian railways to care for passenger traffic. Freight is moved in locomotive-drawn trains. The motor trains consist of one standard type passenger coach equipped with a gasoline motor and a second passenger coach as trailer.

Steel Rails.

Steel rails on a north and south track last longer than those laid east and west. The magnetism generated by the train friction is unequal in the former case; in the latter it is resisted.

The Heart.

The heart of the average adult is 5 inches long, 3½ inches broad, and 2½ inches thick.

Still, it's a good sign when nations begin to quarrel over who started the peace negotiations.

PIONEER DAIRY MAN CELEBRATES

A. E. Sweet, Morgan Park, Has 80th Birthday Surprise—Many Greet Him.

In celebration of the 80th birthday anniversary of A. E. Sweet, Morgan Park, Tuesday evening, relatives and friends surprised him. He received congratulatory messages from relatives and friends in other states and Canada. He also received a shower of birthday cards. A daughter, Mrs. E. L. VanLuven, living in Moscow, Ont., sent a large decorated cake with 80 candles. Three of his children reside here, Harry Sweet, Arthur G. Sweet, and Miss Edna Sweet.

Present at the party were: E. A. Sweet, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sweet and two children, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Sweet and three children, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sweet and four children, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Kingsland, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Kingsland and children, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Haney, Mrs. H. D. Sweet, Mrs. K. Neely, Miss Edna Sweet and Arthur G. Sweet.

Mr. Sweet was passed with social conversation and a late supper was served. Mr. Sweet was born in Ontario and lived there until 1881, when the family moved to Minnesota and then to this community twenty-one years ago. Mr. Sweet is chairman of the supervisors of Mead township and has supervisor for many years. He owns the Sweet dairy.—The Spokesman-Review, Spokane, Washington, May 27th, 1928.

Mr. Sweet, as mentioned in the above sketch, was born, and lived at Selby, until he moved to Minnesota in 1881, and is well known throughout the Counties of Lennox and Addington. He received about seventy-five greetings on his birthday "shower," nearly one-half of them coming from relatives and friends in Canada.

He enjoys excellent health, and is as active as a man thirty years younger. A few weeks ago he visited an Air Port in a suburb of Spokane, this home city), and was privileged to examine a Sedan-Plane, which had just landed from Seattle, with four passengers aboard, and was heard to remark: "Golly! I'd like to go up in one of them".

Just at present he is on a motor trip of over 300 miles across the state to Seattle, to visit friends and relatives. His full address is "E. A. Sweet, Hillyard Station, Spokane, Wash."

Works Hard, Dances, Gains 3 Lbs. a Week

"I work hard, dance and have gained 3 pounds a week since taking Vinol. My nervousness is almost all gone."—Mrs. F. Lang.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how they get new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. The very first bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious. Wallace's Drug Store.

SILLSVILLE

(For last week.)

The Community Players played here to a full house recently. The play was excellent and well played. These artists were well received and gave a very fine entertainment.—Mrs. B. E. Shermerhorn is still very poorly.—Mr. and Mrs. Plant are leaving for England this week.

BETHEL.

(For last week.)

Those having strawberry patches report an abundant crop this year. Our camping resorts are making ready for the usual amount of summer tourists which are expected during the next two months.—Mrs. Edith Alkenbrack has returned home, after an absence of six weeks with friends at Sunburnie.—Mrs. Levi Salisbury has returned home, accompanied by little Miss Ruth Homer, of Toronto, who will spend a few weeks' holidays in our midst.—Mr. and Mrs. Clark Grant spent Monday with friends at Keplar. —Mr. Russel Gilligan, of Shannonville, spent Sunday last with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Justus Gilligan.—Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Ball called on Mr. and Mrs. L. Salisbury, on Sunday night.—We are sorry to hear that our teacher, Miss Genge, has resigned her duties here and is leaving us, having secured a school nearer her home at Gananoque. The children will miss her very much as she endeared herself with them, and will have many years of many pleasant days spent together.—Mrs. Charlie Walker, of Newburgh, and relatives, Mrs. Whiteman and the Misses Whiteman, of Camden County, were callers at Camp Killarney, on Sunday last.—Mrs. Dan Saraffe and baby, Inez, are spending a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. MacLeRoy, at Bell Rock.—Mr. George Jackson has gone to Keplar, where he has taken a contract of painting and decorating the United Church there.—Mr. and Mrs. E. McKnight and little Jean called on Mr. and Mrs. Wm. NEW PRINTING PROCESS.

Reported to Eliminate the Use of Metal Type.

A printing process which eliminates the use of metal type was described at the Hotel Hargrave, New York, recently by Hans von Fraunhofer, United States representative of the inventors. Its general principles resemble others recently invented. Von Fraunhofer says he has shown the designs for the machine to many engineers and experts, made his first public statement on the subject recently, following receipt of cabled authority, which states that negotiations in Hungary have resulted in the Government there taking over the Hungarian rights.

The machine has a standard keyboard. The touch of a key makes an electrical contact which causes the letter touched to be photographed on a running film. The first step in printing a page under this process is that of "setting it up" by photographing it on the narrow film.

Devices make it possible to correct errors. The electrical system of photographing the letters on the film is accompanied by their being printed on ticker tape before the eyes of the operator. Any error becomes visible to him. Photographing of the letters is retarded so that the compositor has a second or two in which to make his correction before the mistake is photographed. Even after the film has been completed it can be proofread, mistakes being cut out and correct readings interpolated.

The second step is that of projecting the film on to chemically treated zinc plate. As the film is unreeled the letters are photographed in their correct order on the plate. Adjustments can be made to widen or narrow the column of type at will. Type of any kind or size can be used. Photographs or drawings are rephotographed directly upon the zinc plate.

Von Fraunhofer said the inventor's model had produced excellent results, that a second machine was being made for the Hungarian Government, and that a third would be brought to this country for demonstration in six months. He said the American company, called the Luminotype Enterprises, was not seeking capital and had no stock to sell. He predicted that the machine would revolutionize printing.

RUSE TURNED UPON HIMSELF.

Bismarck's Wife Renewed It as He Explained Device to Visitors.

How Bismarck's clever ruse for ridding himself of tiresome visitors was turned against himself is recounted in the recently published collection of Bismarck anecdotes, compiled by Schmidt-Hedeiger.

One day Lord Russell, the British ambassador to Berlin, asked the German iron chancellor in his mansion whether he did not find it very irksome to have to receive so many official visitors daily. Bismarck replied that on the whole he found something of interest in every caller—unless he overstayed his time. But for such "stickers," Bismarck remarked, he had an infallible method remedy. He explained that his wife, who from long experience had acquired an intuitive sense for the proper duration of a visitor's stay, would always be ready after a needful to open the door and on some pretext or other call him away.

Barely had the distinguished speaking when Princess Bismarck called through the half-open door way:

"Otto, isn't it about time for you to come and take your medicine? It just wanted to remind you."

An embarrassing silence followed these words. The Bismarck must, however, both men roared with laughter at the humor of this strange confirmation of the "infallible remedy" struck them.

ORIGIN OF BLUE-BLOODED.

The Reference Is to the Color of the Veins.

There is, of course, no "blue blood," but the term, generally used in a complimentary sense as denoting gentle birth, does really hark back to a color origin. Not of the blue blood, though. The reference is to the color of the veins.

Families who through several generations possessed sufficient wealth to enable them to escape manual work developed skins of a very fine texture, and through the latter the veins showed blue. That would be especially apparent in the hands and forearms. The skins of those who, burdened with wealth, had to work became hard, and the veins were hardly discernible.

Thus, although "blue-veined" or "fine-skinned" would have been more correct, the term "blue-blooded" came into use to denote the ancient race, and it would seem, from old writings, that it was the popular belief that the term expressed the literal fact.

Power From a Flower.

The Science College of Calcutta has shown a new road to large quantities of alcohol for producing power. The water hyacinth, a pest in Bengal waterways, has been used in connection with the sawdust of the sanpeo tree, which grows wild in Bengal and can be obtained in enormous quantities. The new methods which have been worked out to produce spirit from the water hyacinth not only give a new source of power, but will help towards clearing Bengal's waterways.

Farm In Same Family 150 Years.

A golden wedding anniversary was celebrated by a somewhat unique individual in the small south Norwegian town of Risor the other day. He is Martin Bjorndalen, brother of one of the men aboard the Norwegian frigate Najaden in the battle of Lyngoer against the victorious British man-o'-war Dictator on July 6, 1812.

Martin Bjorndalen, who is 83, was the youngest of twenty-four children from three marriages, and his brother, Torje, who fought on the Najaden, was the eldest. Their father, Thor, married his third wife when 84 and died at 104.

Martin runs a small farm inherited from the father. It is notable that in 150 years this farm has had only two owners, Thor and Martin.

That the Bjorndalens are not only of long-lived stock, but are also possessed of intrepidity and cool-headedness is evidenced by the daring of Torje in the Lyngoer combat. Thrown overboard when the vessel lost its rigging, Torje, in the face of raining bullets, tore off piece of the sails for a coat and trousers before swimming ashore.

Saving the Galapagos Turtle.

Part of the Bronx Zoo has been turned into a turtle farm where it is hoped 109 young land tortoises brought from the Galapagos Islands will grow to such size and toughness of skin that they can be returned to their island home safe from the fangs of wild dogs and pigs.

The animals, which are valuable as meat, have almost become extinct on Galapagos because of the ravages of the dogs and pigs, descendants of animals left there by three centuries of pirates and whalers.

ANNOUNCING A REMARKABLE NEW BUILDING MATERIAL

INSUL-BOARD

(INSULATING BOARD)

A Board that shuts out cold. Stops heat. Deadens sound. An extraordinary building and insulating Board designed to make homes and interiors more comfortable, more restful and more healthful the whole year through. An All-Canadian Board, made in Canada from the products of Canada's Forests.

INSUL-BOARD meets the need for a stouter and more rugged material for wall and ceiling insulation. Its greater structural strength has been proven under critical tests by Canada's leading engineers. It makes the walls more rigid, more enduring, more capable of resisting severe strain and stress.

INSUL-BOARD insulates completely, producing a sure and lasting shield against winter's cold and summer's heat, sealing the home interior tight against all atmospheric discomfort.

THE POPE'S CLOTH.

Famous Locks In the Names of Fabrics.

How many women are aware of the romance that lurks in the names of fabrics, asks a London paper.

Denim is the Arabic quilin. Calico is named from Calicut, in India, and Mosul, whence it was exported, though nearly all the best muslin comes now from India; gingham is named from ginsham, in Malabar, and nainsook is Hindustani for linen from the town Nainsuk, near Calcutta.

Of the silks, damask, of course, is derived from Damascus; taffeta comes from the Persian word taftan, which means to "shine;" and "Tussore" poplin is an interesting example of Eastern derivation. No one who has seen Eastern "shantung" will be surprised to learn that it comes from Shantung, in China.

Bengal gives us bengaline, and Bruges, the Belgian town of Avignon, in France.

The most romantic name-chain of all links an Arabian prince with a fabric. It commences on Arabian mountain, which rolled tables valuable for Pope's use. Tables valuable wastewards with the Pope. Word came to England from Arabia by way of France of Spain.

Our Arabs named the silk after a native of Bassorah, "Attabiy, in which a very fine muslin was made. Attabiy was contemporized "Attab, an Arabian prince. So was Prince "Attab famous for his muslins, and the name was handed down to posterity in the finest muslin ever produced—the material — surely the choicest compliment to any prince's memory.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Trouble That Usually Attacks Young Children.

St. Vitus dance is the name generally given to a disease described by medical men as chorea. This trouble usually attacks young children, though older people may be afflicted with it. The most common symptoms are a twitching of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses the twitching takes the form of spasms, in which the jerking motion may be confined to the face or all the limbs may be affected. Frequently the patient is unable to do anything in the hands or walk steadily. In severe cases the speech is often affected. The disease is due to debility of the nerves and relief comes through new enriched blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been most successful in reaching this trouble through their specific action on the blood, which it enriches and purifies. The following instance proves the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in this trouble. Mrs. Thomas Bowen, Bowmanville, Ont., says:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been in use in my family for years and always with good results. I believe they saved the life of my only son. At ten years of age he grew very nervous and the trouble developed into St. Vitus dance. His limbs and arms would jerk so badly that he could not walk steadily. Just then the doctor was attending my daughter Ethel with typhoid fever and I decided to give him Pink Pills. By the time two boxes were used there was an improvement in his condition and by the time six boxes more were taken all traces of the trouble had disappeared, and he was well and strong. I have also given Pink Pills to my growing girls, and I know of no better strengthening medicine. I may add that the same applies to grown-ups as well."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ROMANCE OF DRUG STORE

Traces Pharmacy From a "Place of Darkness and Mystery" to the Present Up-to-Date Shop.

A glimpse "behind the scenes" in a drug store was given recently by Prof. R. O. Hurst, Phm. B., of the Ontario College of Pharmacy.

The many articles that have been used from time to time in connection with the profession, ranging from the chemist of England, the apothecary of Germany and France, and the pharmacist and druggist of this continent, were mentioned as being part of the historical background of the pharmaceutical profession. Mr. Hurst traced the drug store from the late 'eighties and 'nineties, when it was a place of "mystery and darkness, selling nothing but drugs, and a few hard candies or tooth brushes, to the present-day "drug store of variety, selling anything from soft drinks to motor accessories. A few drugless," Mr. Hurst pointed out, now carry anything in stock that can possibly be sold over any counter, and have built up good businesses.

"Herbs," a drug plant of the British Isles, and used for centuries as a poison, has come into its own, the speaker noted, and is now used in inducing the, "twilight sleep" in maternity and other hospitals. "This is only one of some 50,000 elements in the stock dispensed by the druggist, but of this number only about 5,000 are used to any extent in the large cities, and about half are found in every "back room" of every druggist in the country.

The romance of coal tar and its products from the time when a chemist named Perkins discovered a few of the dyes to be procured from the residue of "baked coal," was followed, and some stress laid upon the fact that England passed on to Germany the opportunity to develop an extensive dye industry, through scoffing at Perkins and his dyes.

The planters of India and France, as well as England, had held a monopoly on dyes, and the discovery that many of them could be made from coal tar caused these planters to become florists, so that they could produce perfumes and materials for their estates. It was not long until these were developed on a large scale, and of the sticky, dirty substance, and the flowers, as a means of making perfume vanished. The history of the purple dye that is associated with the robes of royalty of early and later days, came to a fade, in the first instance, but the fish has vanished as a producer of dye, as did the cochineal, a dye insect that produced carmine. Indigo, from plants of India, had been replaced by another by-product of coal tar, and India was not the indigo producer any longer. Aspirin, mothballs, carbolic acid, lysol and all kinds of other drugs and medicinal preparations, as well as 90 per cent. of the perfumes used, and much of the face powder and rouge, are secured from the substance that at one time was the bane of every coke manufacturer.

A rapid trip around the world was taken, visiting Japan, where mint is the camphor; Brazil, which produces the cocaine of the world; the Andes where quinine and materials for quinine to the medical profession years ago; British India, where the opium is grown and from which morphine and beroin are made; Africa, and its calabar bean, which is used as an antidote for the "ordeal" the eye doctor uses to see his patient's eye; Russia, and its ergot, another source of anaesthesia; France, whose grape presses produce cream of tartar; and the iodine produced seaweed of the oceans of the world.

The slaughter house, with its by-products of andrenalin and thyroid is another of the places from which are drawn the materials to stock the shelves of the druggist.

More countries are represented in even the smallest drug store than at the Canadian National Exhibition, Mr. Hurst said.

ARCHAEOLOGY.

Reveals the March of Commerce During the Centuries.

That many old things are unearthed by the science of the archaeologist—the scientific excavations apparent from the interesting address recently by Mr. Arthur Casperz, member of the Hellenic and Roman Societies, London, England.

And, that this work reveals the march of commerce during the centuries indicated by the knowledge so gained. Investigations have developed the exchange of the pottery and implements of Troy for the tin of the Dardanelles, which, with the copper of Cyprus produced the Ages of Bronze. Troy, the speaker stated, given the key to the struggle for control of the wheat from the Black Sea ports, and from a perusal of the private file of that period, we had concluded the rancor displayed had a somewhat personal tinge. The bronzes of Crete, whose secret maritime history is unknown reveal its trade with Egypt before the time of Troy. Discovery of the clay tablets of the Hittites brought into view the Mesopotamian civilization. Excavations at Gaza of the Philistines brought to light the weights and measures of 1,500 years from the time of Abraham and Abimelech, and explain why Joseph left that irrigated tract to find corn in Egypt, incidentally producing specimens of the "jawbone of an ass" the early flint sickle. Forty years ago, Amarna of the fifteenth century before Christ yielded clay tablets which, having been extensively translated, disclosed Egyptian Foreign Office Correspondence with Palestine, Syria and the Upper Euphrates, probably dating back to the time of Moses. These have been disinterred from the sands of Egypt by digging on papyrus ranging over 1,000 years, which prove that the Greek of our New Testament could be read by those who spoke the universal Greek language common to all civilized lands in Gospel times.

Archaeology is not merely excavation, we were told. Every resource of human knowledge is called on to explain, if possible, the facts brought to light. Ancient writing doubtless comes first. The old scripts of Egypt and Babylonia are now freely read, but those of Crete, the Hittites and many others require years of patient study. On the other hand, the many scripts of Greece are now far better understood and appreciated, and the emergence of fresh inscriptions yield information and raise new problems. The history of metals afford a number of clues to the skilled investigator. The Neolithic mind develops from pottery the story of man, and establishes contact between countries of another age.

Coins made their appearance with the common use of writing in the 8th century before Christ, and point to the pathway of commerce. Rome had no system of coinage at the time of Marathon, but, in the breaker's yard. Coins came from the Greeks and the Etruscans, but Rome was not then a great trading force. Finally, archaeology is a fascinating study.

EARLY MONEY IN ENGLAND.

First Gold Coin Was Struck In 1257—Sovereign First Minted In 1489.

The first gold coin of England was struck in 1257, and gold florins in 1327, when Edward III. introduced a gold six-shilling piece and a gold noble of the value of six-and-eightpence, writes Dr. Andrew Macphail in the Toronto Globe. It is to the noble that we owe the expression the English lawyers' fee, six shillings and eightpence, traces its origin. Edward IV. was the first to introduce the figure of Michael and the dragon on English coins. This he did in 1465. The symbol was a forerunner of that of St. George and the dragon.

The English sovereign or pound was first minted of gold in 1489; the shilling first coined in 1503; Irish shillings were struck in 1760; milled shillings in 1562. The crown, the day no more than a monetary unit, was first coined in 1663, and value was 20 shillings. Later issues were of the value of 21 shillings. Spade guineas were so called because they bore a spade-shaped shield upon them.

During the reign of Queen Elizabeth efforts were made to substitute a legitimate copper currency for the pseudo-money that had become common in her time. Then Abbey pieces were struck and the privilege of coinage had been universally usurped and all sorts of tokens were placed into currency.

Busiest Canadian.

Members of the British Columbia Legislature claim that H. W. Dodd of Telegraph Creek should qualify as the busiest man in Canada, and support their claim by the fact that Mr. Dodd is Government agent, magistrate, justice of the peace, commissioner, mining recorder and registrar of births, marriages and deaths.

Hardly a week goes by that the Tongeeks of the Cassiar frequently come into contact with Mr. Dodd. They have to go to the wooden office when they go to purchase their liquor. If they drink too much they meet him again in court when they get "Good morning, judge," Mr. Dodd once again upholding his office as police magistrate. Last year he dealt with five cases of drunkenness and found all five accused guilty.

WEDDING LIKES CHANGE.

Ways of the Fishes In the Sea Are Free and Unfathomable.

A curtain elevation has arisen as a result of the flight habits of herrings. They have discovered that sardines make good eating and as a result, are driving that succulent fish away from its favorite haunting places in Passamaquoddy Bay, and the adjacent Canadian water, says a report issued by the American Bureau of Fisheries.

The herring is the most numerous fish in the North Atlantic, according to the bureau. For many years Passamaquoddy Bay and the adjacent Canadian waters have apparently been their main habitat.

But the ways of the fishes in the sea, says the report, are frequently unfathomable, particularly when they are herrings. For several seasons the large schools, on which the sardine industry of Eastport was based, have more or less shunned that locale.

Last year at no time was there any great influx of sardine herring to Eastern Maine waters. On the other hand fish were fairly plentiful in Casco Bay, Sheepscot Bay and other western coast sections of the state.

Eastport canneries operated only intermittently, and toward the last of the packing period were obliged to send their sardine-carrying boats to Portland waters to obtain sufficient supplies of fish. Their total pack was the smallest in years.

The Casco Bay canneries, however, received a steady supply. Packers were shrewd enough not to glut the market and had an excellent season. To safeguard themselves at both ends of the coast the Passamaquoddy Bay packers have invaded the western coast. Two of the largest packers have acquired wharf and land rights on the Portland waterfront and are erecting large plants.

With the old-established Casco Bay factories, two new ones locally operated, and the two new ones from eastern Maine, there will be nine large factories putting up the "little fishes boiled in oil" at Portland this summer. The success or failure of the pack will depend on the herring.

LOBSTER FOR BLONDES.

Are Bundles of Energy and Demand Highly Concentrated Food.

Lobster is one of the best foods for blondes, according to an Old Country dietitian. But make sure you are a real blonde before you change your diet. Baby-blue eyes or fair hair do not make you a blonde; the best test is the redness of the lips and tongue.

Blondes are bundles of energy, and exert themselves more than the occasional and inevitable re-action of their blondness, demand highly concentrated food.

"Feed the brute" is splendid advice to the wife with a blonde husband. With blondes the appetite comes not only from eating, but primarily from northern exposure. They are very sensitive to solar influence. If a blonde were left for four days under a blue quarts lamp she would eat for four days like a starving wolf.

The question of feeding a blonde is largely a matter of greengrocery. A cold climate is perfect for a blonde. California is fatal; the blonde slows down, becomes anaemic, and loses appetite.

Briefly, artificial blonde has a greater tendency to instability than the true Scandinavian type.

Blondes should eat highly concentrated foods like lobster, cereals, nuts, cheese, and meat, but the food should be cold. Arctic animals like the fox and the polar bear are noted for the redness of their tongues, and the best proof that blondes should eat their meals cold is the white Husky dog. He is a real blonde, and the food on which he thrives best is frozen fish.

Judging's the Wind's Speed.

The leaves and branches of trees give a good indication of how fast the wind is blowing.

When leaves are still there is no appreciable wind, it being less than two miles an hour. Leaves feebly agitated indicate a flicht breeze of about five miles. Branches stirring slightly show a moderate breeze of about ten miles, and when branches bend a little the wind has increased to fifteen miles.

Branches rocking and swinging and poplars bending indicate a wind of twenty miles an hour; leaves torn from trees, twenty-five miles; and when limbs are broken, a gale or tempest of thirty-five miles. A violent tempest of fifty-five miles breaks strong branches, while a hurricane or tornado of about eighty miles an hour damages house roofs.

Greatness.

A priest offered 25 cents to the boy who could tell him who was the greatest man in history.

"Christopher Columbus," answered the Italian boy.

"George Washington," answered the American boy.

"St. Patrick," shouted the Jewish boy.

"The quarter is yours," said the priest; "but why did you say St. Patrick?"

"Right down in my heart I knew it was Moses," said the Jewish boy, "but business is business."—Transcript.

Baboons as Servants.

If you need a faithful, efficient house servant, not subject to human failings, try a baboon.

That is the advice of Prof. F. A. Lindeman, of Oxford University. In twenty years, he declared recently, there need be no servant problem. This is the time it would take, he added, to breed apes intelligent enough for simple household duties —dusting and sweeping, for instance.

CANADA HOUSE, PARIS

ERECTED TO ASSIST STUDENTS FROM CANADA.

This Commanding and Impressive Building Stands Upon the Site of Ancient Fortifications — Forty-two Students Accommodated.

Canada House, Paris, France, that splendid experiment in international relationships, has started upon its second year of life with a fine record in assisting Canadian students in Paris. And now it seems at this time particularly very well worth while to review, writes Francis Drake in the Toronto Star Weekly, not only the story of the first year of Canada House's existence, but the long history of educational institutions in Paris since the twelfth century, of which history the building of the university city is an outcome. In brief, Canada House, standing upon the site of ancient fortifications, stands as a token in wood and stone that history does repeat itself.

At the close of the great war matters in the educational world in France were in a chaotic condition. The cost of living was very high; living quarters were at a premium, and the streams of students who were beginning to flow back to Paris were all too great for the accommodation. Yet still they kept pouring in, not only from all over France, but from every part of the world, for Paris still remained the international centre of learning, just as it was in the twelfth century.

About this time, fortunately, the city of Paris had embarked upon the demolishing of the fortifications which had once defended the city, but with the use of modern artillery were no longer of any use. As the gates of the fortifications, near Porte d'Arcueil, just beyond the beautiful Park Montsouris, a large expanse had been cleared at the time Monsieur de la Meurthe, a wealthy French manufacturer, decided to do something to assist French educational methods. So by Senator Honnorat, the French manufacturer obtained from the city of Paris 28 hectares of land on the site of the ancient fortifications beyond the park. This location, while still near to the Sorbonne and other seats of learning, was a wide, open space looking over a level plain and to the low hills circling Paris, and here M. de la Meurthe decided to found not only a university for French students, but to offer ground to all the nations of the world who cared to come and erect a house of learning.

And, strange to say, it was Canada, youngest of the nations, who first reared upon the ground of the university city a building where her students might be housed. This was largely due to the initiative of Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian High Commissioner to France, who was then in Paris. Immediately he learned of the plan of M. de la Meurthe he besturred himself to interest Canadians in the project, and so successfully that Sir John Willison of Montreal collected 2,600,000 francs towards the building of the present Canada House. Other prominent Canadians from all parts of the Dominion donated sums varying from $100 to $1,000 to furnish the different rooms in the building.

And so Canada House, Paris, being on the 30th of October, 1926. It was opened by the Prince of Wales. It has accommodation for forty-two students.

Standing on the edge of the beautiful Parc Montsouris, upon the very ground where for so many hundreds of years loomed the gray walls defending Paris, Canada House rears itself a commanding and impressive building, the more striking perhaps because of the plainness, the almost austerity of its outline. A huge, rectangular building, somewhat after the style of an old colonial mansion, its windows look upon the park and away across the level plain around which in future years houses will arise of the educational institutions of other nations. Its portals, with their great arching doorways, have something very hospitable about them. All give upon a huge living room and a spacious hallway. In one corner of the living room stands the most modern of radio sets. Moose heads adorn the walls above two great fireplaces. The mosaic of the floor bears the beaver, that diligent worker who is so symbolic a symbol of the young nation of workers which it represents.

Across three long corridors upon the upper floors upon which face the rooms of the students, and these corridors are the upper floors, are still. There is an air of repose about the place conducive to study. At either end of the upper floors two large pergolas have been built for use in summer.

The rooms of the students are large, some twelve feet by sixteen feet. All are luxurious affairs of bedsteads, of divan-beds and electric lighting fixtures best suited to reading and writing. As may be found in Paris, all the comforts of Canada have been transferred, comforts to which the average Frenchman is not certainly all students are strangers. Just how comfortable House really is cannot be better illustrated than by relating a story about the Prince of Wales.

Last summer he paid a surprise visit to Canada House, dropping in unexpectedly accompanied by M. Briand, French Minister of Foreign Affairs. As the two were returning from their tour of inspection, accompanied by M. Philippe Roy, director of Canada House, M. Briand said enthusiastically:

"It is wonderful! So comfortable, so amazingly comfortable!"

Then he added slowly: "It is dangerously comfortable. If I were a student I think I would want to spend my studying here all the rest of my life."

Secret of the Cave.

Bones of at least 2,000 hippopotami killed by prehistoric hunters were found in a single cave in Sicily.

OVER ONE WIRE.

New Innovation Being Adopted by Telephone Company.

The innovation of a new telephonic principle makes it now possible for three conversations and seven telegraph messages to be heard over one set of wires, according to information given out by District Manager W. J. Cairns, of the Bell Telephone Co. The new principle, called the "telephone carrier wave system," by adopting radio principles to the telephone, makes the exchange of messages, by long-distance telephone much more expeditious and efficient.

Through this system the voice at the sending end is taken into the mouthpiece and its frequency, or sound vibration, is raised to the much higher radio frequency. Received at the other end of the line, it is modulated again to ordinary voice frequency.

A Good Trade Prospect.

China is one of the brightest and best trade prospects for Canadian manufactures, according to Lieut.-Col. L. M. Cosgrave, Canadian Trade Commissioner to China. He said the Chinese are ever ready to trade with a Britisher, especially a Canadian, and that the growth of trade within the past fifteen years has been amazing.

THE SKIDDING SCHOOL.

What to Do to Keep a Car Under Control When a Skid Develops?

How many owner-drivers have any idea of what to do to keep a car under control when a skid develops? asks Tit-Bits.

About 200 members of the Junior Car Club visited the London General Omnibus Company's works at Chiswick recently and saw the skidding school, where all the company's recruits undergo a course before taking charge of a bus.

An inch-thick layer of gear grease and soft soap, liberally sprinkled with water, ensures that it shall be all that is to be desired in the way of slipperiness.

A demonstration was given by the company's skidding expert, Driver Dale, who skidded a bus, swung it round and about, and finally charged at some twenty miles an hour.

At the far end were two trestles, just over a bus width apart, and Mr. Dale's object was to approach them, jam on his brakes, and skilfully skid his bus so that it turned round comfortably with the front wheels between the two trestles.

The feat was accomplished, and after an encore members of the club were allowed to take a turn at the wheel of the bus.

One of the best performances was that of a woman motorist who took over the wheel before the pupil's Dale's star turn only a little less skilfully than the veteran had done it.

Britain's War Library.

"London does not parade the more enduring work of its subjects," writes a correspondent in John o' London's Weekly. "She has gathered her posterity do so in small studios, in littleknown laboratories and in the quiet study of private houses. It is with the Library of the Imperial War Museum which is housed in what still has the outward appearance of a select Queen's Gate Mansion. This library, which is the only British national collection of books devoted to the European war, will to unborn ages present a detail'd diary of what was, when all is said, the greatest event in the lives of the present generation. To-day, with the library still in its infancy, it comprises already some 40,000 volumes and pamphlets. At least 1,000 volumes a year are being received, an inflow that shows no sign of diminishing."

MEN REMAIN SUPERIOR.

Margin Between Them is as Great as It Was Before the War.

Are women surging men's place in the realm of sports. The London Daily Mail, of the year 2000, sold at the Ideal Home Exhibition, writes Stanley N. Doust in that London newspaper, the prime minister is a woman. Tom Webster's afternoon makes a woman knock out a man in a boxing match; and even in lawn tennis a great surprise is caused when a British man, after intensive training, beats the French woman champion of the world.

How do the theories of women approaching manhood fit the facts?

The answer is they do not fit at all. Analyse sport and compare the skill of women and men at any game or pastime where physical strength and endurance are essential and it is generally found that the records answer them is as great to-day as it was before the war.

There are several factors that cause people to believe that women have advanced in every field. Their costumes are more rational and do not impede their movements, and there are more women playing games to-day than there were a generation ago.

But while the number of women who play games has been increased, so has the number of men. Outdoor games of every description develop a healthy body, so that while to-day we notice more strong women than we used to do, there is the same improvement in the physique of young men. Notice how tall they are! It is quite common to find youths over five feet ten inches at the age of sixteen, and fine, upstanding lads they are.

Nature cannot be defied, says this writer. While acknowledging women's prowess, yet it must be admitted that they have sharper limitations than men. When has a woman been able to run 100 yards in ten seconds? Their record is 11 2-5ths seconds. In hockey they would have no chance with men. In lawn tennis I think women's skill has declined. I have no fear that in the future men will play second fiddle.

The fly's mouth and tongue are covered with fine hairs. Consequently some of the filth in which they mess clings to them. And the microscope discloses these dirty drops of unspeakable uncleanliness alive with bacteria-disease germs.

A fly may infect anything it touches. Milk, food, baby's eyes, open wounds are favorite sources of infection.

But with FLY-TOX a house can be kept free of flies and similar insects. FLY-TOX is fragrant, stainless. FLY-TOX is harmless to humans but sure death to flies, mosquitoes and similar disease carrying insects.—Adv.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Jane Walsh, who died June 30th, 1927, and our dear Father, William James Walsh, who died September 21st, 1927.

For many a year our family chain was closely linked together;
But O, the chain is broken now, and two main links have gone forever.
Even the flowers we placed about their graves,
May wither and decay;
But the love for those who sleep beneath,
Shall never fade away.
We can only keep on going, till our time to go has come,
Then we can depart rejoicing
That we'll meet beside God's throne.

Inserted by W. J. Walsh's family. 27a

125 Times Around the World

IN pursuing its policy of consistent progress—in its continual search for new ideas . . . in its constant development of better cars . . . General Motors not only maintains its great International Research Laboratories and hundreds of skilled engineers, but also operates the first, largest and most completely equipped automobile proving ground in the world.

Here, on the vast fourteen-hundred-acre tract of the General Motors International Proving Ground, every type of road is duplicated, every condition of driving is reproduced. Here all makes of General Motors cars are constantly being subjected to the most searching tests. Here every principle developed by General Motors engineers is put to proof . . . every detail of each test car's performance carefully and closely checked. Here years of normal use are crowded into a few months of continuous, gruelling operation.

A typical example is offered by Chevrolet. Since the opening of the General Motors Proving Ground, Chevrolet cars alone have piled up over three million miles of testing . . . a distance equal to 125 times around the world.

In the countless millions of miles that General Motors cars have covered on the General Motors Proving Ground, there has been one great purpose kept in view . . . to improve, by constant testing, the quality and worth of every General Motors product.

Every Canadian buyer of a General Motors car gets a car built in Canada by Canadians to meet Canadian conditions of road and climate . . . a better car and a greater value because General Motors uses so freely and unsparingly its unequalled facilities for testing and research . . .

With better General Motors cars at the end of the journey, millions of miles is not too far to go.

Red Hot July Days Hard on the Baby

July—the month of oppressive heat; red-hot days and sweltering nights; it is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly they will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Horses on Farms.

According to statistics recently collected from 248,162 farms, there are 6.8 horses to each farm in Manitoba and a tractor to every 4.6 farms in the province.

Each Saskatchewan farm has 10.2 horses but there is one tractor to every 4.7 farms.

In Alberta there are 10.8 horses to each farm and one tractor to every 7.5 farms.

Great Slave Lake.

Great Slave Lake is the fourth largest body of fresh water in America. Lake Superior comes first, then Lake Huron and Michigan. It is 300 miles long and 60 miles at its widest part.

UNIVERSITY ASSETS.

McGill Is Canada's Wealthiest Institute of Learning.

The total assets of Canada's twenty-three universities are placed at $87,497,605. Nearly one-third of this total is held by McGill University, Montreal, founded in 1821. McGill's assets are given at $28,324,528, of which $18,178,648 is in investments and $3,392,570 in lands, building; and equipment.

The University of Toronto has the largest attendance of students, among the Canadian universities, with a total registration of 5,629, 3,445 men and 2,184 women. Varsity's assets are placed at $12,806,131; the land, buildings and equipment represent a value of $9,148,218, and investments and other property, $2,645,206.

The four universities in Western Canada have total assets valued at $15,592,875. While about 35 per cent. of the 42,546 students attending the twenty-three Canadian universities are women, only about 5 per cent., or 392, of the 4,263 professors on the teaching staff are of the fair sex.

In addition to the 42,546 registered students in the twenty-three universities of Canada, it is estimated that close to 20,000 young people took extension, vacation or short courses offered to farmers and farm boys and girls in 1927. These courses embrace a wide variety of subjects, from instruction in the mysteries of gas engines to the art of first-aid and home nursing. A report of the Bureau of Statistics shows that 11,254 male students took the farmers' course in the University of Saskatchewan, 5,500 young women took the homemakers' course, and 1,772 were enrolled in in the boys' stock-judging classes in the same university.

ZOO THUNDER.

Some Monkeys Just Like Girls Who Hide Under Bedclothes.

Now that the season of thunderstorms is upon us it is interesting to note the behaviour of the many inmates of the Zoological Gardens, says Answers. Like many human beings, several of the animals are noticeably affected by these atmospheric disturbances.

In the monkey house, for instance, much commotion is to be seen during a storm. Monkeys are notoriously nervous creatures, and at the first flash of lightning many are reduced to a state of pitiable nervousness, so that for some time they cease their habitual chattering and cling to each other for protection and comfort.

Just as some dogs behave strangely in a thunderstorm, so do their cousins, the monkeys. Some of them creep into a corner and remain curiously quiet, while others are reduced to a state of restlessness and pace nervously up and down their cages until the storm subsides.

Elephants are placid enough creatures, and it might be supposed that a thunderstorm would have no effect upon them, but now and gain a flash of lightning will cause the great beasts to start nervously.

Lions and tigers are also affected. Often these animals, like the wolves, pace up and down faster than usual behind the bars of their cages.

The birds in the aviaries, in strange contrast look upon a storm with philosophic calm, and remain more or less motionless on their perches.

Perhaps the calmest animals of all are the sea-lions and the hippos, who, although they show no particular signs of alarm, usually contrive to keep well submerged in water.

ELECTRIC POWER FOR EGYPT.

Will Utilize Vast Depression as Lake —Drainage Canals Not Needed.

A gigantic electric power scheme for Egypt, involving an estimated expenditure of £15,000,000 and £1,000,000 annually for maintenance, and a yearly revenue of £2,000,000, is the prospect opened up by a report of the desert survey department, says the Christian Science Monitor.

The report deals with the utilization of the vast depression of 4,500,000 acres of western desert between the Siwa oasis and the Nile delta. The area, which would be transformed into a huge lake, would have a depth in some places of 150 feet and require the inflow of 4,000,000 cubic metres daily to offset the results of evaporation and maintaining the proper level. Electrical power would be created by means of an immense conduit from the Mediterranean to Qualtara, 45 miles due south of Mersah-Mutruh.

The water would fall from a height of about 120 feet, and the natural process of evaporation, it is said, would obviate all need of drainage canals. The inflowing water thus, it is believed, would be sufficient to generate energy calculated at 170,000 to 720,000 horsepower.

Landmark Restored.

Removal of a landmark during road repairs was protested by Lady George Campbell at a meeting of Cowal (Scotland) District Committee. The landmark, a heart-shaped patch of grass at the crossroads leading to Calrodow at Lochgoilhead, was of historical and sentimental interest, said Lady Campbell. It was known from time immemorial to be the place where the wedding ceremonies of weavers took place. The committee agreed to restore the patch of grass.

Pribyloff Islands Seals.

There are now approximately 900,000 seals on the Pribyloff Islands, as compared with 215,000 in 1911, and 196,000 in 1911, when the famous sealing treaty was signed, according to Charles H. Lynch, fur commissioner of the Hudson Bay Co.

PACE TO FACE WITH ICEBERGS.

Snowflake That Was Stronger Than Steel.

A dramatic menace faced the Canadian Pacific line Montrose recently after she had steamed three days from St. John, N.B., on her way to Liverpool. Out of a misty sea two icebergs suddenly appeared, compelling the ship to collide with one. The captain, by admirable navigation, changed the direction of his ship and charged the smaller berg. Even this one towered 100 feet above the liner and scattered 100 tons of its substance on the deck, killing two men and smashing the fore part of the vessel as if it had been a flimsy boat.

Two great forces met in that collision. The vessel was of steel, cunningly wrought into beauty of outline and stability of structure; the iceberg was merely a mass of snowflakes, congealed and compressed perhaps before the first steamship was launched. It would take two years to build the ship; fifty times as long to build the iceberg.

Blasting of rock and the heat of fiery furnaces with all the skill of the workman and the scientist, converted the native ore from its matrix in the earth into a ship, says Tit-Bits. Nature, with no art but her own, made the iceberg. It was an air, a floating vapor, which may have started into warmth over the Equator, and been wafted north to chill in an Arctic temperature and fall as snow on the icy mountains of Greenland.

More snow came, year after year, decade after decade, till all air was driven out, and by pressure from above and the pull of gravity from below the snowflakes became solid ice, hard as steel.

We know that solids can flow, says a writer in the Children's Newspaper. Glaciers and the ice-sheets which cover frigid lands move slowly through time. It may take a glacier a century to reach the sea, but reach it it does. Ice in colossal masses moves steadily down, and at last thrusts out beyond the support of land, buoyed up by the waves, until weight from above and the heave and toss of a turbulent sea beneath bring about a titanic fracture, and an iceberg is born.

Icebergs launch themselves in various sizes, thousands or millions of tons in weight. They float only one part above the water, seven parts below.

Against these fortresses of ice the art of man is as yet unavailing. They are huge and terrible, lurking often in the mist. Many a stout little ship has been lost without a trace in passing between the Old World and the New, and we shall never know which was the more deadly agent, the tiny shipworm which riddles timber like a cheese or the huge iceberg which crushes vessels as if they were eggshells.

Mass and momentum give the iceberg its power over the ship upon which it comes unexpectedly. Ice has, however, a strength apart from mass. We all know how it bursts our pipes, but it can do more than this. In certain famous experiments on the frozen River Neva, cannon of ice, turned like metal on a lathe, once fired six-pounder shells. The ice was only four inches at its thickest, but it fired the shells and itself remained undamaged. Such power has the iceberg when a ship meets it at sea.

INVESTMENTS OVERSEAS.

Britain Has Nearly Forty Billion Dollars Invested Abroad.

An estimate of £2,990,000,000 as the amount of British overseas investments at the present time was announced by Sir Robert Kindersley at a recent meeting of the British National Savings Movement, according to advices transmitted to the Bankers' Trust Company of New York by its British Information Service.

This estimate compares with a figure of about the same amount for, say 1914, just prior to the outbreak of the war. These investments are estimated to have fallen post-war to about £2,000,000,000 due to sales of foreign securities made during the war period for the purpose of financing the requirements of the Government. Therefore, the Bankers Trust Company's foreign service points out, British investments abroad have grown more at about the highest pre-war level.

Sir Robert estimates the income from these foreign investments in 1928 at £250,000,000; as the pre-war income from foreign investments abroad the Bankers' Trust Company's foreign service has an estimate of about £180,000,000. Recently, therefore, the rate of income on British foreign investments has risen from about 4½ per cent. per annum pre-war to about 7 per cent. at the present time.

Parrots at School.

A parrot school consisting of 1,500 pupils and having two terms a year is run by Mr. W. A. King, of Brownsville, Texas. The birds come from Mexico and Central America and are taught to speak English. During school hours they sit on perches rising in tiers. Each class is provided with a gramophone with records containing different kinds of sentences.

The term lasts about three months. Examinations are held once a week and each bird is carefully graded. If a bird lags behind in its lessons it is placed in a separate class and given special training, and if at the end of six weeks a parrot has not learnt to say the required number of expressions or sentences it is "expelled."

SURVEY OF PIONEER LAN

Object Is to Determine Possibilities of Settling Surplus Agricultural Population in Canada to Be Fixed.

While the importance of a sur vey of lands available for settlement throughout Canada has been stressed before the immigration inquiry only by representatives of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways, but by men like Sir Jame Flavelle and C. A. Mitchell, the importance of such a survey was added weight through the interest taken in what is called the pioneer belt of Canada by research institutes in the United States.

Under the chairmanship of Dr. Isaiah Bowman of the National Geographic Society and the active direction of Dr. O. E. Baker, senior analyst of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the United States Department of Agriculture has taken in hand with the Canadian authorities question of a complete survey of the pioneer belts of the world.

The purpose of the survey of the pioneer belts is to determine the nature of the soil available, its extent, the practicability of settlement, and the chances such emigrants from the United States as may be willing to leave the conditions to be met with in the Canadian pioneer belt. Dr. Wm. H. Mills, of the Department of Mines, Ottawa, proposed to conduct the survey in conjunction with the Canadian Government, Canadian interests, is to be represented by Dr. Charles Camsell, deputy minister of the interior, and Dr. A. P. Coleman, professor of geology in the University of Toronto.

The possibilities of settling the surplus agriculturists from the United States, and the production possibilities of the pioneer belt area with respect to agricultural products of the pulpwood in order to meet the needs of growing demands of the United States industrial centres.

Canada is selected for the first survey because of its proximity to the United States and because of the similarity in natural conditions and language between the two countries. There are other pioneer belts in the world which will similarly be surveyed in the course of the next few years, two of which are in northern Africa and two in Africa.

In his report Dr. Baker points out that there is fast becoming apparent a surplus of population in the United States which will require to be settled somewhere, and Canada is the point nearest hand. Also that there is rapidly becoming apparent a shortage of agricultural products and foodstuff to meet which the American public will have to look to sources other than her own.

Viewed in the light of his preliminary statement Canada looms larger and more as the land of opportunity particularly to the agriculturist. It would also seem that the influx of settlers from the United States which has been long awaited may not be far removed.

Big Features found in no other
Low-Priced Six

AMONG the scores of advanced engineering features that contribute to the impressive quality of the New Series Pontiac Six, there are three advancements worthy of special notice . . . three important features found in no other six at Pontiac price.

First, the New Series Pontiac Six offers the smart styling, the luxurious comfort, the rich appointments and the staunch construction of bodies by Fisher.

Second, the New Series Pontiac Six engine embodies the new G.M.R. (General Motors Research) cylinder head, which uses ordinary gasoline to achieve amazing smoothness and silence with economy of operation.

Third, Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers, standard equipment on the New Series Pontiac Six, provide an ease of riding that makes the roughest roads seem smooth.

Here are three big features that no buyer of a six in Pontiac's price class can afford to overlook. Even if the New Series Pontiac Six offered no other exclusive advantages, it would still hold its position as the world's foremost low-priced six.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

"Could I have some more coffee, please?" asked the new arrival at the seaside boarding house.

"The coffee," said the landlady, "is, I am sorry to say, exhausted."

"Ah, yes, poor thing," murmured a cynical boarder, "I was expecting that. All this week I've noticed it's been getting weaker and weaker."

For Scalds or Burns. — Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is a standard remedy for the prompt treatment of scalds and burns. Its healing power quickly soothes the pain and adds a speedy recovery from the injury. It is also an excellent remedy for all manner of cuts, bruises and sprains, as well as for relieving the pain arising from inflammation of various kinds. A bottle in the house and stable saves many a doctor's and veterinary's fee.

MOTORISTS' UTOPIA.

Ordnance Provides for Uniformity of Traffic Regulations.

The complicated task of clearing away the underbrush of conflicting traffic ordinances which lie in the path of the motorist will be brought to the verge of completion with the publication of a tentative draft of a model municipal traffic ordinance agreed upon by a committee of the national conference on city and highway safety in charge of this work.

Under the general direction of A. B. Barber, manager of the transportation department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and William E. Metzger of Detroit, as chairman, the committee has attempted to harmonize automobile driving rules and practices prevailing throughout the country. The completed draft of the model ordinance will be sent to police departments, traffic engineers and interested organizations in all cities and towns. In the light of their criticism the ordinance will be perfected and offered as a pattern for the municipal regulation of automobile traffic.

The model ordinance provided a basis for uniformity of the traffic regulation everywhere in the United States. It would relieve the bewildered motorist who discovers to his chagrin that there are almost as many different kinds of traffic rules as there are cities. He might be arrested, if nothing worse happen, for observing in Philadelphia a rule for the violation of which he is liable to arrest in Denver or Galveston. At the same time the ordinance is designed to safeguard the no less bewildered pedestrian. The eight articles of the model ordinance cover, among other things, police authority, traffic signs and signals, pedestrians' rights and duties, street cars and railroad trains, stopping, standing and parking, and operation of vehicles.

"THERE SHE BLOWS"

Modern Methods Enable a Whaling Ship to Kill Ten to Twelve Times as Many Whales as Formerly.

"There she blows!" The old cry that told the crew of a whaler that a whale had been sighted by the lookout is not often heard now in the waters of the North Atlantic. It was repeated too often in the palmy days of the British whaling industry, with the result that the whales in this part have been practically exterminated. To-day it is feared the same fate may be repeated in the Antarctic.

Formerly, there was a sporting element in whaling. When a whale was sighted a boat was lowered from the whaler, and when this was near enough the great sea-beast the harpoon was thrown by hand. If the harpooner made a mistake, the whale might get away. Sometimes, too, the boat would be capsized and its crew find themselves struggling for life in the ice-cold water.

That has all been changed, says Answers. The modern harpoon is fired from a gun, and the whale has practically no chance against its pursuers. Then, too, "factory ship" methods have been adopted — the whale oil is extracted at sea, and in this way ten to twelve times as many whales can be killed by one vessel.

The toll taken among the whales can be gathered from the fact that whale oil and other products obtained from the South Atlantic area were valued at $1,250,000 in 1909; by 1925 this figure had grown to over $25,000,000. And the slaughter seems likely to be intensified, for some time past whaling has been very largely a Norwegian monopoly; now British interests are planning to take a hand in the game.

The problem was recently considered by a sub-committee of the League of Nations Economic Committee. They seem to think, however, that there is no real danger of the whales being exterminated, and, curiously enough, base their opinion on the very "factory ship" methods which have been causing other people anxiety. They say that "so much capital is involved in modern whaling that a company must kill a considerable number of whales in order to make a profit, and if hunting becomes unprofitable it will stop long before the whales are exterminated."

This seems also to be the view of Dr. Stanley W. Kemp, chief of the scientific staff of the Discovery, which has been investigating the conditions affecting whales in the Antarctic. But he points out that, once the stock of whales is seriously depleted, recovery will take centuries, if it is possible at all.

Past experience confirms that. In the Middle Ages the black whale was plentiful in the Atlantic coast of Europe, but he was hunted so assiduously that the species was practically extinct by the beginning of the seventeenth century. Since then the Greenland whale has suffered very nearly the same fate.

TRADES IN PRISON.

Japan Trying Method of Reform and Finds It Working Well.

Despite the steady increase in population, the total number of prisoners in Japan has remained stationary at about 56,000 for a number of years. This has been pointed out by Keisuke Tsuji of the Criminal Affairs Administration Bureau in his appeal for improved conditions in the prisons.

Numerous reforms have been recommended as the result of a recent prison inquiry, with increased vocational training as the main plank.

Although eighty-five trades are taught in the prison, the facilities have not kept up with the times, it is claimed. "Make men efficient and they will be honest," Tsuji says. "Japan's industrialization has tended to increase the unfortunate condition of the thousands without trades and it is by keeping the untrained at a minimum that we keep our prison population low. A prisoner who is taught a trade, when he is released, is the least likely to return to his bad habits. There is no need."

Prisoners receive from 25 cents to $5 a month for their work. They are taught reading and writing with education by motion pictures utilized.

Denuded Cocoanuts Mystify.

Reports that somehow the giant tree-climbing crabs of the deeper south seas had come into Hawaii and to were attacking the cocoanuts stirred Honolulans mildly for a few days. The finding of big cocoanuts opened and denuded of the "meat" started the rumors.

There is, however, another school of thought which holds that the destruction is caused by a rare rat, which, in Hawaii, are as nimble as squirrels, leaping from branch to branch and even running safely along telephone wires. In many south sea islands the tree-crabs climb the cocoanut stems, wrench off the fruit with their powerful nippers and somehow manage to break open the shells, devouring the juicy white meat at their crustacean leisure.

These crabs are not indigenous to Hawaii but it was feared that they had silently invaded the islands, probably brought in with cargo and had begun breeding and climbing here. The attack on the cocoanuts is not fully explained but the theory that tree rats are doing the damage is gaining ground.

WEDDING BELLS

Carleton—Gates

On June 20th, at high noon, a very pretty wedding took place at Cook's Church, Kingston, when Miss Eletha L. Gates, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Gates, of Westbrook, and Mr. Cecil Bowen Carleton, elder son of the late James Carleton, and Mrs. Harry Snider, of Hartington, were united in marriage by the Rev. H. W. Cliff, Pastor of that church.

The sacred edifice was appropriately decorated with flowers and ferns for the occasion, and the Choir were in their places. The ushers were Messrs. Eldon Boyd and Hazlett Lemmon, members of the choir of which Miss Gates had also been a member.

Promptly at the hour, to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Bessie Rogers, the dainty fair-haired bride, with her attendants, entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her away. The pretty bride was becomingly attired in a white taffeta gown with silver lace artistically arranged, and flowing veil of embroidered silk net, caught with orange blossoms, also a chaste crystal necklace, gift of the groom, and carried a beautiful bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley.

The maid of honour was Miss Hazel A. Gates, Rec. N., sister of the bride, who was handsomely attired in a dainty gown of pale green georgette beaded in crystals, and light and sheer picture hat with streamers, and carried a shower bouquet of deep pink roses.

The two bridesmaids were Miss Helen Gates, cousin of the bride, who looked pretty in a georgette gown of yellow with sheer picture hat to match, and carried a lovely bouquet of yellow roses; and Miss Flora Spruit, who was prettily attired in mauve georgette with sheer picture hat with streamers to match, and carried a shower bouquet of pale pink roses.

The very dainty flower girl was little Evelyn Babcock of Hartington, who very ably assisted in the absence of wee Audry Reid, who could not attend on account of illness. She wore a handsome little pink silk taffeta with frills and wreath of flowers in her fair hair, and carried a basket of sweet peas.

The ring-bearer was little Gordon Livingston, who carried the ring concealed on a small white satin pillow, caught with streamers and lily of the valley. The groom was attended by Mr. Kenneth Gates, cousin of the bride.

During the ceremony the Choir sang the old familiar hymn, "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden", which cast a heavenly benediction on the ceremony as it were. After the marriage service, the bridal party all entered the Sunday School hall, where the register was signed, during which time Mrs. Bryan sang, "Love's Coronation", in her usual sweet style.

The newly-weds then with their attendants, re-entered and filled out of the church. They then received congratulations and Mr. Marrison was on hand to take their photos, after which, with the invited guests, journeyed to Westbrook, to the home of the bride, where a reception was held. More than one hundred and fifty guests were served to a buffet luncheon.

The groom's gifts to the bridesmaids and maid-of-honour was each a gold bar pin, to the flower girl a gold necklace, to the ring bearer a gold signet ring, and to the best man gold cuff links. The organist, soloist and ushers also received gifts, in fact nothing feature was this day being the 28th anniversary of the bride's parents' wedding.

The many guests were received at the reception by the bride and groom's parents. The bride's mother wore navy blue georgette over sand paisley crepe-de-chine with sand hat and fur scarf and corsage of sweet peas.

The groom's mother was gowned in grey georgette over taffeta with biege hat, and also wore sweet peas.

The drawing room was decorated with mauve, white and pink flowers. The corner where the happy couple stood was banked with ferns with pedestal and flowers on either side, while over their heads hung a white bell with streamers.

The table was decorated with pink streamers, pink tuelle and candlesticks. In the centre was placed the wedding cake. The table was presided over by Mrs. J. L. P. Sproule and Mrs. S. M. Burt who poured tea, while Mrs. Sirett cut the ices.

The waitresses were the bridesmaids, assisted by Misses Mildred Caughey, Kathleen Spooner, Mae Truesdell, Margaret Spooner and Ruth Beaverton; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jarvis, Aultsville; Miss Greenie Cooke, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gates, of Aultsville. The two grandmothers of the bridegroom were present.

The bride's going away ensemble was a navy trimmed with sand, with hat and shoes and coat to match, also bulbine scarf. Amid showers of confetti, the happy couple left by motor for Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Buffalo. On their return they will reside at Hartington, where Mr. Carleton is a prosperous farmer.

Wireless on Fishing Vessels.

Fishing vessels are being increasingly equipped with wireless receiving sets and sets, it is anticipated, there will soon be very few not so fitted. This is due to an appreciation of the Dominion Government's action in broadcasting daily weather and market reports for the benefit of fishermen at sea.

ISLAND OF EX-SLAVES.

Descendants of Slaves Wrecked on Annabon Are Happy.

Four miles off the African West Coast lies the tiny island of Annobon, writes L. G. Green, of Cape Town, in the Daily Herald-Tribune.

Castaways seldom refuse to leave their lonely rock-pile when a ship arrives, but on the island of Annobon, the writer found a strange legion of black Robinson Crusoes whose forefathers never ceased being grateful for the shipwreck that stranded them there.

Four hundred years ago a Portuguese schooner bound from the Congo to Brazil, with slaves packed under her hatches, struck a reef off the island. The slaves swam ashore rejoicing, no doubt, leaving their owners to their own devices, and their descendants, 2,000 of them, live happily on Annobon to this day.

Steamers hardly ever visit Annobon, for there is little trouble. I watched the island peaks rising over the horizons from the deck of a dingy Spanish coaster in search of cocoa to fill her empty holds. Our anchor rattled down in a calm harbour formed by a volcano crater that had been sunk and been breached by the sea.

From plank and mud huts among the palm groves and orange trees came the excited islanders. Their black headman was in the first canoe, and an "interpreter," who spoke the strange pidgin English of West Africa, pidgin English is the language of the slaves from Sierra Leone to the Congo, and every trader has to learn it.

The bargaining that followed was like the old, adventurous trading days. Besides sacks of cocoa, pigs, fowls, limes, oranges, pineapples and tamarinds were offered. Old clothes, guns, spirits and tobacco were given in exchange. Money has no value on Annobon.

There was a dead whale on the beach. The islanders are expert whalermen, pursuing the whale in the old-fashioned way with open boats and hand harpoons.

Four Spanish priests were the only white men on the island. Originally Portuguese, the island passed to Spain in exchange for mainland territory. Germany tried to seize Annobon many years ago. A man-of-war visited the island, and the natives still talk of the forcible attempt to land the black-and-tan flag" which was opposed by a priest, who ran up the Spanish flag in protest.

To the tropics a man who lives forty years is reckoned an old man, but Annobon is healthy compared with the mainland of West Africa, and many aged natives are found there. The waters of the island abound with fish, and a hook baited with a red rag is seized voraciously. Fruit and vegetables grow abundantly in the volcanic soil. There is a lake of excellent fresh water.

A ONE-MAN NEWSPAPER.

Old Frenchman Insists on Airing His Views.

Paris has about thirty daily newspapers—probably a world record. The most remarkable of them bears the name of a paper long since dead, and is only one page per day is issued. It has only one reader, and he is an old man nearing his ninetieth year, who once occupied a prominent place in public affairs but is now half paralyzed. He runs out the paper, directed in any way, and, knowing his hate of all things modern and his very conservative views, loving friends see that his tranquility of mind is never disturbed.

Then they have this newspaper printed for him every day—for he is wealthy—and can well afford the expense—and he sees in it just the views and opinions that he would himself have expressed in his prime. The paper is just as it was when he read it first, and he will die in the belief that the views he has always held still triumph in the country.

In a recent number of this paper the report of the chamber proceedings described how the Government had been defeated because it showed slight leanings towards radical socialism and a new prime minister had been elected in the person of Senator Delahaye. The latter is one of the Royalist members of the Upper House.

In the Land of the Midnight Sun.

North Cape, that famous tourist resort and northernmost point of Europe tipping the Norwegian isle of Mageroe, to be made more easily available for the travellers who go to catch Old Sol awake at midnight.

The windy plateau has been selected for a period of thirty years to a limited company which among other improvements will establish a restaurant at the top. This will be Norway's only restaurant with no closing hours; or rather, it will be primarily a night cafe, since its patrons will normally be the seekers of the midnight sun.

What will prove a benefit to the scenery, but certainly a misfree of regret to tourists, is the prohibition of all advertising signs which would commemorate their North Cape climb by that means. Those who have already been on will be shocked to learn that signatures already engraved there have been obliterated.

Finger-Print Progress.

There were 35,917 searches for finger identifications in 1927, at which 17,427 proved successful. In 1902, 6,826 searches were made, when 1,722 identifications were effected, says an Old Country paper.

The total number of finger-print slips on record at Scotland Yard is about 420,000, and a gradual increase will continue to take place until most habitual criminals have been registered. The records of men known to have died or who are apparently too old to commit further crime are being removed.

The previous system of identifying criminals, called the anthropometric system, was abandoned in 1901, recognitions in 1900 and 503 in 1901.

Hunt's Chocolates are to-day about the most popular Candy in Toronto. Twenty or more stores—and new ones being opened almost weekly—are necessary to supply the demand. In Napanee you can buy this now famous Candy—fresh as if from one of their own stores—at Wallace's. In 1, 2, and 3 lb. boxes, at 60c. lb.

GOLDEN JUBILEE YEAR

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION TORONTO ONTARIO

Aug 24 to Sept 8 1928

The world's largest spectacle; attracting more people than any fair or exposition; displaying almost every known product; costing annually to stage over $1,000,000; and representing a land and building value of $15,000,000.

AT the 1928 Canadian National Exhibition, everyone will witness the most entertaining and diversified programme of all time to fittingly mark this 50th Anniversary year.

Here are a few of the hundreds of features: H. M. Royal Air Force Band (England) and other noted musical organizations; 1,500 performers on world's largest stage; Famed 2,200 Voice Exhibition Choral; First showing 1929 Motor Cars; First International Air Craft Display; Exhibit from the world over, and the outstanding Sporting Event of the year—for the World Championship, and $50,000 purse; and all Amateur Sports Programme rivalling an Olympiad.

The Third Wrigley Marathon Swim

50th Year

THOMAS BRADSHAW, President
H. W. WATERS, General Manager

You home-loving

The last few years have brought to town-dwellers many new conveniences and comforts.

They are making town life particularly attractive to a large number of home-loving people to whom city life with its higher cost of living does not make sufficient appeal.

Home-loving people are naturally strong for the homes, and for keeping up friends. Long Distance enables them to keep in touch with a wide circle of friends in the surrounding territory, and the low rates are an inducement to do so.

Even where circumstances carry town-dwellers away, the recollection of the "home-town," of friends and neighbours is always present, and they look forward to talking with them, from time to time, by Long Distance.

Chicagoan Loses and Finds Bride All In One Day.
Ottawa, Ont., June 26th.—Hatless and coatless and nearly frantic with worry, Herbert Powell, Chicago newlywed, scrambled off last evening's train and started a deluge of telegrams to Montreal. He had lost his bride at Napanee, Ont., where, after taking a ten minute constitutional, he he sprinted after the wrong train and caught it. His bride, minus money and tickets, went on to Montreal. Mr. Powell found his wife by wire, boarded a fast afternoon Montreal train, and by now should be receiving his first marital "panning". — Chicago Tribune, June 27th, 1928.

NORTHWEST AFRICA.

Remarkable Facilities for Travel Attract Tourists.

The remarkable facilities for travel and entertainment which now exist in Morocco and through northwest Africa generally are attracting many tourists to a region which a few years ago was both inaccessible and insecure for the average traveller. Almost every week sees the opening of a new motor omnibus route, and the French-owned railways cover many hundreds of miles of the country, says the Christian Science Monitor.

This part of Africa is to all intents and purposes a virgin land for the tourist and even for the well-to-do traveler who is determined to get "off the beaten track." It will remain that for a year or two, but as soon as its charms and the ease and comfort with which they now can be enjoyed are understood north Africa will be thronged with sight-seers and "de luxe" world-wanderers.

Only a few months ago the railway from Tangier to Fez was put into operation, and within a fortnight a motor-omnibus service has commenced over the recently completed metalled highway. Morocco is to-day as peaceful as an English country-side, and in some parts scarcely less attractive. Moreover, where a new and an ancient civilization come into touch with one another in such a city as Fez and the other picturesque Moroccan cities of Meknes and Marrakeesh and Tetuan one may slip into the past as deeply and as satisfactorily as in the Orient itself.

The railway from Tangier to Fez is something over 200 miles long and it is rock-ballasted throughout, with well-maintained stations and a comfortable equipment, including cafe-cars and sleeping-carriages. The trains carry four classes of passengers, the fourth being provided for the peasantry whose picturesque and varied attire, representing the dress-customs peculiar to a score of native towns, is one of the exotic features of the country.

An immense assortment of Bathing Caps, from 15c. for the regular caps to 50c., 75c. and $1.50 for the heavier diving caps. See display at Wallace's.

WEDDING BELLS.

Aylsworth—McLean.

On Wednesday, June 27th, 1928, a very pretty wedding took place in Knox Church, Toronto, when Miss Sarah E. Aylsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Aylsworth, Napanee, was united in marriage to Dr. Osbert McLean, of Toronto. The bride was prettily attired in a printed silk dress with mink stole and orchid hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses and lily-of-the-valley. After the ceremony, which was performed by the Pastor, Rev. J. Inkster, the bride and groom, were entertained to dinner at the Granite Club, by the brother of the groom, Mr. A. Coulter McLean.

Dr. McLean is the son of the late Donald R. McLean, barrister, of Toronto, and is a practicing dentist in Toronto.

After visiting the parents of the bride in Napanee, the newly married couple leave for an extended trip to Muskoka, and the north country, prior to taking up residence in Toronto.

Howard—Smith.

A very pretty June wedding was solemnized at St. George Church, Napanee, on Saturday, June 30th, 1928, by the Rev. W. P. Woodger, when Laura Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, Robert Street, became the bride of Leo Howard, of Oshawa, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Howard, Deseronto. The bride looked charming in a salmon crepe-de-chine dress, trimmed with gold lace and hat to match. They were attended by the bride's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Calver. After the ceremony they repaired to the bride's home, which was decorated with pink roses and white peonies, where a dainty table was laid for immediate relatives. The young couple left on the afternoon train for Ottawa, the bride travelling in a two-tone flat crepe dress, sand coat and hat to match. On their return, they will reside in Oshawa, where the groom is employed with the General Motors.

Man So Nervous Gets Sore When Spoken To

"It actually irritated me to have anyone talk to me, I was so nervous. Vinol ended this and I feel wonderful now."—Wm. Fahy.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. Wallace's Drug Store.

OBITUARY

John Wesley Shier, Jr.

Entered into rest on Saturday, June 30th, 1928, at 6.30 p.m., after a short illness. The late Mr. Shier was born in Tamworth on September 22nd, 1878. After completing his education in Napanee Collegiate, he went to Southern California, remaining there until he came home to be married to Edith, eldest daughter of the late C. J. Conall, in Napanee, in 1909.

He was in business in Croydon for one year, after which he took up a homestead in Saskatchewan, moving from there back to California, in 1909.

In 1917 he came back to Tamworth to take over the business previously carried on by Mr. Conall.

He was a member of both the Masonic Order and Scottish Rite, an Anglican in religion, and a staunch Conservative.

He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his sorrowing widow, three sons and two daughters, Charles Guy, of Walkerville; Douglas and Allan, Dorothy and Helen, at home. His father, J. W. Shier, Tamworth; his brothers Albert, of California, and Russel, of Manitoba; and one sister, Mrs. D. Hinchey, Tamworth, also survive.

Was Very Delicate

New Health Came Through Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Mrs. Caspar Miller, Lourdes, N.S., says that twice in her lifetime she has reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her. She says:—"I was a very delicate girl going into womanhood, when I first found benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was a sufferer with cramps and pains every month and was hardly able to move around at all. One day when I was very sick a friend came in to see me, and she said to my mother, 'Why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I know they will do her a world of good'. The result was my mother got six boxes and I began their use, and I soon found benefit from them. By the time I had taken them all I felt an altogether different girl and no longer suffered from cramps and pains. Then a few years ago I was attacked with influenza, and was sick for six weeks. Again I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and again they brought me good health. I am the mother of a family and like all my own work, so you see I have to keep in good health, and depend upon these pills to keep me so. Now I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any of my friends who may be sickly."

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood, or weak nerves, begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how your strength and health will improve. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE POSSIBLE VALUE OF THINNING FRUIT

(Experimental Farms Note)

In some of the best fruit sections fruit thinning has become a regular part of orchard routine and is accepted as a yearly duty, the same as spraying and cultivating. In the eastern fruit sections this operation has not as yet received the widespread application it merits. Where sales are made on the basis of No. 1, 2 and 3 grades, and particularly where high priced varieties are being grown, thinning may result in very materially increased returns per acre. Experimental work along this line has indicated the possibility of improving the quality of the productivity of the product by thinning. Whether or not this could be considered an economical practice depends upon the spread in price between high grade and low grade fruit. The results of the pack-out, given later, indicate more completely the larger number of No. 1 and No. 2 apples on the thinned trees as compared with the unthinned. An attempt has also been made to estimate the actual gain or loss in this instance due to thinning.

It should be pointed out that the operation of thinning is one which actually does not cost the grower any more than not thinning. The apples on the tree must be picked at harvest time, and if a certain number of these are picked in early summer and dropped, these do not have to be picked again. It is easy to see that picking and dropping the fruit on the ground is much less expensive than picking in the fall, carefully placing in a basket, hauling to the packing-shed, grading and packing. If a large number of these apples are 3's and culls and have to be discarded or sold as cider apples it is easy to see that this expensive handling can come to more than the small price received for such produce. Here in our opinion lies the great advantage of thinning, viz., by reduction of the number of culls the cost of picking and handling may be reduced to the minimum. It is often difficult for growers to appreciate this point and many insist that the cost of removing the fruit in summer must be added to the cost of picking the trees had they not been thinned. If this is done the thinned crop is being asked to bear the cost of picking a percentage of its fruit twice, which does not occur.

A brief summary of the pack-out from some thinning experiments with Wealthy are given below:

Pack-out Returns from Thinned and Unthinned Trees, in Per Cent

	No.1	No.2	No.3	Culls
Not thinned	15.3	34.9	46.1	3.7
Thinned to 8"	32.1	40.3	19.5	7.8
Thinned to 4"	28.5	38.8	25.2	9.5
Thinned 1 to a spur	7.5	26.1	39.0	27.4

The following summary of the gain per tree, due to thinning, is far more eloquent than many pages of written matter:

Summary.

Briefly the net gain in dollars and cents, due to the different degrees of thinning amounted to the following:

When thinned to 8", a gain of $1.59 per tree.

When thinned to 4", a gain of $2.12 per tree.

When thinned 1 to a spur a gain of 46c. per tree.

Summer Complaints Kill Little Ones

At the first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little one Baby's Own Tablets or in a few hours the baby may be beyond aid. These Tablets will prevent summer complaint if given occasionally to the well child, and will promptly relieve these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine as good and the mother has the guarantee that they are absolutely safe. They are sold by druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little booklet, "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness", will be sent free to any mother on request.

"Then we came to the lovely blue sea, Portland stood under a palm and folded his arms."

"Is that all?"

"But I was in the arms that he folded."

RELICS AMID RUINS

Monumental Effigies Dating Back to 1295 Found In Inchmahome Priory, Lake of Menteith.

Amid the ruins of Inchmahome Priory, Lake of Menteith, Scotland, are to be found monumental effigies dating back to about 1295, of Sir Walter Stewart, Earl of Menteith, and Countess Mary, his wife, says a writer in the Glasgow Herald.

Sir Walter, who distinguished himself in the Crusades; was a witness of the marriage contract signed on July 25, 1281, between Princess Margaret of Scotland and Eric King of Norway, and supported the title of the Maiden of Norway to the Scottish throne on the death of her grandfather, Alexander III. She, however, died on her way to Scotland, and Sir Walter then identified himself with the claims of Bruce, being appointed a commissioner. He died shortly afterwards.

It was in Sir Walter's time that surnames came into general use, and while he retained the paternal Senescalli or Stewart, his sons adopted the name of their principal title and were afterwards known as Menteith. His successor, Alexander, bore for arms three bars wavy, in right of his mother, the arms of the old Earls of Menteith, surmounted by the Stewart fess checky.

Sir Walter Stewart's younger son, the notorious Sir John Menteith of popular legend and tradition, was Captain of Dunbarton when Scotland was under Edward I., but on the death of Edward, however, Sir John threw in his lot with Bruce and fought at Bannockburn in 1322, along with Randolph and others, he was sent by Bruce of Newcastle to negotiate a truce with England. He died soon after this, and is said to have been buried at Inchmahome.

The operations of his Majesty's Office of Works have recently unearthed an effigy of considerable interest and importance. It represents a knight of the chain mail reinforced period, say, 1300-1340, the shield charged with the undifferenced bend checky of the Stewarts, who adopted Menteith as their surname.

This effigy was discovered in the area within the foundations of the building which existed on the north side of the choir of the Priory of Inchmahome. It still lies on its face where it was found, and until it is cleaned and erected only a partial examination can be made.

Pending an examination by experts, it may be said that the effigy is in a better state of preservation than the older one in the choir, owing doubtless to the fact that it has been covered by the earth for two centuries. Unfortunately, the effigy has been broken below the knees and the right arm is missing. But the shield, surcoat, decoration of belt and buckle, etc., show well-preserved detail.

So far as the period of the armor and treatment of the surcoat and shield are concerned, it might represent Sir John Menteith. But the armorial seal used by Sir John bore a fess checky, a bend, and a label, and the shield of this effigy bears the bend checky of Menteith pure and undifferenced. Possibly, even probably, this newly-discovered effigy is the effigy of Sir Walter Menteith of Rusky, son of Sir John Menteith and grandson of Sir Walter Stewart, Earl of Menteith.

EMPIRE'S WATCH-DOG.

Chief of the Criminal Investigation Department of Scotland Yard.

Was it because they felt that he would one day become one of the great watch-dogs of the nation that his companions in a certain military mess, when he was a very young man, nicknamed Sir Wyndam Childs "Fido"?

Sir Wyndham is chief of the Criminal Investigation Department of Scotland Yard. As such he is responsible for all the secret attention which is paid to the safety of London from criminals. But he is also responsible for something infinitely bigger.

As head of the Secret Service he sits in a small room near the Thames Embankment listening to the whispers of the world.

The son of a Cornish lawyer, Sir Wyndham once followed the law. But the army called, and now he is the Empire's premier policeman. He is fifty-two, just an ordinary-looking individual. You might pass him on the street and never notice him. But it would not matter if you ordinary you were, he would notice you.

Plates from Powders.

Translucent bowls, drinking cups, ash-trays, and other ornaments now on sale in many shops are made from different colored powders, and the finished articles resemble grained marble.

The powders are placed in a special chromium-plated steel mould, on which pressure is brought to bear for a few minutes at the same time as heat is applied to the plateau of the trees. The steam heats the powders plastic before they solidify.

The process is simple and cheap, and the articles, in addition to being beautiful, are almost unbreakable.

Where Scots Are Barred.

"All Scots entering the Isle of Man, after their peril, and must leave the island by the next boat bound for Scotch to Scotland on pain of forfeiture of their goods and their bodies to prison." This is one of the odd but loud old laws still in force in the Isle of Man, and in this never been repealed, and is an interesting survival of the old days of antagonism between the islanders and the Scots.

ANNOUNCING A REMARKABLE NEW BUILDING MATERIAL

INSUL-BOARD

(INSULATING BOARD)

A Board that shuts out cold. Stops heat. Deadens sound. An extraordinary building and insulating Board designed to make home interiors more comfortable, more restful and more healthful the whole year through. An All-Canadian Board, made in Canada from the products of Canada's Forests.

INSUL-BOARD meets the need for a stouter and more pliable material for wall and ceiling insulation. Its greater structural efficiency has been proven under critical tests by Canada's leading engineers. It makes the walls more rigid, more enduring, more capable of resisting severe strain and stress.

INSUL-BOARD insulates completely, producing a sure and lasting shield against winter's cold and summer's heat, sealing the home interior tight against all atmospheric discomfort.

BROILER CHICKENS FOR THE BEST TRADE

Broiler chickens, when properly finished, are eagerly purchased by householders and restaurant operators who regard them as a high class delicacy. Unfortunately during the months of highest production the price these birds bring runs low because so many of them are marketed in a thin, unfinished condition. On this subject the Weekly Egg and Poultry Market Review, issued by the Dominion Live Stock Branch at Ottawa, has the following to say under date of May 29th:

"Complaints are still being received concerning the poor, unfinished quality of broilers reaching the market. Birds of this type, in addition to bringing a poor price themselves, have an adverse effect on the price of the better grades."

It is true that the marketing of the entire broiler crop within a space of about two months has a depressing influence on the market, but these birds could be moved into consumptive channels much more readily were they properly finished and suitable for a high class trade.

Investigations into broiler market conditions which are at present being conducted by the Dominion Live Stock Branch, indicate that a number of retail dealers not handling broilers would be quite willing to do so could they secure the quality of birds essential for their trade. The retail market is essentially high class and it is very difficult to find an immediate outlet for the unfinished birds.

New Highway.

A new highway through the Rockwilderness from Rustic, Me., 30 miles, to Aubs extends for miles through woods and mountains and skirting the shores of a chain of lakes at the headwaters of the Dead river, the Arnold trail, as the new route has been named, is one of the most picturesque in the state, besides providing a shorter route between Central Maine and Canada.

The highway extends northwesterly, per bus. Rustic along the chain of ponds in the valley of the Dead river to Spencer and through Tlantic pond, a notch in the mountains to the Canadian border. At Arnold pond it connects with a highway to Wheelock, Megantic, Quebec, where it joins the main road to Three Rivers, Quebec and Montreal.

Rubber from Potatoes!

Will the potato prove to be the world's great source of rubber? The best synthetic rubber is about equal to the best grade of reclaimed rubber, but the way has been found for improvement.

"What is needed," says Dr. William Crocker, "is a large supply of cheap amyl alcohol, which can be obtained from potatoes."

Clean-up the Source of WEEDS

1 In vacant lots and partially cultivated fields.

2 In fence corners where the plough-share cannot penetrate.

3 Along the roadways of your district.

Each year weeds destroy Ontario's crops to the extent of millions of dollars. You must help rid your community of this menace by co-operating in every way. See that your own land is clear. Report weed growths on roadways, vacant properties or uncultivated fields to your representative on your local council or to your weed inspector.

Thus you will be doing your duty in exterminating one of the greatest enemies of successful farming—noxious weeds.

WEDDING BELLS

Caley—Garrison.

A charming wedding was solemnized Saturday, at 8 o'clock, at St. Mark's and St. Johnsgood Church, when Miss Mary Garrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Garrison, of Napanee, Ontario, became the bride of Mr. Caley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Caley, of Park Avenue, Rochester, N.Y., and United in marriage by Rev. Cyril R. Carrie, Pastor of the Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in a gown of white satin in bouffant style and on the skirt were ruffles of rose-point lace. Her veil was of tulle edged with lace arranged in cap fashion and caught on each side with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Madelyn Garrison, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor. She wore pink organdie with a full skirt, match and carried a bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas.

The other two sisters, the Misses Cora and Nellie Garrison, were her bridesmaids. They wore flowered net and lavender organdie with hats to match, and carried old fashioned bouquets.

Mr. Ernest Caley, Napanee, Canada, was the best man, and the ushers were Wilbur Caley, brother of the groom, and Reed Blast.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride, after which Mr. and Mrs. Caley left on a trip to Virginia and New York City.

They will make their home in Bloomsom Road, after June 30th.

RETURN OF ROBIN HOOD

WIELDING THE LONG BOW GAINING FAVOR.

Archery Is a Sport That Appeals to Those Who Like Games of Strength and Skill—Marvellous Accuracy of Some Experts.

Archery is a sport that is fast gaining popularity in Canada.

A number of Toronto archers put on an exhibition of their art for the Toronto Star Weekly and the other evening, writes Gregory Clark. In all-white costume, with their quivers and tassels, their long bows and slim little arrows, scores of bowmen, and not a few Maid Marians, as you might call bow-women, stood at the butts and loosed their shots at the bull's eye. A fresh wind was blowing from the northwest. The targets were sixty, eighty and a hundred yards. Standing in pairs, they nocked their arrows in turn, standing at right angles to the target, raised their bows high and drew, the right hand coming back to the cheek, the left arm being extended with the bow. They do not pinch the arrow between thumb and finger, but use three fingers of the right hand to draw the bowstring. The arrow is held lightly, like a cigarette, between the first joints of the first and second fingers.

Loosing the arrow is done by simply straightening these three fingers. There is a quiet click from the bowstring, and the arrow, with a hissing speed, flicks through the air.

There is enough danger in these steel-tipped arrows to put them easily through even a fat man. So there is considerable etiquette at the butts. They all wait until the last arrow is shot, then they all stride down the green together to retrieve, and when they return, and take up their positions at the pegs to shoot again, someone cries "Fast!" to make sure that no one has fingered down by the targets.

None of the archers is interested in the practical side of archery. They are not interested to talk about shooting big game with arrows, though Commander des Marchais's quiver is the shank of a black-tailed deer he shot out in Alberta with an arrow. He has killed coyotes, wolves, deer and other medium game with the bow. They would rather talk about the sport and the art and craft of the sport.

There is all colored with romance and the modern Robin Hood is most anxious to keep up every association that links his sport with the glamorous past. Arrows are weighed with shillings and pence. The old war arrows was an eight-shilling arrow—it weighed eight shillings. The popular arrow in modern sport is one weighing four shillings and a half.

A pair of arrows is not two but three arrows. Some one in the party can explained this was that a pair of arrows was two arrows and a matched one for luck.

You do not shoot an arrow. You idese it. When you wish to examine an arrow to see if it is true and straight, you do not look narrowly along it, but you twist it carefully on the nails of your thumb and forefinger, bent together, and then give it a sharp spin or twirl. If the arrow spins rouns, it is straight. If it wanzies and wobbles, it is crooked. There are many finite distinctions from tradition, because the Robin Hood archers made them all in green; but for safety's sake, so that no one will start shooting while anyone linesman is on the butts.

The present activity in archery is not a new fad, the first tournament of the National Archery Association in America being held as far back as 1879 in Chicago, and old photos show the hatchetted and bewhiskered archers of that period with bows and arrows and stances identical with those of to-day. There were eighty-nine contestants, representing eight clubs in different parts of the States.

The marvellous accuracy celebrated in old tales of romance is not so fanciful in view of the performances of some of the expert archers of today. Geo. Iver Thord-Grey not long ago shot against a team of fifteen American revolver shots. They shot at ordinary targets and the archer, Mr. Thord-Grey oeat them so badly that he set his target at eighty yards distant and the revolver men could not get shots beyond belief. Hitting the rings of the target is one thing and hitting a bullseye another. They put up a wand in the ground, about the size of a broom handle, ordinary clothes-prop and fire at it at 100 yards. And it's not enough to make the modern soldier or hunter feel safe, even though he had had a long bow and some steel-headed arrows for the purpose of feathering him in a ball round the working parties he had seen on patrol.

The exploits of Dr. Saxton Pope and Arthur Young in shooting African lions and grizzlies of the Rockies with bows and arrows have received a great deal of attention in recent years. They use not the near-Japan arrow of the butts but a broad-headed arrow and a hundred pound bow not unlike that used by Ishi and Apollitie the bowmen of England used at Crecy.

It takes a lot of sport to make the modern world. Toronto's archers are not as yet in number as Toronto's golfers were the time George S. Lyon, a young cricketer, saw a curious old fashioned ball game in a field around the Rosedale cricket grounds with a stick—and George S. not knowing what was the game, stopped a couple of idle curiosity and asked the old gentleman what he was doing. And George S. learned the game of golf.

It is a sport that takes root in that ancient desire of home sapiens to love to be flinging something at something.

Codfish as Coins.

In Iceland codfish have formed the coins of the realm, and at one time, in Abyssinia, salt; while cakes of tea in India, and pieces of silk in China, have also taken the place of cash.

"I'm sorry, but I'm afraid you are not qualified for the position; you don't know anything about my business."

"Don't I? Why, your typist is the girl I'm going to marry."

ROD AND GUN

A pleasantly varied bill of fare dealing with some more unusual phases of life in Canada's outdoors features the July issue of Rod and Gun and Canadian Silver Fox News which has just been published. While Ernest Ripley contributes one of his splendid stories, Bungarabbit Jake, in view of a recent discussion, this month deals with natural phenomena in Canada which have been mistaken for the fabled sea serpents.

Robert James continues his interesting series of "Tales from the Wardroom Mess" with sketches of life in the south and the Swampy Cree. Other articles deal with many subjects from song birds to wild cats and jack rabbits and fish, dogs and guns. The Canadian Silver Fox News section, capably edited by J. R. Barr, contains a great quantity of interesting and instructive articles relative to the industry.

Rod and Gun and Canadian Silver Fox News is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ontario.

HELPING WARRIOR HUSBANDS.

Peculiar Customs of Primitive Women When Men Go to War.

Primitive women are not idle when their husbands are at the wars. In thought, word and deed they show that they do is most important to the absent ones.

In places of Borneo, a wife will wear, day and night, a sword of her husband's while he is on head-hunting expeditions. So, she imagines, will he always be thinking of his weapons. Nor will she sleep by day nor go to bed sooner than two o'clock in the morning, lest he be surprised in his sleep by an enemy.

Elsewhere in Borneo, says a writer in the Outline, the husband's mat is spread for him as if he were at home. The fires are kept burning long into the night and lit again before sunrise, so that he may suffer no cold.

Fijian wives and sisters think that long to the men are kept rolled up in Malay, when they go on a campaign. For if anyone slept on these in their absence, the owners' bravery would be impaired.

Most complicated are the rules, again based on telepathy, observed among the Sea Dyaks of Banting in Sarawak. The women must work very early in the morning and open their houses as soon as it is light, otherwise their absent husbands will oversleep. The women may not oil their hair after the sun has risen. They must cook and scatter popcorn on the floor every morning, so that the men will be agile.

The rooms, too, must be well tidied, with no bones left about, for if anyone stumbled over them the absent husbands would fall before the foe. Neither do the women sit at the loom till their legs grows cramped, lest the husbands be similarly afflicted when in battle. Should a wife prove unfaithful, her husband would surely meet his death.

A wife of a Shan of Burma has rules more picturesque. Every fifth day she ceases from working and rests. Also she puts water in an earthen cup, filling it to the brim, and sets it down in the water every day. Were the water to sink or the lowers to droop, that would mean to her an omen of death. In addition, the wife takes care never to sleep in her husband's bed while he is away.

Probably, of such observances, there is recorded in an ancient history of Madagascar are the most exacting; "The wife the men are at the wars," it says, "and with their return, the women and girls cease not day and night to dance, and neither lie down nor take food in their own houses. Many believe that by dancing they impart strength, courage, and good fortune to their husbands."

WATER THEIR STAFF OF LIFE.

El Molo Tribe Are Most Amazing People.

The most amazing race of human beings is undoubtedly the El Molo, a tribe of Africans. They live entirely on fish, and their diet, as they have no opportunity of varying their menu unless they are fortunate enough to capture a hippopotamus.

The water of Lake Rudolf is undrinkable to anyone but the El Moro, for it contains a large quantity of soda and has an objectionable taste. The presence of soda in that lake increases yearly, and it is believed by be this fact that has caused the "fish-men" to become a deformed race.

Encouraging Private Building.

Confronted by a critical housing shortage in its capital and other cities, the Soviet Government has found it necessary to encourage private enterprise in the building industry.

Under new regulations adopted by the Council of People's Commissars private ownership for terms as long as eighty years is permitted to persons who build their own houses, Municipalities are provided also for private business men dealing in building materials. In some instances they are even accepted as tenants-purchasers of the railroads.

Houses erected through private initiative will be occupied by banks as collateral for loans and credits. It will be possible to own and rent them. The law specifically gives foreigners and concessionaires the same rights as others in this connection.

Maya Culture.

What was the origin of the remarkable culture of the Maya and the Incas, who were the most advanced of all the aboriginal races of which one knows with certainty. That, it originated on the Asiatic side of the Pacific is possible. The architecture of the Mayas is so suggestive of the ruined architecture of Java, that one is impressed with the feeling that these two cultures may have had the same origin. In that case the Mayas would have been among the latest customers from Asia, later than the ancestors of the American Indians and those of the dark-skinned Aztecs of Mexico.

Parliament's "Thin Red Line."

Along the edges of the carpet on each side of the British House of Commons runs a red line. By an unwritten law no member may pass these lines when speaking. The custom dates from the days of the Carliers and Roundheads.

A GEOGRAPHIC PUZZLE

Russia Claims 146,000,000 People

But Accurate Census of Nomads Impossible, It Is Stated.

A year ago Russia announced that the union had 146,394,921 inhabitants, according to a new census. Recently, censis enumerators brought by the motor-swept sands of the Kara Kum desert, in the trans-Caspian region, upset these figures when they reported 250,000 Soviet Soviet subjects which had not been counted.

Although the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is three times the area of the United States, it has but 146,000,000 more inhabitants," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Russia owns one-seventh of the land area of the world, has become a great power among the soviet creations. It is the world's largest continuous country, and is second only to the British Empire among the world's land holders. Unlike the British Empire, however, its possessions are all within the continents—Europe and Asia. A trip across the union from its western to its eastern border would be nearly equal a round trip from New York to San Francisco.

"From the borders of Poland and Rumania on the west, the union stretches across half of Europe and northern Asia to the easternmost point of Kamchaka, which extends into the Pacific Ocean. Its bleak islands of the north are nearer the North Pole than Spitsbergen and its southern frontiers are on a parallel of Norfolk and San Francisco.

To tour the union a traveler needs a year-round wardrobe, continues the bulletin. "The Government operates a radio station 650 miles north of the Arctic Circle, where the Eskimos huddle themselves in numerous layers of furs. Along the northern part of Russia and Siberia the traveller sees the Samoyed, snugly wrapped, emerge from his hut or dugout, straddle the reindeer, which is his only transportation, and race across a land of perpetual snow. The whole range of temperature states are encountered in the middle region, while in the extreme south, where other sov et subjects sat on camels, straw hats and summer linens are even uncomfortable.

Politically, the union is divided into six constituent republics. They in turn, comprise more than thirty autonomous units, in many of which the inhabitants widely differ in race, languages, customs, costumes and culture. The Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic, the largest of the six, includes most of European Russia and Siberia. It is here the size of Canada, with a population nearly equal to that of the whole French empire, which counts Africa and the Mediterranean. The Turkoman Soviet Socialist Republic and the Usbek Soviet Socialist Republic, between the Caspian Sea and the back door of China, are about six times as large as New York State, but have a population about equal to that of New York city.

The Trans-Caucasian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic, which includes Georgia, Azerbaijan and Armenia, has a population nearly equal to New York city and its area is slightly less than twice that of the State of California. Soviet Socialist Republic, occupying the southwestern corner of Russia, is slightly smaller than California in area, with a population less than that of San Francisco."

A VAST PUBLIC ESTATE.

Greatest Landowner In France Is the French State.

The greatest landowner in France is the French state. It possesses palaces, castles, mansions, buildings of all kinds, and forests—besides roads, ports, railways. A record of all its properties, just drawn up, reveals a total value of $3,800,000,000.

The castle and park of Versailles are estimated at $240,000,000. Fontainebleau is much cheaper, $4,280,000, and its wonderful forest is worth only $2,000,000. Also, the lovely castle of Azay-le-Rideau, in Touraine, is entered in the inventory for the modest sum of $20,000.

To make up for that, the Louvre, in Paris, with its immense palace and its three collections, comes up to the sum of $200,000,000. But the French administration refused to assign any monetary value to certain monuments, such as Notre Dame de Paris and the Arc de Triomphe, which symbolize a glorious past. Nor to the war cemeteries in foreign countries under the care of the state. Where the children of France, who sacrificed their lives for justice and liberty.

Snake Has Trick Tongue.

One of the wonders of the zoological world is the tongue of a snake which is an inhabitant of the South American forests. The tongue has three organs, which project from the reptile's forehead, cheeks, and under-jaw. The result is that when the snake puts out its tongue the effect is as if the pointed snout itself had suddenly shot out into a strange and wriggling point. From the snake's point of view the result is all that could be desired. Lizards see their foe suddenly making the most remarkable grimaces and remain rooted to the spot. Such uncanny fascination holds the lizard enthralled for the remainder of its life—usually a matter of seconds.

Immunized to Diphtheria.

The five-year campaign undertaken in 1926 by official and voluntary agencies in Toronto, Ontario to wipe out diphtheria has already resulted in the immunization of 417,000 children, according to means of toxin-antitoxin treatments.

HEARTBREAK HOUSE

Wells Fifty Feet Deep and Eight Feet Thick.

The new Bank of England will be a real heartbreak house for cracksmen. Wells fifty feet deep and eight feet thick enclose the vaults of gold and such are the provisions for security that it would take a hundred cracksmen a year to get into the main vault — provided, of course, the guards were all on holiday and the alarms weren't working.

The alarms are so delicate that a glove or pocketbook dropped in a most unlikely spot would start half-a-dozen bells ringing.

Ten tons of dynamite and modern oxy-acetylene apparatus could not penetrate the main vaults. There is a double door of steel grilles—two-inch bars of finest steel, two inches apart—backed by electricity, followed by two steel doors, each weighing eighteen tons and riddled with keyholes, yet so finely balanced that when the bolts are withdrawn a child could move them.

Miles of wires interlace the new building, forming the most intricate alarm system in the world.

Language Minus Nouns or Verbs.

A language that has no nouns or verbs is among the 160 languages which Sir George Grierson has mastered in a linguistic survey of India, which has just been completed.

The survey was begun soon after Sir George went to India and when phonetic rules prohibit the existence of more than a few hundred words and that cannot express what is to us the commonest and most simple of ideas. And there are others with opulent vocabularies rivalling English in their copiousness and in their accuracy of idea expression. There are languages which know neither noun nor verb, and whose only grammatical feature is syntax, and there are others with grammatical systems so complicated set out as those of Greek or Latin."

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Albert Edward Milligan, who passed from this life, July 10th, 1925.

This day of all days in the year
Is one to memory ever dear;
A day that comes with sad regret,
And one that we will ne'er forget.
It was his last with us on earth,
We miss his smile, his valued worth;
Dear Jesus, grant one last request,
That we may meet him with the blest.

Sadly missed by Wife and Daughters.

—Mr. E. C. Holgrath, of Brooklin, Ont., has purchased the business of Neely's, on Dundas Street. Mr. Holgrath was married yesterday to Miss Hunter, daughter of Mr. G. H. Hunter, Brooklin.

—Owing to the Court of Revision being held in the Town Hall, North Fredericksburgh, on July 10th, the regular meeting of the Maple Leaf Institute will be held on Tuesday, July 17th.

—Miss Eleanor Emberley, pupil of Miss A. Williams, was successful in obtaining honours in Junior Pianoforte Grade of the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

—St. Matthew's Church, Marlbank, staged an enjoyable strawberry festival on the church grounds last Thursday. Members of the Tamworth Orchestra gave many numbers, and recitations were given by Mr. Varty and Miss Brown, all of which were much appreciated.

Flies have caused more deaths than all wars. Since the fly came into the world it has been synoamous with epidemics of pestilence and disease. But with FLY-TOX it is a very simple easy matter to rid the house of flies to keep it fresh and clean, free of insect taint. FLY-TOX is the scientific insecticide developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Fellowship. Simple instructions for killing ALL household insects on blue labeled bottles. INSIST on FLY-TOX. —Adv. 28a —County Clerk W. G. Wilson informs us that an Order-in-Council has been passed by the Provincial Government on the 4th July, 1928, approving of By-law 473, passed March 11th, 1926, providing for the addition to County Road System of the following: "That part of County Road No. 12, extending southerly through the Township of Ernestown from County Road No. 5, being the road known at the Newburgh-Yarker Road to the Provincial Highway, about 2½ miles west of the Village of Odessa."

—Mr. Ross Cuvers, of the Ontario Agricultural College, is in Lennox and Addington this week, giving demonstrations on culling poultry; also killing and preparing fowl for market. These meetings have been arranged by J. Laughland, Agricultural Representative. The large attendance shows that poultry is a live subject with the farmers of this district.

—There were two very impressive services at St. Mary Magdalene Church on Sunday, when his Lordship, the Bishop of Ontario, officiated. In the morning a flower service was held, about fifty little children forming a procession, and presenting their floral offerings at the altar. The flowers were afterwards sent to Kingston to the Sick Children's ward. In the evening, twelve candidates were presented for Confirmation. The Communion service on Sunday next will be at 10.30 a.m.

WEDDING BELLS

Robinson—McCormick

A very pretty wedding took place in St. Luke's Church, Camden East, on June 27th, when Margaret Bertha, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McCormick, Sr., of Switzerville, was united in marriage to James Arthur, second son of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson, Camden East. In the absence of the Rector, through illness, Rev. Mr. Swaine, of Bath, officiated. At 2 o'clock the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, escorted by the full choir. The young bride looked very sweet gowned in pink silk ninon over silk taffeta, with a veil arranged in cap effect with lace and orange blossoms, carrying a bouquet of pink and white carnations and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid was Miss Hazel Lewis, of Newburgh, gowned in pink georgette, and carried a corsage bouquet of white peonies. The groom was supported by his brother, George Robinson, of Camden East, and little Dorothy Huff, niece of the groom, acted as flower bearer, gowned in blue fugi silk with hat to match. The church was tastefully decorated by the members of the Choir, of which the groom was a member. After the ceremony the bridal party motored to Napanee, where the young couple took the train for a short trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. On their return they will reside at Switzerville, where the groom is a prosperous young farmer.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

F. H. Seeley, of Chicago and Philadelphia, nationally famous expert, will himself personally be at the Quinte Hotel, and will remain in Belleville, on Monday only, July 16th, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mr. Seely says:

"The Spermatic Shield will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Being a vast advancement over all former methods—exemplifying instantaneous efforts immediately appreciable and withstanding any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions, with distinguished personal patrons of all nations." "His method has always been most satisfactory."—Late Dr. Edward Shippen, former Medical Director, U. S. Navy.

This instrument is the same as supplied to Surg. Genls. Bureau, U. S. Naval Hospital—Pens. R. R., Etc., Etc.

He will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired. Business demands prevents stopping at any other place in this section.

N.B.—Every statement in this notice has been verified before the Federal and State Courts.—F. H. SEELEY.

CAUTION—All cases should be cautioned against the use of any elastic or web truss with undersupports, as same rest where the lump is and not where the opening is, often resulting in strangulation.

Canada's Market — The Empire

ROLL down the map of the world. Follow the British Empire red through the continents and across the seas. There you see beckoning markets for Canada—where fewer trade restrictions intervene, where British tradition is appreciated, where Canada is known. There we can sell. There we can also buy.

Canada is buying more Empire goods than ever before—things we cannot grow or make—raw materials for our factories. Since 1922 Canada's imports from Empire countries have increased 67 per cent. Last year we bought Empire goods to the value of $250,000,000.

And what is Canada selling the Empire? Last year we shipped $500,000,000 worth of our products to other British lands, an increase of 44.3 per cent. in six years.

The various parts of the Empire want more Canadian goods. A demand exists among them for Canadian manufactures, or for the products of Canadian lands or waters. But we must see that our exports are maintained at a rigid standard, that they are packed as consumers desire, and that our prices are right.

To encourage this growing Empire trade, eleven of Canada's twenty-four Trade Commissioners abroad, are working in Empire centres. They are familiar with the demands of the people among whom they live. Their services and the information they gather are at the command of any Canadian producer or exporter. To get into touch with Trade Commissioners, write the Commercial Intelligence Service, Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

When you buy Empire goods, you do a part in making possible greater Canadian exports to these sister countries. Where we sell, we must also buy.

The Empire Opportunity in Manufactured Goods

Of 38 groups of manufactured goods Canada and the Empire together imported a total of $178,000,000 in 1927. It is to be remembered that the Empire imports from all countries these goods to the amount of $2,571,000,000. The British Empire presents a tremendous opportunity for the development of export on these commodities.

NON-STOP.

By Liam O'Flaherty.

Little Billy Barton, the office boy, brought around his employer's motor-cycle every evening from the garage to Stephen's Green in Dublin. At six o'clock precisely his employer came along, started the engine, and set off to his cottage near Rathfarnham. Sometimes the employer gave Billy a tip when the machine looked bright and attractive, having been polished up by Billy.

One evening Billy wanted a shilling very badly. Another office boy had given him a tip about a dog that was running in a hurdle race that evening at Shelbourne Park. Billy thought that his employer would be very pleased if he found the engine running when he came from the office. He might consequently be very generous and give Billy a shilling.

"Hello!" he would say, thought Billy. "There she is, started an' all. You're a nifty little beggar. Upon my soul you are. Here's a bob for you."

Billy knew absolutely nothing about motor-cycles, but he had seen his employer starting his by running it along the road and then jumping on to it. Of course he "fiddled" with something before he ran it along, and Billy had only a very vague idea of what he "fiddled" with. However, he decided to "chance his arm".

That evening he took the motor-cycle from the garage as usual and wheeled it down to the Leeson Street corner of Stephen's Green. Then he began to "fiddle" with it. He touched various little things, and then he said to himself: "She should be tuned up all right now. I'll give her a run."

A New Start

He ran the machine along the road down a little incline and, by Jove! after some difficulty the engine started. Billy grasped the handle-bars, jumped into the saddle, and off he went. He felt fine. He thought all the taxi drivers lounging around the cab ranks were looking at him. He tooted the horn at every girl that passed along the side-walks. He leaned far out over the handle-bars and turned the peak of his cap to the back of his head, so as to look like a racing motor-cyclist.

However, as he rounded the corner opposite the Shelbourne Hotel, he began to feel nervous. He usually met his employer about a hundred yards farther down, and he wanted to slow up. The motor-cycle was going at about eight miles an hour. Whatever way he had "fiddled" with the machine, it apparently travelled regularly at this rate of its own mysterious accord. How was he to stop it or put on the brakes? He looked down at the engine and examined all the little "gadgets," but he could not make out which was the one to make the machine stop. He touched one at last, and the result was that the machine increased its speed slightly. Billy grasped the handle-bars fiercely and gave way to terror. The machine went on, thudding mechanically. It was going so slowly that pedestrians did not hurry to get out of the way, and Billy began to perspire. He kept making a great noise with the horn, trying to point out to the people that the machine, even though it was going very slowly, was in spite of that dangerous, since it would not stop.

He followed the railing of the green, around the top of Grafton Street, to the next corner at the Hotel Russell, and then on towards Leeson Street. Opposite the University Chapel he conceived the idea of jumping off, running beside the machine, and then pulling at it with all his strength in an endeavour to stop it that way.

He tried that, but he only succeeded in almost running over an old woman, who cried after him: "Hey! Ye little ruffian. Who d'ye think ye are? A circus performer or what?"

Non-Stop Flight

Billy jumped on to the cycle once more, set his teeth, and began to pray. As he went round the Green the second time people began to notice him. An old taxi driver called out: "Hey! What are ye on? An endurance flight?" People began to laugh. As he went around the third time little crowds began to gather at the corners of the Green. As he went round the fourth time he was cheered by newsboys at the corner of Grafton Street. The fifth time round three schoolboys on little bicycles joined him opposite the College of Surgeons and began to race him. A great cheer went up from a crowd of loafers opposite the Hotel Russell. He passed the appointed stopping-place for the sixth time pursued by the madly cycling schoolboys, and he saw, his employer standing there. His employer was very red in the face.

"I say," cried his employer. "I say. Get off that bicycle."

Billy was speechless with confusion. He gripped the handle-bars still more tightly and went on. His employer began to run along the pavement gesticulating. A policeman came up. A taximan opposite the United Services Club shouted out, as he pointed with his finger to the rear: "They're callin' ye, matey. Ye dropped yer whip." A great cheer went up as he reached the corner of Grafton Street, and a newsboy shouted: "Stop press! Captain Campbell is breaking the world's record in Stephen's Green!"

Now there was a whole army of small boys following the motor-cycle, and the traffic policeman at the bottom of Harcourt Street can down shouting angrily: "Get off the road, you, with your old tin box. Be off." The schoolboys scattered.

Billy went another round almost unconscious with fright. As he reached the appointed stopping-place for the seventh time there were three policemen there with his employer, attended by a large crowd. They rushed on to the roadway, held up their hands, and shouted: "Stop that machine!" Then Billy, faced by the terror of arrest, the loss of his job, and the hopelessness of getting a shilling to back the dog, racing "certainty", shouted out in a tearful voice, "It won't stop".

As he spoke he gesticulated and took his hands for a moment or two off the handle-bars. The motor-cycle wobbled and headed into the crowd. Billy seized a man by the shoulders and swung himself off the machine. Somebody caught the handle-bars, another the saddle, while another turned off the engine. The motor-cycle came to a standstill.

Billy Wins

When they began to look for Billy he was nowhere to be found. He had fled. And very wisely too. For next morning, when Billy turned up at the office, his employer's anger had vanished. The incident had become a good golf-club story. So that when Billy explained about the dog-racing "certainty" his employer generously gave him half a crown.

FASHIONS IN FIDGETS.

Editorial in Manchester Guardian

The American exporters of chewing-gum announce a tenfold multiplication of their wares since the war, and the English are said to be eager recipients of this most durable of inedible mouthfuls. Whether this more concerns the zealots of safeguarding or the students of social traditions is a nice point. The latter will certainly have to consider the desperate efforts of modern humanity to find satisfactory forms of fidgeting. Fidgeting is a natural nervous reaction in an unnatural nervous strain, and since it seems to be the inevitable function of civilisation to increase the unnatural strains we are likely to elaborate the technique of fidgeting as the world grows older. Some must be lifting their elbow while others bite their nails; onee keeps lighting cigarettes, and another maintains his jaws in almost perpetual motion by providing the indestructible pellet for them to work upon. It does not flatter mankind that we should have continually to invent new and trivial escapes from the worry and restlessness into which we plunge ourselves. Chewing, though not a handsome or engaging habit, can hardly be regarded as a vice, and it is a little difficult to imagine dangerous excesses of the jejune a pleasure. In these days almost every form of amusement is worked so hard that it becomes a social problem. Either it has to be encouraged by the provision of more facilities, or else it has to be stopped because somebody views it with alarm. But the mastication of a tough and tasteless material which is neither drug nor sweetmeat is surely a weakness as far from social censure as it is from aesthetic approbation. Thus to achieve private peace in public places may be doubtful manners, but for once in these distracted times the moralist need not shake his head. Chewing may be dismissed as puppyish or puerile, but it is scarcely pernicious.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Herb Rogers.

A beloved one, in the person of Mrs. Herb Rogers, passed peacefully away from the sorrows of earth to the joys of Heaven, at her home in Tamworth, on June 12th, 1928.

She was born at Beaver Lake and lived there till she married Herb Rogers, on October 31st, 1917. Deceased passed away after nine days' illness. She seemed cheerful till the end.

There are left to mourn her loss a husband, and four children, Harold, Lila, Annie and Herbie. Also three sisters: Mrs. Robinson, Toronto; Mrs. Milligan, Centreville, Mrs. Myers, Garwood, New Jersey, and one brother, John A., on the old homestead.

On June 14th the funeral service was held in the United Church, after which the remains were conveyed to her family plot. The funeral was very largely attended.

Swallow Flies Atlantic.

The flight across the Atlantic from east to west and from west to east has been accomplished by a swallow.

Last autumn a resident of St. Avoid, near Metz, captured a swallow and placed a note under its wing which read as follows: "During the summer of 1927 I lived with Mons. A. R. at St. Avoid, France. Give me a new address saying where I pass the winter."

The swallow was recaptured two days ago at its old nest at St. Avoid, and attached to its wing was found a tiny tube containing a message which read: "I spent the winter with Joseph Bady at Martinique in the West Indies, and I am charged with transmitting to my summer landlord his very best wishes."

What Fog Is Composed Of.

The dense fogs which during the winter months, especially, are apt to afflict great maritime cities are in their essentials, merely cumulus clouds resting upon the ground, or near it. It is the soot and other impurities they hold in solution that are the terror of London. A sea fog is the same thing, minus the impurities. Being composed of particles of watery vapor, it is clean and though dangerous to shipping, it is not particularly so to breathe. Lowlying city fogs are usually shallow, those that have been found by aeronauts to extend upwards to a height of 2,500 feet.

Remarkable Lake of Salt.

On the Managhalak Peninsula, in the Caspian Sea, there are five small lakes. One is covered by salt crystals, strong enough to allow a man and horse to cross the lake on foot. Another is as round as any circle, and of a lovely rose color.

The lake of salt crystals form a setting white as snow, to the water, which not only shows all the colors from violet to rosy red, but from it also rises a perfume as of violets. Both the perfume and the color are the result of the presence of seaweeds.

RAYS PIERCE THICK METAL.

Radium Device Used to Test Hidden Flaws In Large Casting.

Using radium rays so penetrating that they can go through fifteen-inch pieces of metal to test the hidden flaws in large castings is one of the latest accomplishments of the Russian State Radium Institute in Leningrad, says the Washington Star. These "gamma rays," as they are called, are similar to X-rays, but are of much shorter wave length. They are more penetrating and can pass through pieces of metal too thick to be examined with the X-rays. Examination by radium is said also to be cheaper than with X-rays, because the same radium can be used over and over for an indefinite time. Large and expensive photographic plates are not required, since the rays, after passing through the object, act upon a special, sensitive electroscope. The test record is preserved for future reference in the form of a simple diagram automatically traced. Another advantage is that gamma-rays speed up the inspection—it may be cut down to a couple of minutes for a large casting—while X-rays require a very long exposure, often of several hours, when the metal is more than two or three inches thick.

The apparatus, as developed by the Russian scientists, is very simply constructed. A tiny glass capsule with a radium preparation is inserted into a deep hole bored in a large lead facket. This stops all rays, except a narrow strong beam that goes along the bore. This beam pierces the casting and encounters two filaments charged with electricity and enclosed within a copper cage. There is an air space between the filaments and the cage which act normally as a perfect insulator, allowing no electric current to pass through it. But as soon as gamma-rays have a chance to get in the cage they ionize the air and turn it into a conductor.

Electricity from a battery flows from the filaments to the copper cage and from it passes through a galvanometer and back to the battery.

As intensity of the rays changes with thickness of metal pierced by them, the rate of ionization varies accordingly. Therefore the flow of electric current exactly mirrors the shape of the object under test.

CHURCH ON GREAT LINERS.

Altars Are Considered an Indispensable Detail of the Equipment.

Aboard the great ocean liners church altars are considered an indispensable detail of the equipment. A generation ago religious services at sea were held irregularly, depending on the chance presence of a clergyman. Now transatlantic liners hold Roman Catholic altar services and Protestant services at sea on Sunday.

Passengers from all cabins meet at the church services. Invitations to the service are commonly posted throughout the ship every Sunday morning. The priest or clergyman officiating is usually assisted by ship stewards acting as merchants. One large line that operates many steamers in the transatlantic service has a Roman Catholic altar aboard each vessel. The linen used on the altars is prepared by Sisters of Charity in the ports of call on each side of the Atlantic. The altar cloths used in the Church of England services are cared for by churches in New York and in the European ports of call.

On great liners the passenger list almost invariably includes priests and clergymen, who volunteer to take charge of the religious services. In the absence of a clergyman the ship master or his staff captain, assisted perhaps by the chief officer, conduct the service. The altars are often prepared with candles and banks of flowers. On one of the largest steamers in the transatlantic service there have been celebrated in the past five years 1,462 masses by 230 priests, while 2,856 communions have been received by passengers.

NAKIMU CAVES.

Form One of the Great Scenic Wonders of North America.

The Nakimu Caves, the marvelous caves of Canada, form one of the great scenic wonders of North America. These subterranean passages, located in the Selkirk Mountains of British Columbia, were named by the Indians Nakimu, meaning Silence or Noiseless. Four complete passages have been opened to tourists. Some passage have been formed by earthquake disturbances, others by erosion. Throughout the caves, walls are covered with many beautiful and multicolored lime formations.

Stalactites and stalagmites are found in great number, the former hanging from ceilings two and three hundred feet high. Many of the grottos have odd names, such as the Witches' Ballroom, the White Throne, the Judgment Hall, the Devil's Den and the Wishing Well.

Charles H. Dustenbaum discovered the caves in 1904 while on a hunting trip. The story is that Dustenbaum had shot and wounded a bear, and while following the animal discovered the opening in the rock. Knowing that it might be dangerous to make an exploration alone and without equipment, he organized a party to investigate the cave.

Called on to "Reduce."

London policemen, always noted for their ample proportions, had a bombshell dropped on them when it was intimated that an order was soon be issued compelling all those over a certain girth either to reduce or retire. It is pointed out that even before have outward signs of a shapeful interior been thus penalized, an estimate carried out by one London newspaper shows that about 10 per cent. of the London police force would be eligible for one or other of the alternatives.

The police force, however, is not alone in being threatened with slimming. A few weeks ago the stewards, attendants and hall porters of a well-known west end hotel in London attended to avoirdupois by wearing in the course of exercising on the roof, the cause of elegance.

MINUTES OF THE COUNCIL OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH FREDERICKSBURGH.

SPECIAL SESSION June 20th, 1928.

Members meet at the office of the Clerk. Members all present.

A By-law was passed to repeal the Dog By-law, No. 9, and giving freedom of the Township. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Keech, that a By-law be passed to give the Reeve and Treasurer the power to borrow the sum of $3000 to meet expenditures of this Township. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Sexsmith, that Road Engineer be authorized to repair Big Creek bridge, and also one in front of R. J. Walsh's property. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Sexsmith, that this Council adjourn. Carried.

JAMES W. CLARK, Reeve.
R. I. CARD, Clerk.

BY-LAW NO. 12.

Being a By-law to repeal By-law No. 9.

The Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Township of North Fredericksburgh enacts as follows:—

1. That By-law No. 9 for 1928 be, and the same is hereby repealed.

2. That any by-law conflicting with this by-law be, and the same is hereby repealed.

Passed this 21st day of June, 1928.

JAMES W. CLARK, Reeve.
R. I. CARD, Clerk.

BY-LAW NO. 13.

A By-law of the Municipal Corporation of the Township of North Fredericksburgh, to authorize the Head and Treasurer to borrow the sum of Three Thousand Dollars, to meet the current ordinary expenditure of the Corporation during the year 1928.

Whereas this Council of the Municipal Corporation of the Township of North Fredericksburgh deem it necessary in order to meet the current ordinary expenditures of the Corporation during the year 1928, to borrow the sum of $3000.

And whereas this Corporation has not heretofore during the present year borrowed, or authorized the borrowing of any sum or sums of money for the purpose of meeting the current ordinary expenditures of the Corporation, nor have the taxes for the current year been collected.

Now therefore be it, and it is hereby enacted:—

1. The Head and Treasurer of the Corporation of the Township of North Fredericksburgh are hereby authorized to borrow from the Dominion Bank the sum of Three Thousand Dollars, being the amount required to meet the current ordinary expenditure of the Corporation for the current year.

2. As security for said sum the Head and Treasurer are hereby authorized to issue a promissory note or notes of this Corporation, not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of $3000, and to sign the same on behalf of the Corporation, and attach its Corporate Seal thereto; the said note or notes to be made payable to the order of the Dominion Bank, and to be delivered to the said Bank as security for the sum or sums advanced by it pursuant to this By-law, such note or notes to bear interest at the rate of 6% per annum, and to be payable on demand of the said Bank in the Town of Napanee, at such times as in the opinion of the said Head and Treasurer may appear advisable.

Passed this 21st day of June, 1928.

A LAND OF FLOWERS.

Fields of Roses, Violets, Tuberoses and Other Kinds of Blossoms.

The Grasse region, in the south of France, is the real land of flowers. There is practically no agriculture in the region save floriculture. For a mile after mile as far as the eye can see there are fields of roses, violets, soms, beautiful beyond description in the harvest season.

Jasmine, too, tonquils, orange flowers, and, in lesser quantities, geraniums, carnations and heliotrope. The orange flowers are distilled for their essential oil, known commercially as "neroli," which sells for $120 a pound.

The violet leaves are distilled for an essential oil which serves as a basis for violet perfumery. Likewise the leaves of the sweet geranium. But most of the geranium oil exported from the Grasse district is produced nowadays in Algeria, which is a French possession.

The method chiefly adopted for extracting from the flowers the essential oils which give them their delightful odors is that of spreading the petals in layers between frames coated with refined lard. The lard takes up the odorous compounds, which are afterward separated by steeping it in grain alcohol, the latter being thereby converted into cologne.

Even the most delicious of smells may become offensive to the nostrils if sufficiently concentrated. Thus an extract of violets as sold to the manufacturing perfumer, has an odor so intense as to be exceedingly disagreeable.

The Grasse district produces $20,000,000 worth of raw materials for perfumes annually. But most of the commercial supply of attar of roses comes from Bulkaria.

It is an essential oil obtained by distillation, and one of the chief uses of the above-mentioned geranium oil is to adulterate it.

CATS RANKED HIGH.

Were Domestic Pets Away Back In the Dim Past.

Nobody knows for certain just when the cat began sitting by the fire and blinking at the sparks as they flew upward, but it is believed that the old Egyptians were the first to catch and tame cats, and finally to domesticate them, says the Baltimore Sun.

One thing is certain, cats held a higher place in the affections of that ancient people than any other. To kill one was regarded as the same thing as the murder of a human being—in fact even more so as the cat with them was looked on and treated as a sacred animal. When one died its body was carefully embalmed as were the bodies of the kings and queens.

Ever since the time when cats caught mice among the grain sacks that Joseph stored up against the seven years of famine, right down to the present, cats have been helping mankind get rid of the rats and mice that infest the barns and the corn cribs of the world.

To many people home would not be home without a family cat to sit on the hearth and purr when his back was touched. If there wasn't a cat in the house to be put out when bedtime came nothing would seem to be lacking. It would be like keeping house without a coffee pot or a bed to sleep on.

Anyone who has ever owned a cat and at some time or other pretty much every cat has owned a master, has noticed many queer cat ways—some of them can be explained and some cannot. As much as they love comfort, they had rather sleep on a folded newspaper in the cake-mixed bowl than on a cushion or rug. They get in the habit of doing certain things in a precise way, and their habits are just as hard to break away from.

TRAGEDY OF CHINA'S WALL.

Hwang Ti Utilized Every Third Man to Build It.

The name of the man who built the great stone wall of China is not revered. In most countries the hero of such an achievement would be immortalized in history and song. But in China—nothing of the kind has happened. Rich and poor, learned and simple, speak of the builder of the Great Wall with contempt. They lose sight of the wall in contemplating the wickedness of the man who built it.

It is said that Hwang Ti utilized every third able-bodied man in his kingdom for the work. Millions must have been so employed by the time the task was finished, and it was not completed in the time of the Emperor's reign. More than two thousand years ago the Great Wall was built, and the human agony entailed in its construction is remembered in China to-day. Every inch of that far-flung wall is associated with human suffering, and it has been grimly but truthfully described as the longest cemetery on earth.

We Walk In Circles.

If we couldn't see where we were going, we'd run in circles. Persons lost in the woods often turn completely around.

Experimenting with blindfolded persons, Prof. A. L. Schaeffer of the University of Kansas recently discovered that our natural tendency is to walk in arrer circles. We walk in circles spring. Some people, he says in Popular Science Monthly, turn to the right; others to the left. Just why we have this tendency the psychologists are seeking to explain.

Examined by X-rays.

All the oil-paintings in the Louvre, the famous art gallery in Paris, have now been examined by X-rays, which show whether certain paints were used by the master or if the picture has been "touched up." The result is that many pictures are now classified as "attributed to" certain artists rather than as "by" them.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The Many-Purpose Oil.—Both in the house and stable there are scores of uses for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Use it for cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, the pains of rheumatism and sciatica, sore throat and chest. Horses are liable very largely to similar ailments and mishaps as afflict mankind, and are equally amenable to the healing influence of this fine old remedy which has made thousands of firm friends during the past fifty years.

A Remedy for Earache. — To have the earache is to endure torture. The ear is a delicate organ and few care to deal with it, considering it work for a doctor. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil offers a simple remedy. A few drops upon a piece of lint or medicated cotton and placed in the ear will do much in relieving pain.

The well-known woman preacher, Miss Maude Royden, is responsible for an amusing story which illustrates the advantages of compression in speech.

A little friend of hers had been asked to tell the story of Elisha, and her reply was:

"Elisha had a bear, and the children mocked him, and he said: 'If you mock me I will set my bear on you and it will eat you up.' And they did, and he did, and it did."

Freedom From Asthma. Asthma is one of the most distressing troubles, sudden in its attacks and prolonged in its agonies. Frequently many things are tried, but nothing seems to give hope of relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is the one help which can be depended upon. If you have tried other remedies without success, do not fail to get at once a package of this uniformly successful preparation.

It was the young barrister's first case, and he was bubbling over with pride and enthusiasm as he stood in court.

"Now," he said, addressing the defendant, "you say you came from Liverpool to London merely to look for work? I put it to you there was another, a stronger, motive that brought you all this distance."

"Well," hesitated the defendant, "there was—"

"Ah!" cried the barrister, triumphantly. "And what was it?"

"A locomotive."

Miller's Worm Powders will purge the stomach and intestines of worms so effectively and so easily and painlessly that the most delicate stomach will not feel any inconvenience from their action. A group of workmen were discussing the evolution and origin of man. One of the party remained silent, when a companion turned to him and demanded his opinion.

"I ain't goin' to say," he replied, doggedly, "I remember as 'ow Mother Green and me threshed that out once before, and it's settled as far as I am concerned."

"But what conclusion did you come to?"

"Well," he said, slowly, "we didn't arrive at the same conclusion. Henry, he arrived at the hospital, an' me at the police station."

Gardeners' "Magic Carpet."

After three years' experiments, a "magic carpet" spread over the soil is said to have increased the yield of gardeners' crops more than 500 per cent.

The carpet is of heavy waterproof paper and covers all the ground not occupied by the plant stems themselves. It increases the soil temperature, prevents loss of moisture, distributes water among the plants, and smothers weeds.

The increase in yield varies from eleven per cent. for peas to 516 per cent. for spinach. Lettuce crop is three green corn trebled, and potatoes almost quadrupled.

Mavis Blue.

When a little boy found a thrush's egg in the Old Country last summer, he never thought it would lead to women wearing dresses of a new delicate fairy blue. Such, however, is how the popular color known as mavis blue was discovered.

An official of a chemical organization saw the egg, and was struck with the beauty of the blue. He realised it would make an excellent shade for women's clothes. In a week a chemist had produced a dye of exactly the same color as the egg and it was decided to call the shade "mavis," the old name for the thrush.

Montreal's share of last year's income tax amounted to $17,374,963; Toronto's was $12,250,640, and Vancouver's $5,040,254.

PROUD HISTORY OF GREECE

Their Literature, Art and Sculpture Will Always Stand as a Memorial to Their Greatness.

Greece has a history of which she is justly proud. They will always have their niche in the hall of fame and their literature, art, and sculpture will always stand as a memorial to their greatness.

By the fifth century, writes Charles Turton on "Modern Traits in Old Greek Life," Greek literature had developed three great forms of poetry, epic, dramatic and lyric. Lyric poetry comprised the choral song, the special contribution of the Dorians, and the solo or individual song, written for every conceivable occasion and expressing every mood and aspiration of the human heart.

Many of these the boy had learned at his mother's knee, but they were so various that no generic term to denote them all was known in the classical period. The word "lyric," from "lyre," appears very late, not much before the time of Cicero, but it correctly suggests the close association of this kind of poetry, as distinguished from epic or dramatic, with the harp or lyre.

Playing the lyre, therefore, formed an essential part of the school curriculum, quite necessary in the eyes of a music-loving and singing people. The number of musical instruments known to them was few, but they embraced the three types represented to-day in any orchestra; string, wind and percussion instruments.

The last, such as the tambourine, cymbals, glockenspiel and castanets, were regarded with some disfavor. They were not native instruments, but had come in from the Orient.

The three wind instruments in ordinary use were the Pan's pipes, a series of seven (later nine) graduated pipes bound together by wilton and wax; the auloi or double pipe, each having a reed in the mouthpiece at the end, like a clarinet; and the trumpet, used in battle, in ritual, and on all occasions where signals were to be given in large gatherings of the people.

For a short period during the early fifth century, the boy received instruction in the pipes or flute; but the playing of the flute precluded singing by the player, and so it passed to the professional musician, who accompanied with it the choruses in the theatre, the conduct of athletic events at the games, and the marching of troops.

There remained, therefore, the lyre, which consisted of a sounding box, originally a tortoise shell, into which were inserted two horns with a connecting cross bar, from which the strings (four or seven) were stretched to the sounding box. Held in the left hand, the player with his right struck the notes with the plectrum, a metal striker or bar, producing or silencing the strings with the fingers of his left hand.

The slight instrument is the precursor of the guitar, the mandolin, the zither, the violin and all its family, the modern harp, and the pianoforte, all of which show a constant increase in resonant power and tonal variety.

The pipes for their part were the first instruments to be developed by virtuosi, in the latter part of the fifth century, and their requirements led first to the invention of the cremethra (the ordinary flute of to-day), the organ (syrinx, or "instrument par excellence"), grandest of them all, and the boot of wood and brass instruments, down to the saxophone, which are played in every band to-day.

THE ISLAND OF RHODES.

Knights of St. John Have Returned to Their Old Home.

The Knights of the Sovereign Order of St. John of Jerusalem have returned to the island of Rhodes, from which they were driven by the Turks in 1522 after a sojourn of nearly two centuries. The Italian governor of Rhodes and the Dodecanese recently handed over to the Knights of the Tongue of Italy the small hotel which belonged to this Italian branch of the historic order until the Turks captured the island in 1522.

While the knights ruled Rhodes each of the seven tongues into which the order is divided had its own hotel, around which the life of British, German, French or Italian-speaking knights centred.

Most of these hotels still exist, but for four centuries they were out of possession of the order. The Italian hotel has now restored the property and the knights returned with impressive ceremonies whose object was to be identical with the picturesque costumes and standards of the various "tongues."

Birthmarks In Five Generations.

A family in which nine individuals have been painted by birthmarks in five generations was described by Dr. Estabrook, director of the U. S. Eugenics Record Office. The significant point stressed by Dr. Estabrook was that the spots appeared in similar parts of the body in the different generations, so that, apparently, not only the color but their location as well were inherited.

Certain types of birthmarks may develop into skin cancers, Dr. Estabrook pointed out. For that reason no unremovable birthmarks is affected particular interest in connection with the possible inheritance of skin cancers.

Fish Leather.

Fish leather is being tanned in America and Japan for army harness and equipment. The leather, stated to be as serviceable as hide leather, is also cheaper. It is made principally from the skins of sharks, porpoises, and dogfish.

AN OLD MEETING HOUSE

HISTORIC PRESBYTERIAN BUILDING BUILT IN 1774.

"Old First" Church In Alexandria, Virginia, Closed Its Doors In 1886, But Has Been Restored by Public Subscription as a National Shrine.

For many years a gaunt hulk, but recently restored as the result of a national campaign, the historic Presbyterian Meeting House on South Fairfax street, built in 1774 and abounding in associations with George Washington and his contemporaries, was rededicated as a national shrine recently, says the New York Times.

The old Presbyterian Meeting House, as it was known in Colonial and Revolutionary days, or the "Old First" Presbyterian Church, another name by which it is known, closed its doors in 1886, due to differences arising from the Civil War, but strange to relate it held true to the Northern Presbyterian Assembly throughout the period of strife up until the day it closed. Its position in a Southern community naturally became one of extreme isolation, and this in time caused its extinction as an active church.

The wheels of artillery en route to the battlefields of four wars—Lord Dunmore's War in Colonial days, the War of the Revolution, the War of 1812 and the Civil War—have rumbled past its doors. Citizens of Alexandria who fought in those wars sleep in its peaceful churchyard. Alexandria, like much of Virginia beyond tidewater, was settled by Scots and Scottish-Irish pioneers, and the Presbyterian Meeting House remains as one of the last relics of this hardy race of pioneers.

The old Meeting House is one of the most beautiful and historic Colonial churches in America. In it was held the first religious meeting of the Masonic lodge of which George Washington was Worshipful Master in 1783, and Washington was an attendant at various of the Masonic religious ceremonies held there. The memorial sermons for the public after the funeral of Washington were delivered in the old Presbyterian Meeting House on December 29, 1799.

The old Meeting House has been called a Masonic Westminster Abbey. Under the pulpit is buried the body of the Rev. James Muir, minister of the funeral lodge which buried George Washington and Revolutionary-day pastor of the old Presbyterian Meeting House. He died in 1820, and a memorial tablet in his honor was placed on the north wall of the church. In the churchyard are buried thirty fellow-Masons of Gen. Washington, notable among them Col. Ramsay, one of Washington's pallbearers, who was also the Mayor of Alexandria in 1789.

Dr. James Craik, one of the most colorful figures of Colonial and Revolutionary days, rests here. He was born at Dumfries, Scotland, in 1730, and emigrated to America in 1750; was surgeon in Washington's first campaign and with him in the battle of Great Meadows in 1754, and in every other battle participated in by Washington thereafter down to Yorktown in the Revolution. He was surgeon-general of the Continental Army and director of the hospital at Yorktown. He ministered to the dying British Gen. Braddock after the ambush at the field of the Monongahela and dressed Lafayette's wounds at Brandywine. He ministered to George Washington on his deathbed and to Martha Washington. He was perhaps the most intimate friend of Gen. Washington.

Scores of Revolutionary soldiers of distinction are buried in the old Presbyterian Meeting House churchyard. Not least among them is the "Unknown Soldier of the Revolution," whose grave was marked on Feb. 23, 1932, by the American Legion Post in Alexandria, aided by committees from the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, the Sons of the Revolution, the Colonial Dames and other patriotic societies. The inscription on the marker on the Unknown's grave was written by William Tyler Page, author of "The American's Creed." It reads as follows:

Here Lies
A Soldier Hero of the Revolution
Whose identity is known
But to God

His was an idealism that recognized a Supreme Being, that planted religious liberty on our shores, that overthrew despotism, that established a people's Government, that wrote a Constitution that restrains and bounds of delegated authority, that fixed a standard of value upon which gold, and silver, that lifted high the torch of civil liberty along the pathway of mankind.

In ourselves his soul exists as part of ours, his Memory's Mansion.

The furnishings in the old church are unique. Some of the old pews dating from 1774 may still be seen. They are held together with wooden pegs in place of nails, and were hand carved. The old organ is run by a hand pump and bellows. It contains an "Egyptian trumpet" which is today a priceless relic. The lighting system is a copy of the old whale oil lamps of Colonial days and was installed with money contributed by Elihu Root, Andrew Mellon and Daniel Willard.

It was the meeting place of the Washington Society of Alexandria, founded in 1800, and which endured until 1843. It was recently revived and held its first meeting in the old Meeting House.

The national campaign which restored the old Presbyterian Meeting House from a dilapidated condition started, in 1925 and was aided by members of practically every patriotic society in America.

"Am yo' daughter happily married, Mrs. Johnson?"

"She sho is. She done gotta husband dat's skeered to death of her."

"Does your husband ile awake at night?"

"Yes, and he tells them in his sleep, too."

OBITUARY

Charles Crouse.

Charles Crouse died June 13th, 1928, following an illness of four months. Although a great sufferer, he bore it patiently without a murmur till the Master's call came. He was a son of the late Mr. Philip and Matilda Osborne. He was born in the year 1863, and lived all his life on the place he was born. He was a good, kind neighbour, always lending a hand to any one in trouble. He never tired trying to do his Master's will and praising His holy name. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and two daughters, and one son, Mrs. James MacGregor, Napanee; Mrs. Amos W. Wood, of Roblin, and Percy, on the homestead; also one brother, Allen, of Killarney, Man., and four grandchildren. The funeral was held from his residence to Forest Mills church. Rev. Mr. Oliver took charge of the service, the church being filled with friends and neighbours to pay their last tribute to one that was loved by all; thence to Riverside cemetery.

Patrick Murphy.

A very sad death occurred on Wednesday, June 29th, 1928, when Patrick Murphy, son of Jas. Murphy, passed away at the home of his brother James, of Orrilla. Deceased was blessed with exceptionally good health till two years ago, when while driving East of Tamworth, he was thrown from his buggy in some unknown manner, sustaining a fracture of the spine. He was immediately taken to the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, where every medical attention was rendered to alleviate his sufferings, but in spite of all he never regained strength, but gradually grew weaker till finally about two weeks ago he was stricken with a heavy cold which developed into pleurisy thus causing his death.

He was always of a bright and cheerful disposition and bore his sufferings with wonderful patience and resignation.

He was born in Camden sixty-six years ago, where he spent his entire life as a prosperous farmer till about ten years ago, when he retired, and spent the remainder of his days with his nephew, Jas. Murphy, where the remains were brought on Wednesday evening.

He was predeceased by two brothers and five sisters, and is now survived by three brothers, Thomas, of Clayton, N.Y.; James, of Orillia, and John, of Tamworth.

The funeral was held on Friday morning to St. Anthony's Church, Centreville, where Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Mea, and interment made in St. Anthony's cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. Ed. Harrison, Johnson Hannah, A. B. Carscallen, Pat. Evans, Pat. Whelan, John Flanagan.

—Messrs. F. P. Smith & Son have taken over the old established Fire Insurance business of Harshaw & Son and D. L. Greene, recently held by A. T. Turnbull, and will conduct the same in future at the office in Harshaw Block, Dundas St. 20tf

Address and Presentation

On Monday evening, June 25th, the friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. Alex. McCutcheon, before their departure for Selby where they will in future reside. They were presented with the following address and a gift :—

Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon, — We, your friends and neighbours have gathered here to-night to spend another pleasant evening with you in your old home. For over thirty years you have been among us, sharing with us our sorrows and our joys.

And now that you are leaving the strenuous work of the farm, it gives us much pleasure to know that you have still chosen to remain in your old community and among your old Selby friends.

As a token of good will and best wishes, we ask you to accept this fern stand. May you live long to enjoy your new home, and may the bond of love that has bound you to us, be strengthened as the years go by.

Signed in behalf of your neighbours,

MELVILLE WINDOVER.
JACK GRANGE.

JUNIOR FARMERS' FIELD DAY AT PRESQU'ILE

At the Junior Farmers' Field Day held at Presqu'ile, on July 6th, and attended by young people from eight Counties, Lennox and Addington Girls' Softball Team brought great honor to the County by winning the handsome silver trophy emblematic of the Bay of Quinte Championship. The following is a list of the players :—Helen Whalen, catcher; Beatrice McGuire, pitcher; Bernice Galbraith, 1st base; Louise McGuire, 2nd base; Mona Graham, 3rd base; Vera Galbraith, short stop; Marjorie Moore, left field; Stella Byrnes, centre field; Mary Scott, right field.

In the game before dinner Lennox and Addington team defeated a team from Hastings County, and in the afternoon played a brilliant game with Peterborough County team, who earlier in the day had defeated teams from Northumberland and Victoria. Peterborough team won the cup last year, but they lost in the finals this year to Lennox and Addington, with a score of 15 to 3. Beatrice McGuire's pitching and hard hitting brought great cheers from the crowd. Helen Whalen behind the bat, and Bernice Galbraith on 1st base, played wonderful ball. Mona Graham on 3rd base, relieved the pitcher for part of the game, and showed splendid ability. Every member of the team is deserving of special mention. The fielders gave excellent support, and the whole team worked like a machine. The girls deserve great credit for bringing this Championship to the County, and keeping Lennox and Addington to the front.

"My aunt lives exactly according to the book 'How to live to be a hundred.'"

"And the result?"

"Wonderful—she looks exactly as she were a hundred already."

Presentation and Address

On Sunday morning, June 17th, the people of Empey Hill Sunday School, after the regular session, ask Rev. Mr. Batstone for his attention for a few minutes, while Mr. Bruce Russell read the following address :

June 17th, 1928.

Rev. Mr. Batstone.

Dear Pastor,—We, the members of the Empey Hill Sunday School, find it our privilege to assemble here to-day, and in a few remarks would like you to know how much we appreciate the work you have done for our Bible Class in the three years as teacher. You were always at your post doing all in your power to promote the interests of the cause you love. We have learned to love you as a faithful friend, and honor you for your devotion to your congregation in sickness and health. Your sermons and addresses are ever inspiring and educative. The friendship formed will always be a pleasant memory, and the results of your labors shall be a constant reminder of what is expected of those you leave behind. And our prayers shall follow you to your new field of labor for the Master. We esteem it a privilege and pleasure to present to you this club bag, hoping you may be long spared to enjoy it.

Signed on behalf of the Empey Hill Sunday School.

MRS. CATH. MELBURN.
MILTON SAMPSON.
BRUCE RUSSELL.

Mr. Batstone, although completely taken by surprise, made a very suitable reply, thanking all for their kindness.

WEDDING BELLS

Benn—Dowdell.

A quiet June wedding was solemnized at Grace Church Parsonage, Napanee, on Wednesday, June 27th, when Evelyn Maud, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dowdell, of Kingsford, was united in holy matrimony to Charles Wilfred Benn, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Benn, Sharp's Corners. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Woodger. The bride looked charming in a navy blue silk georgette crepe with pastel shoes and hose to match; also coat of powder blue tricotine, trimmed with rich mole fur, and hat to match. They were attended by Miss Gladys Benn, sister of the groom, who was pretty in rose canton crepe, pastel shoes and hose to match, and Mr. Will Dowdell, brother of the bride.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and rice, hallos of car horns and shouts of congratulations. They motored to Belleville, Oshawa, Toronto, and expect to spend some time in the United States. On their return they will reside at Forest Mills, where the groom is a prosperous young farmer.

Junior Chautauqua.

A new feature of Chautauqua this year is Junior Town, in which the youngsters are organized into a regular town council, with a mayor and other officers. Meetings are held to discuss town affairs, and on the last day of Chautauqua they take a part in the evening program. This is in addition to the other features provided for the children every morning, as well as the regular programs to which the youngsters are welcome. The children's ticket for all the above costs only $1.25, and parents are urged to buy a ticket and give the children this splendid opportunity of enjoying themselves. 28a

"Canada Adds to its Industries" Has Its Own Circus Now.

In connection with the visit of the Barnett Brothers Circus here in Napanee, on Wednesday, July 25th, it is interesting to note that this is the first Motorized Circus ever provided by Canadian Showmen, and Canadian Capital. There are several Motorized Circuses in the States, but owing to high Custom duties, these aggregations do not cross the International borders. The Motorized Circus are as big, and many are better than the railroad shows, but through using motor vehicles, cut down their overhead expense considerable, besides being able to move more freely and exhibit at towns where a railroad could not handle without charging them a prohibitive rate. The Big City of Tents will be located opposite the High School. Two performances daily, rain or shine, under our water-proof tents, at 2 and 8 p.m. 28a

"Tommy," Sparkling Comedy, at Chautauqua

"Tommy," [illegible] by a notable New York critic, belongs to that rare group of plays which have registered a Broadway hit overnight, that New York has seen for ages.

The charm of "Tommy" is to be found in the fact that it tells a human, understandable story, and tells it with shouts of laughter and gripping pathos, through real, living human beings.

OBITUARY

Charles Crouse.

Charles Crouse died June 13th, 1928, following an illness of four months. Although a great sufferer, he bore it patiently without a murmur till the Master's call came. He was a son of the late Mr. Philip and Matilda Osborne. He was born in the year 1863, and lived all his life on the place he was born. He was a good, kind neighbour, always lending a hand to any one in trouble. He never tired trying to do his Master's will and praising His holy name. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and two daughters, and one son, Mrs. James MacGregor (Nannee; Mrs. Amos W. Wood, of Hoplin, and Percy, on the homestead; also one brother, Allen, of Killarney, Man., and four grandchildren. The funeral was held from his residence to Forest Mills church. Rev. Mr. Oliver took charge of the service, the church being filled with friends and neighbours to pay their last tribute to one that was loged by all; thence to Riverside cemetery.

Patrick Murphy.

A very sad death occurred on Wednesday, June 29th, 1928, when Patrick Murphy, son of Jas. Murphy, passed away at the home of his brother James, of Orillia. Deceased was blessed with exceptionally good health till two years ago, when while working on the farm of Tamworth, he was thrown from his buggy in some unknown manner, sustaining a fracture of the spine. He was immediately taken to the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, where every medical attention was rendered to alleviate his sufferings, but in spite of all he never regained strength, his gradually grew weaker till finally about two weeks ago he was stricken with a heavy cold which developed into pleurisy thus causing his death.

He was always of a bright and cheerful disposition and bore his sufferings with wonderful patience and resignation.

He was born in Camden sixty-six years ago, where he spent his entire life as a prosperous farmer till about ten years ago, when he retired, and spent the remainder of his days with his nephew, Jas. Murphy, where the remains were brought on Wednesday evening.

He was predeceased by two brothers and five sisters, and is now survived by three brothers, Thomas, of Clayton, N.Y.; James, of Orillia, and John, of Tamworth.

The funeral was held on Friday morning to St. Anthony's Church, Centreville, where Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Mea, and interment made in St. Anthony's cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. Ed. Harrien, Shannon Hannah, A. B. Carscallen, Pat. Evans, Pat. Whelan, John Flanagan.

—Messrs. F. P. Smith & Son have taken over the old established Fire Insurance business of Harshaw & Son and D. L. Greene, recently held by A. T. Turnbull, and will conduct the same in future at the office in Harshaw Block, Dundas St. 20tf

Address and Presentation

On Monday evening, June 25th, the friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. Alex. McCuteheon, before their departure for Selby where they will in future reside. They were presented with the following address and a gift :—

Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon. — We, your friends and neighbours are gathered here to-night to spend another pleasant evening with you in your old home. For over thirty years you have been among us, sharing with us our sorrows and our joys.

And now that you are leaving the strenuous work of the farm, it gives us much pleasure to know that you have still chosen to remain in your old community and among your old Selby friends.

As a token of good will and best wishes, we ask you to accept this fern stand. May you live long to enjoy your new home, and may the bond of love that has bound you to us, be strengthened as the years go by.

Signed in behalf of your neighbours.

JUNIOR FARMERS' FIELD DAY AT PRESQU'ILE

At the Junior Farmers' Field Day held at Presqu'ile, on July 6th, and attended by young people from eight Counties, Lennox and Addington Girls' Softball Team brought great honor to the County by winning the handsome silver trophy emblematic of the Boys' & Quinte Championship. The following is a list of the players :—Helen Whalen, catcher; Beatrice McGuire, pitcher; Bernice Galbraith, 1st base; Louise McGuire, 2nd base; Mona Graham, 3rd base; Vera Galbraith, short stop; Marjorie Moore, left field; Stella Byrnes, centre field; Mary Scott, right field.

In the game before dinner Lennox and Addington team defeated a team from Hastings County, and in the afternoon played a brilliant game with Peterborough County team, who earlier in the day had defeated teams from Northumberland and Victoria. Peterborough team won the cup last year, but they lost in the finals this year to Lennox and Addington, with a score of 15 to 3. Beatrice McGuire's pitching and hard hitting brought great cheers from the crowd. Helen Whalen behind the bat, and Bernice Galbraith 1st base, played wonderful ball. Mona Graham on 3rd base, relieved the pitcher for part of the game, and showed splendid ability. Every member of the team is deserving of special mention. The fielders gave excellent support, and the whole team worked like a machine. The girls deserve great credit for bringing this Championship to the County, and keeping Lennox and Addington to the front.

"My aunt lives exactly according to the book 'How to live to be a hundred.'"

"And the result?"

"Wonderful—she looks exactly as if she were a hundred already."

After the Potato Bug.

"Calpoiso" is recommended by the Government Agricultural authorities. It settles least, does not wash off with the rain, and does not burn the vines. It does kill the bugs. Sold at Hooper's Drug Store.

Presentation and Address

On Sunday morning, June 17th, the people of Empey Hill Sunday School, after the regular session, ask Rev. Mr. Batstone for his attention for a few minutes, while Mr. Bruce Russell read the following address :

June 17th, 1928.

Rev. Mr. Batstone.

Dear Pastor,—We, the members of the Empey Hill Sunday School, find it our privilege to assemble here today, and in a few remarks would like you to know how much we appreciate the work you have done for our Bible Class in the three years as teacher. You were always at your post doing all in your power to promote the interests of the cause you love. We have learned to love you as a faithful friend, and honor you for your devotion to your congregation in sickness and health. Your sermons and addresses are ever inspiring and educative. The friendship formed will always be a pleasant memory, and the results of your labors shall be a constant reminder of what is expected of those you leave behind. And our prayers shall follow you to your new field of labor for the Master. We esteem it a privilege and pleasure to present to you this club bag, hoping you may be long spared to enjoy it.

Signed on behalf of the Empey Hill Sunday School.

MRS. CATH. MELBURN.
MILTON SAMPSON.
BRUCE RUSSELL.

Mr. Batstone, although completely taken by surprise, made a very suitable reply, thanking all for their kindness.

COUNTY COURT.

Walsh vs. Card.—This cark was tried before Judge Lavell, on June 28th. The plaintiff, Robt. Walsh, brought an action to establish a right of way over the land of the defendant, Jacob H. Card. On Saturday His Honour delivered judgment as follows :—Judgment for defendant dismissing action with costs. W. S. Herrington, K.C., for plaintiff; W. P. Nickle, K.C., for defendant.

WEDDING BELLS

Benn—Dowdell.

A quiet, June wedding was solemnized at Grace Church Parsonage, Napanee, on Wednesday, June 27th, when Evelyn Maud, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dowdell, of Kingsford, was united in holy matrimony to Charles Wilfred Benn, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Benn, Sharp's Corners. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Woodger. The bride looked charming in powder blue silk georgette crepe with pastel shoes and hose to match; also best of powder blue charmelaine trimmed with rich mole fur, and hat to match. They were attended by Miss Gladys Benn, sister of the groom, who was pretty in rose canton crepe, pastel shoes and hose to match, and Mr. Will Dowdell, brother of the bride.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and rice, hallos of caution and shouts of congratulations. They motored to Belleville, Oshawa, Toronto, and expect to spend some time in the United States. On their return they will reside at Forest Mills, where the groom is a prosperous young farmer.

Lawn Social at Fourth Line.

A Lawn Social will be held at Fourth Line, on the school lawn, on Wednesday evening, July 18th. Odessa Citizens' Band will furnish the program. 28b

St. Andrew's Church Booth.

On Thursday, July 12th, the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church will have a booth in the Lyric Warner Park. If the weather is unfavourable, they will be in the St. Andrew's Church School Room. Everybody welcome. 28a

Lawn Social at Enterprise.

A Lawn Social will be held on the United Church ground, Enterprise, on Saturday, July 14th. Come and have a good time. Good program. Odessa Band. Admission, 35c. and 25c. 28a

Lawn Social at Hawley.

A Lawn Social will be held under the auspices of the Hawley Ladies' Aid, on Mr. S. Parks' lawn, on Friday evening, July 13th. An Orchestra in attendance. A booth and fish pond, ice cream and cake. Admission 25c. and 15c. The public are cordially invited. 28a

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. John Murphy and family wish to thank their many friends and neighbours for the kindness shown them during their recent sad bereavement in the death of husband and father; also for the spiritual offerings, and the loan of cars. 28ap

"Sheep Demonstration"

On Friday, July 13th, at 2 p.m., representatives of the Dominion Live Stock Branch will give a demonstration on the control of internal parasites in sheep. They will also show how to treat swine parasites. Losses from these troubles have been very common lately, and it is hoped that everyone raising sheep or swine will become familiar with methods for combating parasites.

Junior Chautauqua.

A new feature of Chautauqua this year is Junior Town, in which the youngsters are organized into a regular town council, with a mayor and other officers. Meetings are held to discuss town affairs, and on the last day of Chautauqua they take a part in the evening program. This is in addition to the other features provided for the children every morning, as well as the regular programs to which the youngsters are welcome. The children's ticket for all the above costs only $1.25, and parents are urged to buy a ticket and give the children this splendid opportunity of enjoying themselves. 28a

"Canada Adds to its Industries" Has Its Own Circus Now.

In connection with the visit of the Barnett Brothers Circus here in Napanee, on Wednesday, July 25th, it is interesting to note that this is the first Motorized Circus ever provided by Canadian Showmen, and Canadian Capital. There are several Motorized Circuses in the States, but owing to Customs duties, and other aggravations do not cross the International borders. The Motorized Shows are as big, and many are better than the railroad shows, but through using motor vehicles, cut down their overhead expense considerable, besides being able to move more freely and exhibit in towns where a railroad could not handle without charging them a prohibitive rate. The Big City of Tents will be located opposite the High School. Two performances daily, rain or shine, under our water-proof tents, at 2 and 8 p.m. 28a

"B" Company Frontenac Regiment.

Just think of it, twelve days camping with "B" Company, Frontenac Regiment, on the historic heights of Barriefield, only half a mile from Kingston. The Company Commander is taking a fine troop of young men to camp, expenses paid to and from Napanee; salary paid during the 12 days; work consists of drill and athletic work. The officer commanding would like recruits, not under five foot two inches, who are able to play cricket, sprint; boxers wanted as well. Come along, young fellow, 12 days of real fun, lots to eat. Every night free to go to the city. Swimming 200 yards from camp. Be sure to write to Capt. H. Babcock, care of Napanee Armouries, giving height, age and weight and what you can do best in the sport. Date going, August 21st; returning Sept. 2nd. Only fifteen more wanted.

"Tommy," Sparkling Comedy, at Chautauqua

"Tommy," [illegible] by a notable New York cast, belongs to that rare group of plays which have registered a Broadway hit overnight. It was heralded by the metropolitan critics, without exception, as the cleverest, most thoroughly enjoyable comedy that New York has been for some time.

The charm of "Tommy" is to be found in the fact that it tells a human, understandable story, and tells it with shouts of laughter and gripping pathos, through real, living human beings.

DON'TS FOR MOTORISTS

By R. A. Stapells, President, Ontario Motor League

As the volume of traffic on the streets and highways of the Province will be at its maximum during the next few months, the advice to Motorists, contained in the appended twelve suggestions, compiled by the President of the Ontario Motor League is very timely. The suggestions are as follows:

1. Don't assume that piddies will stay on the sidewalk. They might be your sister's first, last and always.

2. Don't ignore the pedestrian's rights. He also pays taxes.

3. Don't sit like a bump on a log. Give signals and let the other fellow know what you are going to do.

4. Don't be a swivel-neck driver. Keep your eye on the road.

5. Don't dawdle on the way. This is the 20th century, not the Dark Ages.

6. Don't exceed the speed limit. Use ordinary everyday horse sense.

7. Don't kid—it may be smart but it is not safe.

8. Don't demand your right-of-way. Allow a margin of courtesy for safety's sake.

9. Don't use glare lights. It is against the law, vulgar and dangerous.

10. Don't neglect your Brakes. You may save a life by stopping quickly.

11. Don't take a chance, at Railway Crossings. It might be your last.

12. Don't drive with a drunken man at the wheel. Solomon saw to that, and said "The companion of fools will be destroyed".

TOWN COUNCIL

TAX RATE STRUCK AT 48 MILLS FOR THE PRESENT YEAR

Council Chambers,
Napanee, July 16th, 1928.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Roy presiding.

Members present—Reeve Boyes and Councillors Tustin, Loucks, Daly, Kimmerly, Simpson and Unger.

The minutes of the last regular and special sessions were read, and confirmed.

Mr. Miller, of the Ross-Miller Bisquit Co., addressed the Council in reference to the condition of the sewerage system at the factory, the water backing up into the basement on Thursday last, damaging between $100 and $200 worth of stock. He also referred to the bad condition of the road from the factory to the station.

Referred to the Streets Committee to repair the road, and report on the condition of the sewer.

A communication was received from the Union Electric Supply Co., of Montreal, submitting quotations on fixtures for the Town Hall. Referred to the Town Property Committee.

Councillor Kimmerly reported that oiling of streets had been completed. There is still some work to be done on the Newburgh Road, and the Committee suggests filling the larger holes with stone and the smaller holes with rubble, and then oil same.

Moved by Reeve Boyes, seconded by Councillor Tustin, that the Streets Committee go ahead with the work as suggested by Councillor Kimmerly in his report. Carried.

Reeve Boyes, Chairman of Parks, reported that the Committee had laid a water main overground in Springside Park for the purpose of watering the grass. The Committee also recommended that signs be erected along the park river bank designating the depth of water, and that a charge of 50c. per car per night be charged tourists. Report adopted.

On motion a motion of last previous meeting granting $50.00 for certain improvements to Springside Park was rescinded and reconsidered, and after lengthy discussion the amount was increased to $100.00.

Councillor Daly reported that the Town Property Committee had decided to let the contract for decorating the Town Hall by tender.

On motion the shutters was ordered removed from the interior of the Council Chamber and replaced with roller blinds.

On motion the Town Property Committee was empowered to erect a sunken bench in front of the Mayor's chair.

A by-law designating Bridge Street as a "through street", was passed.

A by-law to levy the rate necessary for raising the taxes for the present year was given its several readings and passed. Following is the by-law in detail:—

Whereas the whole amount of the ratable property of the Town of Napanee for the year 1928 assessable for general purposes is $1,824,174, and whereas the whole amount assessable for school rates and for Local Improvement rates is the sum of $1,-868,474;

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH CELEBRATED AT NAPANEE

Estimated Attendance Ten Thousand People — Monster Parade of Members of the Orange Order, Lady True Blues, and 'Prentice Boys. — Speakers, Venerable Archdeacon J. H. H. Coleman; Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P., and Others.

This year's celebration of the Glorious Twelfth at Napanee was indeed the best ever held here, and reflects the highest credit on the members of the Orange Order, the Lady True Blues, and the 'Prentice Boys, who were responsible for the success.

Bright, warm weather throughout the day greeted the large crowd of participants in the day's doings. The attendance was estimated to be ten thousand people. The town, particularly in the business section, was attractively decorated with flags, bunting and otherwise, as a token of welcome to the visitors.

THE ORANGE WALK

The procession, headed by the Napanee Citizens' Band, was formed at the Armouries, and comprised a thousand members of the various organizations who "walked" through the principal streets to the Driving Park to the accompaniment of music by the Citizens' Band and by the many Fife and Drum Bands which played the old familiar tunes. It was noted that the costumes this year were more uniform than formerly and looked bright, neat and attractive. It took about an hour for the procession to pass a given point.

THE SPEAKERS.

On arrival at the beautiful grounds of the Driving Park a fine programme of instruction, entertainment and amusement was provided. The following prominent speakers delivered addresses, which were thoroughly enjoyed by the vast audience:—Hon. J. W. Edwards, M.P. for Frontenac, and Grand Master of British North America; Lieut. Col. T. Ashmore Kidd, M.P.P. for Kingston, and Past Grand Master of Ontario East; Col. Andrew Gray, ex-M.P.P. for Leeds, and the Venerable Archdeacon J. H. H. Coleman, M.A., of Kingston, formerly Vicar of Napanee.

Dr. J. W. Edwards.

The Hon. Dr. Edwards in the course of an inspiring and interesting address, attacked the Ontario Government's attitude in regard to bilingualism. There were parts of Ontario he said where an English Protestant child cannot receive a school education and he thought it the duty of the Orange Order to support this state of matters. He was pleased with the stand taken by the Anglican Church in bringing people from the British Isles to Canada and hoped other churches would take a like attitude.

Lt. Col. T. Ashmore Kidd.

Spoke of the wonderful growth of the Orange Order in Canada and of the great good that could be realized for the benefit of the people of this great country.

Col. Alex. Gray

Gave a fine address and accentuated the need for ministers of the Protestant faith standing together for the maintenance of that faith for which our forefathers had fought and won for us the rights and privileges which we now enjoy.

Ven. Archdeacon Coleman.

In a most interesting way this talented speaker captivated his hearers. He said that marriage, education and the maintenance of British allegiance was a necessity if Canada were to keep her individuality. At times three vital matters the Orange Order had a big battle to fight.

SPORTS.

DORLAND

The early part of last week was extremely warm, good, hay weather, but the heavy rain on Friday night halted work.—A very interesting meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. F. E. Foster, on Wednesday afternoon. The occasion was a special "Grandmother's Day". The oldest and youngest grandmother present received prizes.—The July social at the home of Mrs. T. N. Davis', on Friday evening, was rather spoiled by the rain which began to fall and prevent many people from leaving home. The ice cream, cake and strawberries were all delicious, but the attendance was rather short owing to the absence of several who were to have taken part.—Mr. A. C. Davis and Miss Dorothy Martin were united in marriage by Rev. H. J. Stainton, Courtice, July 6th. Their many friends extend best wishes.—Another wedding of interest was that of Miss Belle Allen and Mr. Heiffer, of Prince Edward, which took place very quietly in St. Alban's Church, on Wednesday morning.—Among recent visitors are Miss B. Foster, Ottawa, at the F. B. Foster's; Mrs. Clarke, St. Louis, at J. W. Duffett's; Miss Grace Loyst, Claremont, at F. Gallagher's; Miss Pauline Dennison at G. A. Ruttan's.

YARKER SOUTH

The recent heavy showers are making a great improvement in the grain crop, and gardens, as everything was getting pretty dry.—Mr. and Mrs. Clarsen Day and Mrs. Jane Davey called recently on Mrs. Carman Ashley, at Petworth.—Mr. John Love and family once spent a day at Sharbot Lake, at the opening of the new bridge.—Miss Dorothy Huff is spending a few days at the home of her grandmother at Camden East.—Mrs. Martha Love spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Judson Wilson.—We are sorry to report that Arthur Wilson is laid up with erysipelas. We hope for a speedy recovery.—Several from here attended the Orange celebration in Napanee, on Thursday.

NEWBURGH

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Moore, of Windsor, are spending their holidays in this vicinity.

Mrs. Charlotte Wagar returned on Friday from a week's visit with Mrs. Shannon, Napanee Road.

Dean Matheson were callers at the Dunwoody home on a recent evening.

Miss Agnes Alcombrack has been at Pittsburgh, Penn., on a visit to her mother.

Mrs. Cain and son, Hubert, of Toronto, are at Mrs. Conway's, on their annual visit.

Prof. Williamson, of Geneva, N.Y., and his sister, Mrs. Young, and daughter, of Kingston, were callers on Mr. and Mrs. Dunwoody, on Friday evening.

The date of the lawn social of the United Church is Friday, July 20th.

Mr. Charles Detlor, of Oshawa, has a new car (Pontiac), and recently visited at his home here.

A large number of the villagers took in the celebration at Napanee on the 12th of July.

Misses Stella and Beatrice Switzer, of Kingston, Sundayed at their home here.

Mr. C. Gallanger, of Toronto, is visiting at Mr. M. Vandervoorte's.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weese have moved to their home recently purchased from Mr. C. M. Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lockwood, of Brighton, visited the latter's sisters, Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Vanluven, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. McNeely are moving to their new home in Kingston.

Mr. Edward Wales, of Schenectady, N.Y., is on a visit to his friends in this locality.

Mrs. Moran, of Millbridge, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arcangle, during the week.

The Presbyterian congregation held their picnic at Salisbury's grove, on Tuesday, July 10th. A good time was enjoyed by all present, and it was made an occasion to say good-bye to Mr. T. McNeely and family, who are moving to Kingston this week.

Miss Hazel Sexsmith, of Niagara Falls, is at her home at Wesley.

The Newburgh boys motored to Switzerville on Friday evening, and played a friendly game of softball with Switzerville boys. The result was in favor of Newburgh, the score being 13 to 10.

The residents of Newburgh who were fortunate enough to be about at 12 o'clock Saturday evening, were treated to some fine selections by the Odessa Band, who were on their way from Enterprise. Should they call again they will be warmly welcomed.

The young friends of Miss Lois Vandevoorte will be pleased to know that she is expected home from the hospital in a few days, having recovered from her operation.

Mitchell Carter has returned from the hospital after having an operation and improving splendidly.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lockwood have been visiting in the Village over the week end.

Mr. Wellington Hannah, who has been holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Quail and his parents, has returned to Utica.

Great preparations are being made for the Circuit lawn social to be held on the parsonage lawn, on the evening of this week. If the weather should be disagreeable, the social will be held in the Sunday School room.

We congratulate Miss Mabel McNeely on her success in passing all her pupils who tried the Entrance examination. We are glad she is remaining as principal of our Public School another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Josh Mitchell and two children, also Mr. and Mrs. Martin, of Toronto, spent a few days with Mrs. Mitchell's brother, Mr. C. H. Carter.

A shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Mitchell, 3 Braid St., Toronto, for the twins of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carter. Those who took part in it were: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mitchell, Miss Celia Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. F. Martin, Miss Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Thy. Cunningham, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. McQwen, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Morrow, Mrs. A. Morrow, Mr. Alex. ENTERPRISE

The members of the Enterprise Women's Institute were entertained on Friday, June 29th, at the home of Mrs. Geo. Fenwick, Sr. Mrs. Fenwick had planned no pains to make the event a highly enjoyable one, and her efforts were certainly appreciated by the large number of ladies present. The meeting was opened by the singing of the Ode and prayer, followed by the reading of the minutes and financial report. A committee was appointed for the following three months, to visit the sick and it was decided to hold no meeting during the month of July, the members coming together again for our annual Grandmother's Day in August.

Mrs. H. W. Wagar gave a very interesting report of the Convention at Croydon for the benefit of those who, on account of the very bad weather, were unable to be present.

The programme for the day took a patriotic turn, things being given by Mrs. G. Fenwick, Mrs. J. Reid, Miss Hilda and Mrs. S. Post.

Patriotic songs were sung by all, such as: "Oh Canada", "The Maple Leaf", etc.

A delightful lunch of cake, sandwiches, and ice cream, was served by our hostess, and although the weather was very unfavourable, no one appeared to mind it, and a very hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Fenwick for her kind hospitality.

The meeting closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

Identifying the "Finest of Low Priced Sixes"

THE Pontiac emblem, now a familiar sight on every highway, is the distinguishing mark of the world's finest low-priced six.

It identifies the smoothness of Pontiac's Six-cylinder engine, with its new improved G-M-R cylinder-head . . the enduring qualities of Pontiac's sturdy chassis . . the easy-riding comfort of Pontiac's Lovejoy Shock-Absorbers . . the countless refinements of engineering and construction that spell "quality" in a motor-car.

And, just beside the hood of the New Series Pontiac Six is another symbol of a fine automobile . . the "Body by Fisher" emblem, with all that it implies of luxury, craftsmanship and stylish beauty. Pontiac is the lowest-priced six which can claim the distinction of "Body by Fisher".

Whenever you see the familiar "Indian Head" emblem, and say "There goes the New Pontiac Six", you are identifying, beyond doubt, the world's finest of low-priced sixes. P-14-7-28C

BURMA'S RUBY MINES

FINEST IN THE WORLD FOUND THERE.

Native Miners Still Employ the Time-Honored Methods of Their Forebears — Water Pumped Through Hollow Bamboo.

The finest rubies in the world are found in Burma. The most prolific mines are located in the Magok district, says a writer in the Statesman of Calcutta.

The industry is an ancient one, and the need to recognize the rights of the hereditary miners has been a handicap to the Mogok Ruby Mines, Ltd., which has been trying for forty years to develop the industry on modern and scientific lines. Local tradition attributes the name of the hill immediately above the valley. The "Hill of the Vultures," to the fact that once rubies lay on the ground in such profusion that vultures from their airy viewpoint were deceived into thinking that the redness of the hill was due to a perpetual feast laid out for them.

The later kings of Burma included "Lordship of the Ruby Mines" among their numerous titles, and had a right to half the value of every stone found by the astute miners, but often two small stones were found which looked as though they might once have been a single whole a short time before. At the present time the Mogok Ruby Mines, Ltd., pay a large rent to the Government of India as well as a royalty of one-third of their profits.

The native miners still employ the time-honored methods of their forebears, and big shafts are sunk by hand until the gem-bearing soil is reached. It is seldom possible for them to go lower than twenty to thirty feet for the valley is almost water-logged.

Every night the shaft fills up with water and as their only pump is a hollow bamboo with a man worked plunger at the top, often six hours of pumping is necessary before the actual mining can begin.

The walls are made of bracken tightly packed behind light lathes of split bamboo, the whis kept in place by a few stout beams firmly wedged from one wall to the opposite one and lashed in their place. These beams also serve as the rudimentary ladder used by the miners for going up and down the shaft.

The most conspicuous thing in the valley is the forest of bamboo cranes. These are made by planting a thick bamboo upright in the ground, splitting a wedge in the top and the lashing it to prevent it splitting further. In this V-shaped split another bamboo is tied on so that its end can reach the bottom of the well. To the thick end of the horizontal bamboo are attached weights — wheels, old iron, kerosene tins full of water—which are sufficient to keep the beam of the "crane" normally in the raised position.

When some gravel has to be raised a man standing over the shaft pulls and pushes the loose end down, the miner at the bottom loads it and the loaded end of the crane being almost balanced by the counter-weight comes up easily at a gentle pull.

The gem bearing gravel is then carried away to be washed. The baskets too are made of the inevitable bamboo which most surely have as many uses as even the palm tree in Ceylon. The basket itself is made of flat strip of bamboo plaited together, the handle is made of a rather thicker strip and the two are tied together with a creeper from the tropical jungle which is seldom out of hands' reach in Upper Burma.

When the day's work pumping and digging are over, the water is turned on to the pile of gravel and the mud with which the gravel is very plentifully mixed is washed down a channel roughly cut in the side of the valley. Little catchments stop the stones which are taken out by handfuls and scattered into a sieve.

At this point at least three pairs of eyes are in use to discern the little red pebbles on which so high a price is set and also to make certain that no nimble hands pick out a gem and conceal it.

Almost all the stones of value are found in this way, but the women of the district have an immemorial right to interrupt the mud and rubble which is washed down to the stream below and search it again for gems, much as "Ruth in tears amid the alien corn" was permitted to follow the harvesters and glean.

Not often do stones larger than gravel come into the hands of these patient gleaners, but there is always the chance of a prize as when a woman not long ago found a stone worth Rs. 100.

Even in pockets where rubies are most plentifully found, thousands of common stones are turned over for every gem and of the gems the largest proportion are so small that they are worth a few rupees at most. To-day the value of rubies is not high in proportion to their rarity, partly because imitations can be made to resemble natural stones so closely, and a severe blow was struck at the ruby market when the most-do-plete in Paris announced that it would not for this reason accept rubies as pawn.

The small rubies are used in the works of watches on account of their hardness and when sold in bulk have a certain value.

Farmyards and Films.

It cows did not like mustard, we should have no cinemas!

According to the latest discovery in photography, films are coated with a gelatine emulsion containing silver bromide, but the silver bromide would not record the image if the gelatine were pure.

Analysis has shown that the little specks of impurities in the gelatine are sulphur, the source of which is found in the cattle hides from which the gelatine is made. The skins of animals contain sulphur because they eat wild mustard.

A Tired-Out Feeling

Is a Sure Sign That the Blood is Thin and Watery.

"I am glad to have an opportunity of testifying to the benefits I derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills", writes Mrs. Lawrence Kennedy, St. Joseph, N.B. She further says :—"Some years ago I was working as a stenographer, and became badly run-down. I always had a tired-out feeling, had no appetite and suffered terribly from backache. Almost every month I had to remain from the office for a day or two. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have reason to be glad that I followed this advice. Before I had been taking the pills very long I began to feel much better. Continuing their use my strength came back, I regained my appetite and the terrible backache from which I had suffered disappeared. I have been married some years now and have two fine healthy children, a girl and a boy, and am in the best of health. All this I owe to Dr. Williams' famous Pink Pills, and I trust that these few lines may help some other weak, run-down person."

All weak, run-down people who will give this blood-building tonic a fair trial will find through its use new health and strength. You can get the pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE PRODUCTION OF RIPE TOMATOES

(Experimental Farms Note)

Earliness is a prime factor in the production of ripe tomatoes in those parts of Eastern Canada. Few varieties, if allowed to ripen naturally, will mature all their fruit before frost. In fact, no amount of pruning or fertilizing will overcome the hardiness of some varieties to ripen.

Choosing a variety is then one of the essentials to successful tomato growing. The Alacrity is one of the earliest varieties and is usually very productive. The fruit, unfortunately, is inclined to be rough. Bonny Best, though not quite so early, is much smoother and of better quality. The different strains of Earliana are also popular with many market gardeners.

The character of the plants set in the field is also an important factor in determining earliness of maturity and completeness of ripening before frost. The type of plant depends upon, and upon the dates of sowing and transplanting, but upon expert management of all the other details of plant growing.

To produce sturdy, desirable plants, the seed should be sown in flats early in March. Transplanting begins after the first true leaves formed, usually about three weeks after the seed is sown. The second transplanting begins when the plants have reached a fair size in the box, this being about two weeks later. Twenty-four plants to a flat is the usual number. The third transplanting takes place usually about ten weeks later. This may be made into pots or flats.

For the first two weeks the temperature should be maintained at about 70 degrees F. About the time of the third transplanting it should be allowed to go below 50 degrees F. so as to harden the plants. The ventilation should also be increased at this time. At no time during their growth should the plants be given more water than is necessary; in fact, they should be allowed to wilt slightly before water is given. This induces increased hardiness.

Tomatoes require a moderately rich soil. The addition of superphosphate will usually stimulate the production of ripe fruit.

The plants should not be set in the field until all danger of frost is past. On an average years, this is about June 10th. They should be set in rows four feet apart, and about eighteen inches apart in the rows for staking. When grown on the flat they may be planted four by four feet apart. Experiments conducted at the Charlottetown Experimental Station show that the largest amount of ripe fruit is obtained from plants that are pruned to one stem and tied to either stakes or wire.

1,302,000 ARMENIANS.

Group Forms 23 Per Cent. of Trans-Caucasian Population.

More than a million and a third Armenians are reported to be still surviving in the proportion of what was formerly the Armenian kingdom, after all the massacres inflicted upon them by the Turks, Kurds and Russians. Such is the statement of the census takers of the federation of Soviet Republics of Transcaucasia as a result of their observations in 1926. The Armenians form the smallest of the three great ethnic groups that compose more than 76 per cent. of the population of Transcaucasia. The Turks of Azerbaijan, number 1,652,768, or more than 28 per cent. The Georgian, with 1,470,435, are more than 25 per cent. The Armenians are 1,282,592, or nearly 23 per cent. of the whole population.

There are, of course, various other elements in the population record. There are 266,178 Russians, or nearly 5 per cent. of the whole. Greeks are more than 4 per cent., the Gasetes nearly 2 per cent., and the Montagnards and Assyrians about 1-3 per cent. each.

There are in addition about 68,000 foreigners domiciled in Transcaucasia, of whom about 47,000 are Persians, about 4000 Hungarians

CANADA'S TREES IN 2,000

Charles L. Pack Looks Into the Future—the Time When Our Unborn Sons Will Be Men.

Our neighbors to the north of us should be keenly interested in population estimates recently made public in the United States, says Charles L. Pack, president of the American Tree Association.

The figure-experts tell us the population of the United States will be close to 150,000,000 at the end of the next quarter century and that it may reach 200 million about the year 2000. It will seem odd to write a date with that combination of figures.

A lot of children in the first grade at school to-day will write it that way, so the year 2000 is not so very far away after all. It is a fascinating speculation to wonder just how much anybody cares about the children who will make up the nation in the year 2000. Just what economic problems will they be called upon to solve?

Of course, it follows that any such increase in population will affect in a tremendous way the economic future of the people of the Dominion of Canada. These people are rapidly becoming forestry-minded due to the good work of the Canadian Forestry Association, and they are daily growing more appreciative of the value of Canada's yearly forest crop.

Now, just why should Canadians be interested in a growth in population in the United States from a forestry standpoint? Because there are 1,377,553 acres of idle or unproductive forest area in the state of Illinois. In Michigan there are 6,000,000 acres. In Wisconsin, 10,000,000 acres. In Minnesota, 5,500,000 acres. In Massachusetts, 1,000,000 acres. In Ohio, 1,750,000 acres. In Indiana, 2,300,000 acres. In New York, 4,000,000 acres. In Pennsylvania, 3,500,000 acres. You will note these areas are in the centre of our great manufacturing sections, where the demand is enormous. On the other hand, the centre of our lumber industry is in the far west, a long haul to where it is most needed.

Now, there is only so much land. The thing to do, of course, is to make every foot of it produce something. In the United States we must act quickly because nothing short of a miracle will enable our country to supply from it's own production the lumber demand in the year 2000 when our population will have reached the 200 million mark. The experts say most of our virgin timber will have been cut in twenty-five years. It will have disappeared long before we reach the 200,000,000 mark. Such a population alone will bring a demand for wood that cannot be supplied with all our forests under the best possible management. Our productive forests are rapidly decreasing. Waste timber areas are increasing. In 1950 there is liable to be an area of idle land larger than New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and New England. Then, too, we will need more farm land to feed such a population. It is estimated demands for wood will have increased at least 45 per cent. by 1950, but the total annual production of our forest land as it stands to-day, if it were under intensive forest management, would exceed our present yearly drain upon the forest by only 12 per cent. This means the demand in 1950 cannot nearly be satisfied and that if all our forest land was properly managed at best possible yield our per capita consumption in twenty-four years must be reduced at least 33 per cent. and in 75 years 46 per cent.

It all comes down to this: Will the United States put that idle land to work? There is legislation to that end pending in our Congress, concludes Mr. Pack. In the meantime, Canada with her tremendous forest wealth is right next door to the manufacturing centre of the North American continent. As conservation means wise use, Canada will do well to conserve what she has and look to the future.

THE MYSTERY V.C.

Rapid Rise of Captain Gordon Campbell, R.N.

The war's mystery V.C., who received honors for exploits which had to remain close secrets, Captain Gordon Campbell, has been made a rear-admiral. Captain Campbell was the great Q-boat commander. It is now possible to reveal the adventure for which he received his V.C., by the Old Country paper. A German submarine torpedoed Captain Campbell's ship, and it began to look as if the "panicky" desertion was staged while the gunners prepared for action. The Russ drew the submarine to the surface only 200 yards away, and in a few moments it sank, crushed by shot from the Q-boat's six-pounder guns. To save his own ship Captain Campbell boarded the U-boat.

When made commander, in 1916, he advanced over the heads of over 700 lieut.-commanders, and was promoted to captain he passed over more than 500 commanders. There is nothing known to exceed these jumps in promotion in the whole history of the British navy.

Canadian's Portrait Hung.

A portrait of the late Dr. Willet G. Miller, former professor of geology at Ontario, was formally presented to the Institution of Mining and Metallurgy recently, and is now hung in Cleveland House, London.

Canada's Trade Commissioner Larkin made the presentation on behalf of the donors, a number of Canadians who raised the necessary funds by private subscription. The portrait is the work of J. W. L. Forster, the well known Toronto artist.

About a year ago the same organization was presented with a portrait of Sir William Logan, F.R.S., painted by E. Wyly Grier of Toronto.

ANNOUNCING A REMARKABLE NEW BUILDING MATERIAL

INSUL-BOARD
(INSULATING BOARD)

A Board that shuts out cold. Stops heat. Deadens sound. An extraordinary building and insulating Board designed to make home interiors more comfortable, more restful and more healthful the whole year through. An All-Canadian Board, made in Canada from the products of Canada's Forests.

INSUL-BOARD meets the need for a stouter and more rugged material for wall and ceiling insulation. Its greater structural strength has been proven under critical tests by Canada's leading engineers. It makes the walls more rigid, more enduring, more capable of resisting severe strain and stress.

INSUL-BOARD insulates completely, producing a sure and lasting shield against winter's cold and summer's heat, sealing the home interior tight against all atmospheric discomfort.

RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. A. C. ALLEN

On Wednesday evening, July 4th, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Allen, Marlbank, Ont., to welcome home their son, Mr. H. C. Allen, and his bride, from their honeymoon trip to Vancouver and other western points. About ninety guests sat down to tables which fairly groaned with good things to eat and which were prettily decorated with pink roses and peonies. The evening was spent in music and dancing, after which the guests repaired to their homes, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Allen many years of wedded happiness. The beautiful gifts received showed the high esteem in which the young couple are held by their many friends.

"My bill for that call was 60 cents", said Mrs. King, "and Mrs. Jones paid 75 cents!"

The explanation is that Mrs. King had said to the operator "I will speak to anyone there".

That made it a Station-to-Station call.

Station-to-Station calls are quicker and about 20 per cent cheaper than person-to-person messages. Moreover, low evening rates (after 8.30 p.m.) and still lower night rates (after midnight) apply on distance, to-station calls. CHILD PSYCHOLOGY.

Very Little Can Be Done to Increase Intelligence, Says Professor.

Humanity, its actions and reactions, its idiosyncrasies and varying degrees of intelligence, as well as the importance of parental conduct as it relates to children, were discussed from the standpoint of a psychologist by Prof. Blatz, associate professor of psychology, University of Toronto.

"It was possible," declared the professor, "with 'improved technique' to predict whether a child would be intelligent when he grew up. There was an antiquated educational system in the province into which a child had to fit itself."

"We are, as you know in an era of standardization. We standardize everything," said the speaker, who pointed out that people got up in the morning by the aid of a standardized alarm clock, shaved with a standardized razor and shop, took a standardized meal, read a standardized paper, travelled to work in a standardized street car, and worked a standardized time in a standardized office. They returned to a standardized home, listened to a standardized radio, slept on a standardized mattress and ate a standardized dream."

"What does all this mean?" queried Prof. Blatz. "It means that we are trying to make people the same, and we are not the same. If we were, you could not tell us apart. We are beginning to standardize everything instead of thinking in the terms of the individual.

"If there is one note that modern psychology is sounding, it is that note of individuality. Intelligence is something which we come into the world, and so far as is known, very little can be done to increase intelligence."

"BLOOD DONORS."

Men and Women Who Save Countless Lives.

A social evening was held in London recently by what is perhaps the most exclusive association in the world. For every single person present was what is called a "blood donor." A "club" without an entrance fee and without a subscription, the sole qualifications for membership is the voluntary giving of one's blood.

Up to a very few years ago, blood transfusion was an extremely rare operation. To-day science has progressed, and hardly a week goes by in any great hospital without some patient's life being saved by the pumping into his veins of blood taken from another person. So there exists a branch of the Red Cross whose object is to find volunteers for the service of giving blood.

On applying to a hospital the donor is asked to allow a drop of blood to be taken from his or her thumb—for there are plenty of girls in the service. This blood is tested, and the donor's name recorded as suitable for particular cases. After that, all that he or she has to do is to wait till the call comes.

Day and night an office is open waiting for telephone calls from hospitals in need. A call comes through, and in a few minutes a message is on its way to a volunteer.

The volunteer feels no pain when the blood is received, and within a couple of hours is as fit as ever. Indeed, there are donors who say that an occasional giving of blood is actually good for one. But, the fact remains—for the rest of his days the volunteer knows that he has saved a life!

THE SLEEPING SENTRY.

Offences That Were Punishable With Death Have Now Been Reduced.

Soldiers' offences on active service that were punishable with death have now been reduced, says Tit Bits. The penalty will no longer be enforced for the following offences:

Leaving a commanding officer to go in search of plunder; forcing a safeguard; forcing or striking a sentinel; breaking into any house or other place in search of plunder; when acting as a sentinel sleeping or being drunk on a post; striking or using violence to a superior officer in the execution of his office; disobeying, in such a manner as to show a wilful defiance of authority, any lawful command given personally by a superior officer in the execution of his office; altering or interfering with any air signal without authority.

These amendments are contained in the Army and Air Force Bill, and the only military offences on active service that remain punishable by death are mutiny, treachery, cowardice, desertion, and leaving a guard without orders, or, in the case of a sentinel, leaving a post without being regularly relieved.

India's Sacred River.

The Ganges is the sacred river of the Hindus. On its banks are many temples and holy places such as Benares, Allahabad, Hardwar and Gangotri. According to the legend the Princess Ganda, a Hindu goddess, of long ago, turned herself into this great river, that she might enrich and purify the country. Devout Hindus bathe themselves in its sacred waters and pray to die beside it. It is their desire that their bodies may be burned upon its banks and their ashes scattered over its waters and allowed to float on down to the sea. The length of the main stream of the Ganges is 1,557 miles, and its every bend is sacred. Pilgrims walk from its source and back again taking six months or more for the pilgrimage.

ODESSA WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Odessa ladies were very much pleased with the number that attended the Lennox County Convention held in the Town Hall in June, but were disappointed because the Honorary President of our Branch, Mrs. Frederick Etherington, was unable to be present. We had hoped to have her with us and give an address.

The July meeting was held in the Library. Bay View Branch kindly came out and provided the programme. After the usual opening, the roll call was answered by "Sandwich Fillings". Some of them sounded very tempting. Business, and four letters from those that had received flowers were then read.

Mrs. Compton, President of Bay View, then took the chair. Everyone present were sorry that the attendance was not larger, to enjoy the program. There were four musical numbers that had to be omitted as we haven't a piano. Everyone regretted this very much.

Miss Mollie Fairfield gave such a valuable paper on "True Hospitality", that we persuaded her to let us have it to publish. She said she started to prepare a paper on Old Fashioned Hospitality, and wondered what the difference between old fashioned and modern would be, so changed it to "True Hospitality".

A reading, "The Woman's Institute in 1924", by Mrs. Little, was enjoyed by all. Special mention must also be made of the interesting way that Miss Alice Fairfield gave us "Current Events". The last number was a demonstration of articles made from "Flour Sacks". Each one was given a square of pasteboard and the article they thought most useful the square was left with it. The one that had the most was a table cloth made from four small ones and put together with rick-rack braid and a bit of embroidery. It was hard to decide where to place your choice as there were so many pretty and useful articles.

After singing the "Maple Leaf", lunch was served, which brought a very pleasant afternoon to a close.

At the August meeting we hope to have our District Secretary with us. Also there is to be a demonstration of salads. The roll call will be "Don't for Canning".

The following is Miss Fairfield's paper on "True Hospitality".

Someone has said that hospitality is a divine gift, and cannot be cultivated. But is this really true? One thing is certain, it is not necessary to live in a fine home, where money and education abound in order to be hospitable, for real hospitality oftentimes dwells in the small cottage and passes by the large mansion.

True hospitality does not consist in the luxurious environment, but in the personal element which enters into the welcome which we receive in the homes we visit. The hospitable home is the one in which we are made to feel "at home", and in which no matter when we drop in we are made welcome, even though the house may not be spick and span and an extra special meal prepared in our honor. It is from such homes as these that we go away impressed with the thought that we have had such a good time, and look forward with happy anticipation to our next visit.

We are all familiar with the woman who goes to so much trouble when we visit her. On our arrival we are escorted to the parlor, and long before the table is usually loaded with good things, and we almost wish we had not come when we realize the extra work our visit has caused. Would it not have been much better to have served the meal planned for the day and have had a real visit with our hostess. One can always add a few little extras to a plain meal without a great deal of work, such as jelly, jam, or cream to a plain pudding, and relishes, pickles or salad to the meat course. Is it not a tendency for many of us to get too fussy in our housekeeping. In our busy life on the farm there is still another danger we should guard against, that of becoming so self centered and engrossed with our own home duties that we forget there are people in every community who long for friends and the friendly word, and there earn the name of being a cheerful hostess. Do not entertain your friends with an account of the wet or dry weather, or how hard it is to keep the house clean. If you have not think of anything pleasant to say let your guest talk. Perhaps she has come on purpose to tell you all about her troubles, and when she leaves you will realize that other people have troubles as well as you, and you will feel better able to bear your own. Is it worth while then to make a study and art of true hospitality to such an extent that people will be glad to come to our homes and sorry to leave.

DENBIGH

The United Church picnic held on the 4th of July, was a splendid success. The day was all that could be desired. Dinner and supper the very best; program excellent, and the gathering most happy. Proceeds over two hundred dollars. The parsonage with its large verandah, is now free from bedbugs, owing to the credit of Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Scott, now serving the sixth year.—Sorry to report Mrs. F. Rodgers is under the Doctor's care. All hope for a speedy recovery.—Mr. Carl Rodgers, teller in the Dominion Bank, Belleville, and his sister, Miss Gladys Rodgers, of Toronto, are spending their vacation at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rodgers.—Miss Anna Lane, teacher at Trout Mills, and brother, Mr. Aubrey Lane, student at North Bay, are now visiting at home with their mother, Mrs. Anna Lane.—Mr. and Mrs. Phil Plotz accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Dave Plotz on a three days outing to Pembroke. All report a very pleasant time.—After an absence of nine years, Mr. Paul Stein, Jr., accompanied by Mrs. Stein and two sons of the "Soo", visited a few days at his old home, the Denbigh House, with his father, Mr. Paul Stein, Sr., and family. They returned by auto on the 4th. His many relatives and friends were much pleased to meet the long absent family once more.—Our Reeve, Mr. Chas. Bolh, spent a day last week at Bon Echo on important business.—The entire community is very much opposed to the agitation of Mr. Dennison, of Bon Echo, to have the Government Fisheries Department appropriate Cedar Lake for Park Property. It's only another way of trying to keep tourists away from Denbigh and its many beautiful lakes and its unexcelled scenery. Some people want the whole earth and then want the Government to fence it in.

WEDDING BELLS.

Scouten—Kellar.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Trinity Church, Napanee, on Thursday morning, June 28th, 1928, by Dr. Ray Hall, Pawnee, when Annie Loretta, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kellar, was united in marriage to Mr. Fred Scouten, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Scouten, both of Wilton.

The bride looked very charming in a gown of white georgette with lace, and tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of Sophelia roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Edith Kellar, sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, was attired in white crepe-de-chene, and wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Mr. Archie Scouten, brother of the groom, acted as best man. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, to the immediate relatives.

After the dinner, mid showers of rice and confetti, Mr. and Mrs. Scouten left by motor for Cobourg, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, and other points south.

The bride chose for travelling a grey crepe ensemble with shoes, purse, gloves and small flower hat to match, and navy tricotene coat trimmed with satin.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Scouten will reside at Wilton, where the groom is a prosperous young farmer.

The many beautiful and costly gifts received testified to the esteem in which the young couple are held.

Two features of the day was the bride's grandfather, Mr. J. Kellar, who is 84 years of age, travelled over sixty miles to attend the wedding, with horse and buggy; also the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins, of Verona, who have enjoyed fifty-one years of married life.

TAMWORTH

The services on the United Church field will be held at Marlbank, Reidville, and Tamworth, on Sunday next, in the morning, afternoon and evening. A service is held on Wednesday evening last at Sand Street school. Another service is announced for the Parlor school on Wednesday evening, the 25th inst. — Misses Grace Beckwith and Irene Patience returned from Wasi Lake, where they spent a week ending Wednesday of last week. They report a very successful camp. — The funeral of the late Joseph Murphy, whose death was caused by gas poisoning in Toronto, was held on Friday last in Erinsville R. C. church. — Alfred Wood, ex-Chief of Police, is visiting his father, Elias Wood. — Simeon Keller, Watertown, is visiting friends in Tamworth and vicinity.—Mrs. Lancaster, Mrs. McAfee and Mrs. Horne, of Syracuse, N.Y., are in Tamworth, guests of Mrs. Bert Meeks. Mrs. McKim, who is seriously ill as a result of a fall. Latest reports are that the latter is very well over the shock, the extent of her injuries. — The main street of the village has been tarred during the past few days, giving relief from the dust nuisance.—A large number of Tamworth people, including local Orangemen, attended the celebration of the Twelfth in Napanee, on Thursday last. The well known parade, program and welcome given the lodges and visitors were all that could be desired, and the day was voted a grand success.

A wobble—a worn bearing—a badly lined-up wheel—anything that keeps tires from tracking true will rob you of mileage and make your motoring costly.

EVEN if the tread doesn't show it to your eye —our experienced tire men will usually notice the first signs of trouble. Give us the chance to save you the price of a new tire.

Wheels do get out of alignment. Catch it before it gets really bad and you will lower your tire bills and get greater tire mileage. Let our service man check up your tires every week. Let him test tire pressure and look for hidden trouble. A little care may save you a half-hour on the roadside—and knock dollars off your running costs.

BATH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The July meeting of Bath Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall, on Monday evening, July 9th, at 7.30 o'clock. A nice number was present, and much good derived from the meeting.

The meeting opened in the regular way, after which some business was transacted. Mrs. Creighton and Mrs. Galt were elected as the other two directors. A programme committee of four was selected for the purpose of arranging the programmes for the next three months; the committee being Mrs. J. M. Wemp, Mrs. Galt, Mrs. Stevenson, and Mrs. Collins. It was moved and seconded that a silver collection be taken at each meeting.

Those present decided it would be of great advantage to the village and the Institute if each member would bring a new member to the next meeting, which is to be held on August 13th, at 7.30 p.m.

Mrs. F. Hamm gave a wonderful talk on "The Culture of Roses".

Her word pictures of Italy, Switzerland and England were beautiful. One could almost see those rose-covered cottages of the Swiss, that rose arcade in Italy, and the beautiful grounds of Hampden Court. She stressed points concerning planting, fertilizing, and spraying for pests. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Hamm.

A splendid collection was handed in and the meeting closed by singing "God Save the King".

ODESSA

The annual lawn social held last Friday night by the United Church, on the Parsonage lawn, was a great success. The delightful weather was very much in their favor, and the Odessa Brass Band added greatly to the programme with their many and choice selections.

Mrs. Henry Allen has returned from spending the past three months with her sister, Mrs. Fred Scott, Montreal. She was accompanied by her nieces, Miss Louise Scott and Miss Jean Scott, also a lady friend, Mrs. Prossers.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker, Syracuse, and Mr. James, of Kingston, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Sproule, last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Millen, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Saylor and little daughter, Eleanor, and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Bell, Oshawa, spent the week end with Mr. Millen's and Mrs. Bell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Davy.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Windover, of Kingston, spent Wednesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hazzard.

Mr. Charlie Vrooman, North Bay, spent the past week with his brother, Mr. Fred Vrooman.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Milsap and son, Thomas, also Mrs. Ainsley, Buffalo, N.Y., were recent guests of Mrs. Mary Milsap and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Vrooman.

Mrs. Jack Long and daughter, Dorothy, Oshawa, are guests of Mrs. Long's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson.

Mr. Alfred Smith, Welland, and mother, Mrs. James Smith, and brother, Clarence Smith, and family, of Parrotts Bay, visited the former's uncle, H. J. Smith, last Sunday.

Mr. James McQueen has returned from spending a few days with his niece, Mrs. Herbert Jamieson, Hartington. She was accompanied by her nephew, Charlie Jamieson.

Miss Marie Kenyon, who has been spending the past two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. B. L. King, returned to Toronto last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Archie Simmons, Wilton.

The funeral of the late Albert Timmerman was held from his niece's home, Mrs. Robert Cairns, last Wednesday afternoon. Rev. G. McQuade officiated, and interment took place in Cataraqui cemetery. The deceased was born here about eighty-three years ago, and quite a number of those years were spent in his home town. The largely attended funeral and the many beautiful floral tributes of the esteem in which he was held. The pall bearers were H. J. Smith, W. Doughterty, John Kenny, O. Babcock, Wesley Sharpe and Thomas Kenny.

The Women's Missionary Society met Wednesday afternoon in the Sunday School room of the United Church with a large number of members and visitors present. The Vice President, Miss Lillian Aylesworth, was in the chair. The meeting was opened by Hymn No. 2, and the lesson read by Mrs. Pearl Storms. After the business was transacted, ten ladies gave interesting talks on the different provinces of Canada, followed by readings from Mrs. Lewis Snider, Mrs. McQuade, Mrs. Melville Lee and Mrs. William Jones. Mrs. (Dr.) A. Mabee moved a vote of thanks to Miss Aylesworth for furnishing a delicious and generous treat of ice cream. The meeting closed by singing Hymn 101.

SEEKING LOST RACE.

Believed Marooned In Lofty Mountains in Interior Asia.

Fragments of a lost race of white men, marooned on lofty mountain ranges in interior Asia among a sea of Mongol folk, are among the objectives of an expedition participated in by a German, Austrian and Russian scientists. The group goes into territory hitherto never explored by Europeans, under the leadership of W. Rickmers of Bremen, who conducted a German expedition into Turkestan some years ago.

The mountain regions to be investigated are known as the Transalai and the Seltan. They are parts of the Himalaya uplift, lying to the northwest of the "roof of the world," in Russian Turkestan. Formerly they were lumped together under the name Pamir.

It is believed that their inhabitants are remnants of Indo-Germanic races, descendants of the stock that populated India and Europe. The theory is that they sought refuge in these mountains when the Mongols overran Asia during the middle ages, and have remained there ever since. One of the members of the expedition is a specialist in the structure of languages; he will try to gain some clue to the ancestry of the mountain folk from their speech.

Other members of the party will represent the sciences of geology, geography, meteorology and natural history.

House of Gold Door-Knobs.

There is in Fifth avenue, New York, a 12-storey tenement building in which every door-knob is gold-plated. In one flat every king, doorhandle, and key is of gold.

"The house with the gold door-knobs" is known all over the world. $400,000 was paid for the building in 1913, a year after its completion. Its erection was bitterly opposed by many well-known families, who had spent fortunes in the erection of great houses in the vicinity of the structure.

Twenty-five-room suites and $6,000 a year rentals were unknown until this dwelling was built. There has never been a vacant apartment in the house from the day it was completed, despite the fact that until recently it was the most expensive residential structure in the world.

Now Then, Anglers!

All anglers like to imagine that large fish they caught as one of the "biggest ever." But perhaps they have no idea what constitutes a big fish.

To earn a place among the records, fish of various kinds must not be below the following weights:—

Salmon, 36 lbs.; sea-trout, 8 lbs.; trout, 6 lbs.; grayling, 2 lbs.; pike, 17 lbs.; roach, 1 lb. 14 oz.; barbel, 7 lbs. 4 oz.; roach, 1 lb. 14 oz.; chub, 5 lbs.; dace, 14 oz.; tench, 2 lbs. 15 oz.; bream, 5 lbs.; carp, 6 lbs. 12oz.; and rudd, 2 lbs.

WHERE NAPOLEON DIED

St. Helena Is To-day a Place of Dire Poverty and House Are Dilapidated and Untidy.

The famous island of St. Helena, where Napoleon was exiled, is to-day a place of dire poverty and the houses are dilapidated and untidy, writes Lawrence G. Green, in an article in the Boston Transcript.

There is no trade, and the future holds little hope for the place that was Napoleon's prison.

Yet St. Helena is a fine place for the lover of solitude who has a private income. In a place where everyone is poor, living of necessity must be cheap. Houses and servants are easy to obtain. Beef, mutton, poultry, eggs—all such foodstuffs come to the door for sale at low prices.

The coast, viewed from the sea, is beautiful. Long green valleys, rich with vegetation, sweep inland. Jamestown, the capital, built in a ravine with almost perpendicular sides, is an old-world town with much charm besides historical interest. Dazzling white houses cling to the sides of the mighty cleft, a church and steeple jutting high above the roofs and trees.

When the steamer lets go her anchor, dark men, speaking a strange English dialect, swarm on board. A very distinct type, the natives of St. Helena; their ancestors were Chinese, black slaves from Madagascar, Portuguese, Dutch and English.

You land precariously, with the roar of surf in your ears as the boat surges up to the little jetty. The main street lies before you. Bright flowers rest in gardens; deserted, crumbling houses.

For fifteen shillings you may hire a carriage and travel by mountain road to Longwood, where Napoleon lived in exile. An unpretentious house it is, in good repair; and inside they show you a remarkable death mask of the emperor. You see him as a man with extremely beautiful features, a being different from the grim, cynical soldier that most painters have made him.

All that remains of the original tomb of Napoleon is a large white slab, without any inscription, carefully planted round with geraniums, iron railings surround it.

Behind the parish house in Jamestown is the most striking feature of the island—Jacob's Ladder. This amazing series of steps runs sheer up the cliff to the fort and barracks on Ladder Hill. There are 699 steps in all—a long, white gash on the side of the ravine.

There is no garrison on St. Helena to-day, and few ships call. Hence the poverty. The women are clever makers of lace, and a little flax is grown. A cable station provides a little work. But underfed people were crowding the island hospital, and now a soup kitchen has been established to relieve some of the distress.

WORLD-KNOWN CHILDREN

America's Most Expensive Baby and a Boy Whose Wealth Is Greater Than Gold.

A chubby baby girl races over the springtime grass of New York's Central Park. In appearance she is not much different from millions of little ones whose cheeks are two bright roses and whose knees are scarred from tumbles.

But Gloria Vanderbilt holds a place apart from the rest. She is America's most expensive baby.

Gloria, the three-year-old daughter of the late Reggie Vanderbilt, and granddaughter of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, pioneer fortune-builder, holds a half interest in a trust fund of $6,250,000. By the time she is a debutante, it is estimated that her fortune will have increased to $12,500,000.

It costs $5,000 a month to rear this baby, who, though her meals be served on gold, must take such simple fare as orange juice, boiled eggs, and porridge. How is the money spent?

Detective charges are as regular an item as boots and shoes in this baby's budget. Repeated threats to kidnap her have been made, and she is guarded closely at all times. Culture accounts for further heavy expenditure, for Gloria has an important place to fill in the social world.

In the rearing of the average child, much is left to Providence, to the instinct of mother-love, and chance; but in the upbringing of a child of the ultra-rich little is left to Providence, still less to the mother's protective instinct, and nothing at all to chance.

The little son of Edward B. McLean, the classic example of overguarded childhood, was protected by every known human means from every known peril. In spite of this, the boy was run over by a small car and killed.

A million-dollar baby has the proverbial privacy of a goldfish, and Mary Ellen Berlin is one who has become world-known through family differences. Her grandfather, Clarence Mackay, refused to be reconciled to his daughter after her marriage with the song-writer, Irving Berlin. The coming of the little blue-eyed girl failed to bring peace.

Then there is Mildred, daughter of Harold Lloyd, the cinema star. Her grandfather handed down no well-known name, nor any dynasty of millions, but the young father, a nimble, quiet young man, supplied a golden house from laughter. The new Lloyd home will cost $2,500,000 when completed.

Four-year-old Joseph Boyer nearly scared as one of America's young dollar princes. The will of his supposed grandfather, after whom he was named, had created for him a trust fund of $6,000,000. By a strange twist of fate, it was discovered that the presumed young heir was, in reality, a little waif taken when a few hours old and passed as her own baby by Mrs. Mayme Boyer. The honest plea made by the mother was that she deceived her husband to save her home.

But if the little boy did not come into a kingdom of gold, he found a kingdom of love, for although he has been deprived of the fortune planned for him, he holds the devotion of his adoptive mother.

Champion Autograph Hunter.

It is believed that the world's champion autograph hunter is Joseph D. Mikulec, of Croatian origin, now a naturalised American citizen.

For the past twenty-seven years he has travelled the globe collecting the signatures of the world's great men. He has the autographs of United States Presidents, kings, prime ministers, ambassador, legislators, industrial magnates, authors, actors, explorers, inventors, religious leaders—in short, almost everyone of distinction.

Having filled several albums, Mr. Mikulec now travels around with a huge volume weighing half a hundredweight, and requiring a special truck to move it about. The son of a poor Croatian woodchopper, Mr. Mikulec has been on tramp since his boyhood, and the first fifteen years of his autograph collecting were spent on foot. In addition to his native tongue he speaks English, German, Spanish, Italian, Russian, and a little Japanese.

He is preparing material for a book describing his adventures, and in the meantime supports himself by lectures.

THE VISITING CARD

Custom Dates Back to the Times of the Ancient Egyptians—Quaintest Known Visiting Card.

The visiting card of to-day has a very long pedigree, and dates back to the times of the ancient Egyptians.

It was not actually a card then, of course, says a Tit-Bits article, but took the form of a glazed ware tablet, and was offered, when visits were being made, in much the same way cards are in England to-day.

Not much is known about this Egyptian custom, however, and the visiting card is really lost in antiquity until it became a vogue in China during the seventeenth century.

Chinese cards were then, and always have been, much larger than those in general use in England, and more often than not they were highly colored; generally red. In this land if the East cards have always played an interesting part, particularly in marriage arrangements.

A Chinese, desirous of marrying, acquaints his parents with the fact, and they, in turn, hand the matter over to a professional matchmaker. This man selects a fitting bride—and a list he always has handy, and then calls on the parents of the prospective bride and offers the young man's card. On this is inscribed one or two particulars, besides his name, including details of the man's birth and his ancestral home.

If the suitor approved the bride's card is sent to him in return, and ultimately, if the oracles prophesy good, the marriage takes place.

From the East the custom spread indirectly, if not directly, into Germany, and from there it found its way into France, and finally, in the latter part of the eighteenth century, it began to establish itself in England.

The cards of our near ancestors, however, were nothing like those in use to-day. Now we insist on simplicity, but then the cards were nothing if they were not elaborate, and for several years famous artists and designers found a ready practice in making new, and often grotesque, designs for their wealthy patrons.

One practice was that of having a pastoral scene painted on the card with the name hidden discreetly among flowers or trees and sometimes birds.

At another time cards were used depicting happenings in the lives of their owners, and yet another fashion was that of having drawings of some popular hero, military or otherwise. Cards used by women were more elaborate than those of the menfolk, and besides the full name and title they often bore the initials of that title which the woman possessed before her marriage.

But the honor of making the quaintest known visiting card — if card it may be called — must surely belong to the Dutch painter, Frank Flores. He journeyed several miles once to see his friend, Aartzen, and finding, when he got there, that the friend was out, he is supposed to have drawn a figure on St. Luke on one of the walls. Returning later, Aartzen declared that no one but Flores could have been responsible for such a drawing, and accordingly he immediately set out to repay the visit.

Is the Horse Stupid?

Many biologists maintain that the horse is stupid as animals go. They even argue that the horse's hoof always indicates more brain than the solid. Nevertheless, the horse has not been the ultimate friend of man through all these centuries for nothing. Whatever he does not know, he knows his friends; and you do not discover how clever he is till he is ill.

A particular and very valuable horse which recently fell very ill, writes an authority on the subject, lies down when the vet. enters his stable, turns his head and looks intently at the region where the pain is. He diagnoses as well as indicates his own pain, and most horses are excellent and intelligent patients. No other animal is quite so sure that his master will help him if he can and that he can. If faith is a symptom of intelligence, then the horse is among the most intelligent.

Master Truck Scale to Weigh Cars.

A 120,000 pound master truck scale of the plate-fulcrum type, used for weighing railroad trucks, was recently installed and housed on the Chicago belt line in Chicago by the United States Bureau of Standards, says a Science Service bulletin. Since the scale has a sensitivity to one-tenth of a pound and so is accurate to the millionth point under full load, the Bureau believes that it will do much for standardization in heavy weighing. The scale is so sensitive that the atmospheric barometric pressure causes different registration of weight for one object.

It is the purpose of the Bureau to have different railroads bring their different type cars to this scale, have them weighed, and then send these cars back to the scales of the railroad for a checkup of differences. In this way a standard weight can be established and maintained from coast to coast for the first time.

Hitting the Right Note.

Here is an amusing child story from the other side of the herring pond:

Little Miss Hastings, aged 10, was caught stealing sugar and sent to bed without supper. Her father, a clergyman, was away on a parochial trip and returned late in the evening.

"Mama, I want to see daddy."

There was no response from below.

"Please let daddy bring me a drink of water."

When that failed, a small girl in a white nightie stood at the head of the stairs and said with dignity:

"Mrs. Hastings, I am a very sick woman, and I must see the rector at once."

That fetched daddy.—London Post.

Reading-Room for Tots.

The Charlottenburg quarter of Berlin now possesses something unusual, namely, a reading-room for children only. This room, which is open three times a week in the afternoon, contains eighty-four chairs for young readers and 1,200 juvenile books. Two thousand other books may be loaned out to children over ten years of age with proper credentials.

EXCHANGE OF CHILDREN.

English Youngsters Too Inactive to Enjoy Sojourn in France.

Seven years ago the Association France-Grande Bretagne, in order to cement the trans-Channel friendship, was organized for the purpose of making arrangements by which young French people, between the ages of 14 and 18 years, could be received into English homes, and in exchange for English girls and boys who would be taken into French families. There was no question of payment on either side. The sojourn was ten months.

M. Desclos, assistant director of the National University office in Paris, now draws attention to the fact that the project has failed, in a very one-sided manner — for every seven French children who now want to go to England there is only one English child desirous of going to France. For the first few years the exchange was about equal, then 15, 1925, 211 French students applied for admission to English homes, while 203 English students sojourn in French homes. In 1926 the figures were respectively 270 and 164; in 1927, 226 and 127, while this year it is 350 and 16.

While M. Desclos confesses that he has not fathomed the cause for the change, Capt. B. S. Townroe, the secretary of the association in London, is more outspoken. The truth was that the English people had no appreciation of the advantages offered—they are too insular, particularly in regard to languages. He says, however, that the difference in the standard of living may have something to do with it. The English boys and girls miss the regular porridge or bacon and egg they often form the English breakfast.

Then, again, while the tea habit is growing in France, it has not yet become a family institution. Furthermore, the French are said to be less adaptable and cross the Channel with the idea of getting the best out of whatever may be in store, while English youth crosses doubtfully and predisposed to have an unhappy time.

EVERY TWO MINUTES

OF EVERY BUSINESS DAY · · · SOMEONE IN CANADA BUYS A NEW GENERAL MOTORS CAR

SINCE the days of Confederation, General Motors of Canada Limited has been supplying Canada with transportation. Each year as requirements have multiplied, the scope of General Motors service has widened . . the quality of General Motors cars has steadily improved. Each year more Canadians have looked to General Motors for better automobiles, until now, every two minutes of every business day, someone in Canada buys a new General Motors car. These cars are bought by people you know . . by people like yourself . . for the very reasons which would guide you in the choice of a car.

They are bought because they are the product of the most progressive organization in the world's most progressive industry . . because they reflect the General Motors policy of constant advancement . . because they are better cars. . .

They represent the latest developments of the world's leading automotive research laboratory, offering these developments to the public as soon as they become available. They are proved in advance, at the expense of General Motors, not the public. They are better cars because they are Canadian cars.

And they embody greater value because of General Motors money-saving methods of quantity buying and volume production.

This popularity of General Motors cars holds more than a passing interest for the Canadian car buyer . . for General Motors utilizes increased demand to reduce production costs and to offer still more outstanding automobile value.

IT'S BETTER BECAUSE IT'S CANADIAN

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Its Quality Sells It.—The fact that so many thousands of intelligent people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its healing efficiency. Ever since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in public favor, owing entirely to its manifold usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds, and various inflammatory pains its record is beyond reproach.

A famous actor liked to be affable to the lesser lights about him. One day he was conversing with one of the stage hands. "And what, my man, is your vocation?" asked the condescending matinee idol. "I'm a Baptist," was the reply. "No, no, my good fellow, that is your belief. I want to know your vocation. For instance, I am an actor." "No," replied the scene-shifter, "that's your belief."

Stop the Cough. — Coughing is caused by irritation in the respiratory passages and is the effort to dislodge obstructions that come from inflammation of the mucous membrane. Treatment with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will allay the inflammation and in consequence the cough will usually stop. Try it and you will be satisfied.

Little Pu Chee was a diminutive specimen of Chinese boy in Hankow, who possessed a more infinitesimal specimen as brother, and in whose custody the tiny one was at times left. Thus, one day, did he call out:

"Gracious and illustrious mother, wouldst thou not please speak to my desirable brother, the infant Chee? He hath sealed himself on the American fly paper, and all the flies wait in vain to get thereon!"

Persistent Asthma. A most distressing characteristic of this debilitating disease is the persistence with which recurring attacks come to sap away strength and leave the sufferer in a state of almost continual exhaustion. No wiser precaution can be taken than that of keeping at hand a supply of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, famous as the most potent remedy for eradicating the disease from the tender air passages.

A freshman at Harvard applied at the dean's office of the university for information relative to his father's college career.

"I should like very much to see my father's record. He was in the class of '78", announced the new student.

"I shall be glad to look up the record," replied the officer. "Have you any special reason for consulting it?"

"Well," answered the youth, "dad has warned me again not to disgrace him, and I wish to see just how far I am to go."

Children suffering from worms soon show the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites by the writhings and fretting of the child. Until expelled and the system cleared of them, the child cannot regain its health. Miller's Worm Powders are prompt and effective, not only for the eradication of worms, but also as a toner up for children that are run down in consequence.

The old negro never had fished for anything but bullheads until his employer took him along to keep camp at the summer resort. He put out in a small boat one morning and, by chance, hooked a lusky muskellunge. Before he knew it the fish jerked and upset the boat.

"What Ah'd like to know," he said as he waded to shore," is whether this nigger is fishin' or whether dat fish is niggerin'."

The most obstinate corns fail to resist Holloway's Corn Remover. Try it.

A very severe woman of the "uncoguid" type encountered a man who to put it mildly, had taken more liquor than was good for him. Woman—"Do take one of these tracts, my good man—it will do you good." Drunk (pulling himself together)—"Madame, I writes 'em!"

All mothers can put away anxiety regarding their suffering children when they have Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator to give relief. Its effects are sure and lasting.

THE PERFECT MAN

There is a man who never drinks,
Nor smokes, nor chews, nor swears;
Who never grumbles, never flirts,
And shuns all sinful snares—
He's paralyzed.

There's a man who never does
A thing that is not right;
His wife can tell just where he is,
At morning, noon, and night—
He's dead.

Locusts Fight Own Kindred.

Big predatory locusts, that prey on their own fellow-insects instead of on growing grain crops, are being tried out in Greece as one means of combatting the pest of ordinary locusts now threatening the fields, according to word received here from Athens. These modern descendants of one of the plagues of Egypt have been causing serious losses to Greek agriculture during the past few years, and the Ministry of Agriculture is preparing to spend 16,000,000 drachmas (approximately $3,200,000) in a campaign against them.

Fingernail Writing.

Writing with the fingernail as a pen is an old Persian art, a splendid specimen of which has been presented to King George by the King of Afghanistan.

Balsam Fir.

The balsam fir is one of Canada's most widely distributed trees. It ranges along the Atlantic coast from Nova Scotia to Labrador, westward and northward through New Brunswick, Quebec, and Ontario to Hudson Bay, the Prairie Provinces to Great Slave Lake, and westward into northern British Columbia and Yukon Territory.

There are Two Sides to this Story

MOST people think of their Chevrolet dealer as a NEW-CAR dealer . . simply because of the large number of new Chevrolets which they see on the streets. But, while new car sales are the Chevrolet dealer's biggest reason for being in business, they form only one side of his activities. He must not only sell cars but he must also exchange them.

Every good, successful Chevrolet dealer must also be a good, successful Used Car dealer.

From his experience in selling Chevrolet cars, he knows motor-car values . . . He knows that it is just as important for him to sell a Used Car as a new car . . He knows that Used Car buyers have a right to as much for their dollar and are entitled to as complete satisfaction as new car buyers . . He knows that satisfied Used Car owners will eventually become prospects for new cars . . He knows the value of good-will.

In short, our business as Chevrolet dealers depends on our reputation as used car dealers. That is why you are sure of a square deal and a sound dollar-for-dollar value, when you buy a used car here.

Presentation and Address.

On Tuesday evening, July 3rd, 1928, the friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weese gathered at their home, near Selby, to spend a social time with them before their departure for their new home in Newburgh.

The following address was read by Mrs. James Rose, and two beautiful chairs were presented to them.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Weese,—We, your Selby friends and neighbours, have gathered together here to-night, on the eve of your departure from our neighborhood. We feel we cannot let you depart without expressing our regret that you are leaving us.

You have both always taken an active part in all church work, and we have always found you ready and willing to lend a helping hand whenever needed. We will miss you, Mrs. Weese, as during the past two years you have ably and efficiently acted as President of our W. M. S., and quite frequently assisted as Sunday School teacher whenever called upon; and in many other ways have always been ready to help whenever the opportunity offered.

You, Fred, have spent practically all your life amongst us, and we will all miss your cheery smile and friendly ways.

However, we are very glad that you will not be going any great distance from us, so we hope to meet and visit with you many times again.

It is our sincere wish that you both are spared many years of happiness and enjoyment in your new home, and that the future holds only happiness and prosperity in store for you.

As a slight token of our esteem and friendship for you, we ask you to accept this gift, with the very best wishes of your Selby friends and neighbours.

Guard Baby's Health In the Summer

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentary, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TO PROPAGATE BUDDHISM.

It Is Believed It Will Appeal to Russians.

The Young Men's Buddhist Association of Colombo, Ceylon, publishes a monthly paper from which the following is quoted:

A movement is now afoot in Russia to propagate Mahayana Buddhism in that country. Buddhist representatives from Tibet, Mongolia, and other countries of Central Asia have met in convocation to discuss and settle the details of the organization. Buddhism, it is believed, will appeal to the peoples of Russia better than any other religion. The Government welcomes "the restoration of an ancient form of Buddhism adaptable to the Soviet's requirements." An association of erudite scholars, organized at Leningrad, is expected to form a nucleus of a great seat of Buddhist learning — a Buddhist university of unique nature, the like of which is nowhere in the world to be found now.

The institution will consist of four departments representing India, Africa, Japan and Mongolia. The control of them will be vested in the hands of Sanskrit scholars of outstanding repute. The Government of Russia has guaranteed to pay all preliminary expenses in connection with this movement and also promised considerable financial support in the future.

One-Sex Families.

There is a family in San Pedro, Cal., in which the male tendency is so strong that for four generations no daughter has been born, although there have been thirty-five sons.

The founder of the American branch of this family was the youngest of nineteen boys. He, in turn, had twelve sons, one of whom married an Englishwoman in Canada. They had one son, who married and had three sons.

It is highly improbable that chance could be the only reason for this tendency, and a study is being made by the Eugenics Records Office of such one-sex families in an effort to discover their cause.

Making Roads With Cotton.

A new cotton fabric for use in the construction of concrete highways has been produced. The fabric is a loose cotton cloth, which is laid on the cement face and the surface of the roadway is moulded on top of the fabric.

This layer of fabric serves as a clearage between the surface of the road and the foundation, so that when repairs are necessary the top layer of roadway can be removed and a new surface installed without impairing the more permanent foundation.

Costard Mongers.

Costers were originally sellers of costard apples. They were then called costard mongers.

THE ISLAND OF SABA

Dutch People Dwell In a Volcano In West Indies—Five Miles In Diameter.

Mr. A. Hyatt Verrill devotes a chapter in his fascinating book, "Islands and Their Mysteries," to describing the paradoxical island home of the Sabans, the Dutch people who dwell in a volcano in the West Indies.

This island is so small that it is represented on most maps as a tiny speck without any name, between the British island of St. Kitts and the American island of St. Croix.

It is only five miles in diameter, and one might look in vain for a landing place on the cliffs, which rise a thousand feet sheer from the sea, were it not for a small building flying the Dutch flag and perched on a ledge of rock. The cliffs gradually taper in an enormous cone to a summit nearly six thousand feet above the sea.

On the calmest day it is not easy to make a landing, but even when one has succeeded in reaching the beach the difficulties are not ended.

The path consists of sloping stretches and about eight hundred irregular stone steps, known to the inhabitants as "the ladder," stretches upwards, and one has to climb this to reach the summit.

A small donkey or a kind of Sedan-chair borne by two Negroes is provided as means of transport for visitors; but to the Sabans the ascent is nothing, and every bit of food and merchandise required by the inhabitants has to be carried up this "staircase."

"And when, at last, either by foot or chair or donkey back, we reach the summit, we look upon a sight which well rewards us for all our efforts. Before us is an immense bowl-shaped valley, surrounded on every side by towering green mountains and divided up into neat squares and rectangles by stone walls, while near its centre nestles a veritable toy town.

"White-walled and red-roofed, the houses cluster about the little church, with outlying cottages scattered here and there, and everything so neat, so orderly, and so thoroughly Dutch that it might have been transported bodily from Holland. It is quite in keeping with the topsy-turvy ways of the Sabans that their town is named their village 'Bottom,' although it is verily at the top."

In the fields and gardens northern flowers and vegetables grow side by side with tropical fruits and vegetation, and in this paradoxical island the Dutch inhabitants speak English, instead of their native tongue.

"Very strange it seems that the menfolk of such an out-of-the-world spot as Saba seek a town as Bottom, on an isolated volcano, should choose the sea for a livelihood; but the Saban depends on their island as more or less like a ship, and invariably speak of 'going aboard' it instead of landing on it, and as their tiny vegetable fields and fruit orchards are limited in extent, and the island has few resources, men must go abroad to earn their livelihood."

REV. G. E. AND MRS. ROSS HONOURED AT BATH

The departure of Rev. G. E. and Mrs. Ross from Bath Pastoral Charge was characterized by many kind expressions of appreciations both in word and deed.

The Official Board at its last meeting held before the Pastor left the charge, passed a unanimous resolution recognizing to the full the splendid work of Mr. and Mrs. Ross during their three years' stay on the field, and deeply regretting that the minister could not see his way clear to continue his work on the Circuit.

On the evening previous to their departure Mr. and Mrs. Ross were entertained at a unique social function, where a special program was provided, and refreshments served. The program consisted of addresses, readings, and vocal solos.

During the rendering of this pleasing feature Mr. and Mrs. Ross were invited forward and presented with a purse of gold, a beautiful silver vase, a china bon bon dish (the two latter especially to Mrs. Ross), and the following address :—

To Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Ross.

Dear Friends,—Some of your friends have felt that it would not be fitting to allow you to depart from among us without in some way expressing to you our esteem and regard.

When you came among us three years ago, you took us as we did you "in trust", and now that those three years are past and gone, we are glad that our confidence has not been misplaced.

There are many things in the life of the Pastor of a church that call for the greatest amount of self sacrifice, and we know that when the testing time came that you were not found wanting.

And now when the time has come for your transfer to another field of activity, we meet here to bid you God speed.

We trust therefor that you will accept from us this small gift as but a token of the esteem, the love, and the affection that we bear to you both.

Signed on behalf of your friends,

Bath, June 18th, 1928.

Rev. and Mrs. Ross were taken completely by surprise, but both made a happy, pithy, and fitting reply.

WEDDING BELLS

Morgan—Luther

A quiet wedding took place at Selby United Church, on July 2nd, 1928, when Lois Madge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Luther, became the bride of Mr. Harold Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, Napanee. Rev. H. W. Tooley performed the ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss Phillurs Luther, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. James Morgan.

After the ceremony the wedding party motored to the home of the bride's parents for dinner, and the happy couple left for a trip to Belleville, Toronto, and Niagara Falls.

E. E. SWITZER DIES IN LONDON.

Edwin E. Switzer, well known and respected citizen, died early to-day, in Victoria Hospital, following an illness of more than six weeks from pneumonia.

Mr. Switzer was born in Switzerville, near Napanee, in 1865. He was a resident of Toronto until six years ago, when he came to this city. In Toronto he was connected with the British-American Insurance Company and came to London with his sister, Mrs. George S. Grange, 570 Waterloo street. He had led a retired life for the past ten years and made a multitude of friends. He was an ardent bowler, a member of the Granite Club. He was a member of the congregation of the Metropolitan United Church, of the Masonic Order, the Young Men's Christian Association and the Thistle Bowling Club.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Geo. S. Grange, London, and Mrs. Orlin L. Herring, Montreal; and one brother, Robert Switzer, of Los Angeles; two nephews, R. W. Herring and G. S. Herring, both of Montreal. He was predeceased by his wife a number of years ago. The funeral will be held at the Oatman funeral home on Saturday, with the services at 11 a.m., conducted by Rev. J. A. Johnston, of the Metropolitan United Church. Funeral service was held at Napanee, on Sunday, at 2.30 p.m., by Rev. Harry Pawson.

OBITUARY

Mr. Sydney L. Pringle.

There passed away at his home, on Wednesday, July 4th, 1928, one of Amherst Island's best citizen, in the person of Mr. Sydney L. Pringle. The late Mr. Pringle was born at Napanee in 1857, and came to Amherst Island in his "teens", about 1878. He commenced work in a blacksmith shop at Emerald, and afterwards opened business for himself at Stella. Along with the blacksmith shop he carried on a good business in harness and hardware and other farm equipment, and was the Funeral Undertaker for the district of Amherst Island. He was respected and beloved by all who knew him, and noted for his integrity and honesty in business. At his trade he was a master craftsman, and it was said of him that "he always fitted the shoes to the horse and not the horse to the shoes."

Mr. Pringle was an Elder in Trinity United Church, and had held the office of Circuit Steward for over twenty-three years in the former Methodist Church at Stella. He was a member of the Orange Order.

The funeral was held on Thursday, July 5th, from his home and thence to Glenwood cemetery. The obsequies were conducted by the Rev. R. G. Fry.

The deceased is survived by a brother, Mr. Ezra Pringle, Napanee; a half-brother, Mr. W. Pringle, Massachusetts; two sons, George Pringle, Calgary; Archibald Pringle, Buffalo, and a daughter, Mrs. Roddick Neilson, Stella, Ont. To these the deepest sympathy of the community is extended.

CONWAY WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The beautiful home of Mrs. Chartersville, was thrown open to the members of the Conway Branch of the Women's Institute on Tuesday afternoon, July 10th. A hearty welcome was extended by Mrs. Charters and her daughter, Miss Lulu, to about twenty-five ladies attended.

The new President, Mrs. J. A. Young, conducted the meeting.

After the usual opening exercises, the minutes of the last meeting were read, and adopted, and financial statement given.

The roll call, which was answered by an original idea, gave us some really good ideas.

Mrs. Geo. Ham favoured us with an instrumental solo.

A contest, "Mending a Tear", proved most interesting. After carefully considering, the judges awarded the prize to Mrs. Harold Hough.

Miss E. McGee gave a paper on "From Mine to Powder", and was very much enjoyed by all.

A report of the District Convention held at Odessa, on June 20th, was given.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Charters for opening up her home to the members; also to Miss McGee for her splendid paper.

"God Save the King" brought a very pleasant meeting to a close, after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. H. M. Robinson and Mrs. Sparrow.

The August meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. P. Young, when the Violet Branch will provide the programme. Also the District President will be present and address the meeting.

ENTERPRISE W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. M. S. was held on the lawn of Mrs. H. A. Carscallen, on Thursday, July 5th. After devotional exercises, and the regular routine of business, Mrs. Carscallen read a synopsis of the farewell address of Mrs. Tiers, given before leaving Toronto. Despite the fact that this Chinese lady could speak only two words of English, she has not been a very pleasant one, and although she had spent only three years in her native food while here, still she had gained thirty pounds.

Her motives in coming to Canada was to bear witness for what Christianity had done for China and her people. Two returned missionaries acted as her interpreters.

The Secretary read a leaflet on "Previous Engagements", as to how some members found numerous excuses for not attending the meetings, while others found a spiritual uplift, even the smallest and poorest of them.

Mrs. Gillette, of South Porcupine, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Carscallen, gave a humorous reading with a moral, "Education like money, when put to a good purpose, does more harm than good".

After the meeting Mrs. Bunt assisted the hostess in serving a dainty supper, and all went home thinking it an afternoon well spent.

OBITUARY

Herman Ming.

Herman Ming, one of Napanee's well known and respected citizens, passed away very suddenly on Tuesday morning. Mr. Ming was at his summer camp at Bear-ice Lake, and was found dead in his chair. Deceased had been in poor health for a number of months, but felt better when at his camp, where he has spent the past four summers. The late Mr. Ming was a former valued employee of the Gibbard Furniture Company before embarking in business for himself. He was Mayor of Napanee for two years, and a Councillor for several years previously. One daughter, Mrs. Hiram Cline, Toronto, and two sons, Will and Harry Ming, remain. Dr. E. Ming, M.L.A., is a brother.

THE NAPANEE WOLF CUB PACK

The Napanee Wolf Cub Pack spent the first week of July at Camp Le Nid, in charge of the Lady Cub Master, Miss Helen Herrington, with two very efficient assistants, Scouts Gilbert Howitt and Bill Webb. The plans for the camp had previously been approved by Provincial Boy Scout Headquarters, and during the week the camp was visited by the Provincial Field Secretary, Mr. E. T. Jones, who was recently a guest at the Napanee Rotary Club. The usual camp programme was rising whistle and dip at 7 a.m., flagraising and prayers at 7.50, breakfast at 8, inspection at 9, swim at 11, dinner at 12, supper at 5, flag-lowering at 7, camp-fire until 8.30 p.m. Five of the Cubs learned to swim, and six "got one eye open", which in pioneer language means that they passed their second series of Cub tests. Everyone got well sunburned, but no one was hurt, for of course a bit of iodine and a Cub grin was enough to cure such minor injuries as scratches, skinned toes, or even the bit of the incensed woodchuck which one enterprising Cub tried to capture by the tail. The nine Cubs at camp were Gordon Gilbride, Maurice Thompson, Robert and Godfrey Paul, Leo Walker, Alastair Orr, Alan Cornfield, Bobby Evans, and Roy Sheppard. Transportation to and from the camp was furnished through the kindness of Messrs. Howitt and Templeton. On Sunday, July 1st, the Rector of Adolphustown very kindly visited the camp and held a short open air service.

Price puts it in the lowest class Quality in the highest

THE "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet is motordom's most striking illustration of the difference between "cheapness" and "low-price".

Chevrolet is low-priced, beyond doubt . . lowerpriced than ever before in all Chevrolet history. But, so far from being "cheapened", Chevrolet has been improved—in appearance, in performance, in value! If quality, instead of price, were the means by which cars are classified, Chevrolet would take its place in the higher ranks.

Everything about the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet . . from the big, luxurious Fisher Bodies with their smart, stylish lines, to the powerful Chevrolet engine with its countless new refinements . . everything bespeaks a high standard of quality that has never been sacrificed for any price advantage.

The Chevrolet you buy is, first of all, a bigger and better car. That it is also an outstandingly low-priced car is an additional important advantage, gained through Chevrolet's volume production and its association with General Motors.

Call around and drive this Quality, Low-Priced car today.

The G.M.A.C. . . General Motors' own deferred payment plan affords the most convenient and economical way of buying your Chevrolet or Oakland.

FISHES WHICH BUILD NESTS.

Some Fish Are Very Careful Where They Lay Eggs.

A good many of the smaller, shore-haunting and freshwater dwelling sorts of fishes produce very few eggs, yet all that are necessary to insure the continuation of the race, because they place them in a more or less secure place, make sure they are fertilized, and then protect them against enemies. Such are known as nest-builders, and their care and customs are in many cases remarkable and interesting. All who have had experience with aquariums carried beyond a pair of mere or less unhealthy goldfish know the sticklebacks, the males of which construct, in crevices of rocks, or among water-weeds, elaborate muff-shaped breeding homes made of small sticks and plant-fragments woven together with glutinous threads spun from an organ connected with the kidneys, writes Ernest Ingersoll in the Montreal Weekly Star. In such a nest the female then deposits her few and relatively large eggs, which are zealously watched and brooded by her fierce little mate. This case is nearly paralleled by some of the European gobies; and also by that curiosity of mid-ocean, the sargasso-fish, which spends most of its life resting upon the floating tuft-weed of the sea. Here it glues together, by means of a pasty secretion from its body, the twigs and leaves of a single plant of the gulf-weed (Sargassum) into a sort of bag, within which large numbers of eggs are hung by silky fibres like clusters of grapes. Somewhat similar is the precaution of the gouramies and the paradise-fish of Oriental waters, which form a floating raft of bubbles of air and mucous blown from their mouths; in this raft the eggs are entangled and float about, guarded by a male ready to fight all comers under any rules. The tiny paradise-fishes, saucily amusing and hardy, are among the most attractive of aquarium pets.

Another sort of floating raft, composed of bits of woods, is constructed as an incubation float for its thousand or more eggs by one of the great mormyrs of the Nile and its tributaries. This is a big, strange-looking beaked fish, often depicted on the ancient monuments because it represented a group venerated by one sect of the early Egyptians. The natives of the region carefully avoid these nests when met with in a river, for the owner will attack anything that approaches his property, and can bite cruelly.

WATER UNDERGROUND.

Nearly One-Third of Total Volume of the Oceanic Waters.

The quantity of water underground, beneath the crust of the earth's surface, is nearly one-third the total volume of the oceanic waters, according to estimates of Dr. Chester A. Reeds of the American Museum of Natural History, who has just completed investigations of buried rivers and caves.

The earth's ground water extends to great depths, perhaps six miles, and has been accumulating for countless ages. This great mass of water percolates slowly through the porous and jointed rocks to form great systems of underground drainage, creating such beauty spots as the Mammoth cave in Kentucky and the Endless Caverns in Virginia.

In the limestone regions where so many of these unfamiliar streams are found, the formations of huge stalactites, stalagmites, columns and stony curtains in the cavernous depths remind one of the artistic handiwork of ancient artisans on the Renaissance palaces.

Underground rivers are developed sometimes beneath extrusive volcanic rocks, the Snake River Basin in Idaho being a striking instance of this kind. Where the river has cut through the water-bearing lava beds, below Shoshone Falls, many beautiful springs produce a volume of more than 5,085 second-feet of ground water or an average of 3,280 million gallons a day. This is almost twice the consumption of water in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Boston and St. Louis during 1914.

POTATO-TOMATO PLANT.

Tomato Vine Grafted on a Potato Stock.

A "good graft" which anyone may try, and which will reward a little patience with a double crop, is described in a recent bulletin of the Missouri Botanical Garden. It consists of a tomato vine grafted on a potato stock, which yields tomato fruits above and potato tubers below. The graft is not difficult to make, it is stated, requiring no more skill than is needed for a similar operation on an apple tree. Apparently the first one on record was made over a century ago by an amateur scientist named De Tchahihcheff, who reported his experiments to the Horticultural Institute at Vronnesz in France.

Neither partner in this double plant body seems to have any influence on the other. The tomatoes are like those of sister plants grown on their own roots, and the potatoes differ in no way from those grown in the ordinary way from other eyes cut from the same parent tuber.

Young Salmon Tagged.

Putting tags on thousands of young salmon is the arduous enterprise of the Swedish fishery department in order to keep a check on the wanderings of the fish and increases in size and weight.

Anyone who captures a salmon marked in this fashion is requested to forward the tag to the Government fishery authorities, naming the place where the fish was found and other data of interest. For this the bureau pays the finder 50 oeuts. It is hoped in this manner to shed some light on the roamings of this species of fish.

Completely Run Down

Symptoms That the Blood is Thin Should Not be Neglected

Weak, run-down, lacking strength, energy and ambition, nervous, sleepless, poor appetite, digestion disturbed—these are the symptoms named by a great majority of people who have been benefitted by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These famous pills correct the condition described and if you have any of these symptoms you should give these pills a trial. Their great value in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. James A. Tibbetts, Halifax, N.S., who says :—"I was completely run down in health. My blood was thin and watery, and my nerves so bad that I did not sleep well at night. My appetite was poor and the least exertion left me weak and trembling. When I went out I would have a severe headache, and would have to lie down as soon as I got in the house. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I soon found they were helping me and by the time I had taken the sixth box I felt like a new woman, and have enjoyed good health ever since. For this reason I can highly recommend the pills to anyone run-down or troubled with their nerves."

Not only do Dr. Williams' Pink Pills help the nerves. Their main function is to enrich and increase the blood, and as the blood supplies the whole body, new life is given to the entire system. Better sleep, steady nerves, improved appetite, increased vigor—all these can you get by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Begin them to-day. Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail post paid, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PINE GROVE.

DISCOVERY OF RUBBER

PLAYS IMPORTANT PART IN THE WORLD TO-DAY.

For More Than Three Centuries Little Use Was Found for It Until Vulcanization Was Discovered by Charles Goodyear.

More than four centuries ago, when Columbus stood on the beach on an island of the West Indies, he saw the natives playing with a lively ball. The incident marks the first civilized notice of the gum of rubber.

But the voyager, beyond a little passing curiosity, took no interest in the native plaything, and little thought that it represented almost untold wealth for those who came after him to exploit it. The ball, he noticed, bounded better than the "wind balls of Castile," and in reply to the queries prompted by a mild curiosity, he learned that the ball was made from the dried juice of a tree. The then unregarded juice of the jungle tree is now one of the world's most jealously fought for possessions.

For more than three centuries the world found little or no use for rubber, "India rubber," as it has been called, from the place where it was first known to civilization.

To-day football, tennis, and golf, hospital equipment, electrical insulation, fire and rain protection, and countless other human interests and activities are dependent on rubber. Only in the last twenty years, since the automobile, has rubber been one of the major industrial, commercial, and chemical interests of the globe.

In this new romance England and America have played sharply distinct roles. England early saw in rubber a crop to be planted and cultivated. The United States, worrying no more about source and supply than if rubber had been heavenly manna, put its immense inventive genius to work on rubber manufactures. From this long-standing difference in national psychology has flashed the conflict to-day.

The history of rubber might be looked upon as a slowly developing drama in four acts. The first and longest—the three centuries of discovery and idleness — was really only a prelude. Then the only actors were a few fever-racked natives of the Brazilian jungle and an occasional inquiring experimenting white man.

With the lone American who, by inventing the process of vulcanization, made possible the infinite train of rubber manufactures, the second act may be said to have begun. Then Generations later, with the successful cultivation of rubber in the Far East, came the third, or British, act. The fourth or modern act, which covered in by a motor horn, is mainly the interaction of these two forces.

When a century had passed from the time the curtain rose on the drama of rubber—on the beach in Haiti, says a writer in the New York Times Magazine, the Portuguese had reached the Brazilian jungle and an organized rubber trees, from the juice of which the natives made waterproof shoes.

But it was not until the nineteenth century that a French botanist - explorer identified the Brazilian Hevea tree, and described the native way of using the gum to waterproof cloth. This he carried to the King of Portugal a full set of rubber shoes.

By 1770 a ball of the new material found its way to England, where Joseph Priestley, the discoverer of oxygen, named it rubber, because it would rub out pencil marks. Immediately it had a boom among the artists, and the price touched the highest mark ever recorded — three shillings for a cubic inch.

Early in 1800 Brazil was exporting rubber shoes and water-bottles, and the first factories for making waterproof cloth were started in England and America, including the famous one of Mackintosh, who gave his name to rain coats. But all these products were of little use except in the mildest of weather. In summer they would melt and run. In winter they stood out stiffly like crackly tents.

Charles Goodyear, a Yankee hardware merchant gone bankrupt, arrested for debt in Philadelphia, and compelled to live within the prison limits while struggling to keep out of jail himself, now enters the scene.

Prison did not lessen his interest in rubber, and there he worked. He mulled his first pound of rubber and began years of unsuccessful experiment. He heated his rubber over the kitchen fire, kneaded it and rolled it out with the family rolling pin. Entrusted with a sample of various chemicals he combined with it in the effort to find one that would keep it in stable equilibrium.

With aqua fortis he had seemingly produced a waterproof cloth that would not melt. He took his specimens to Washington, and showed them to President Jackson, who gave them a written endorsement.

But aqua fortis cured only the surface. For thicker rubber it was a failure. Selling everything he had to pay his debts, the inventor turned penniless, ill and poor, to his lonely experiments.

One day in 1839, he tossed a piece of rubber, combined with sulphur, into the kitchen stove. When later he looked at the charred remains he found to his delight that the rubber was easily, without breaking, and was no longer sticky. But would the rubber stand the cold? He nailed it through his door that winter night. Next morning it was still unchanged. He had discovered the process which he called vulcanization.

ANNOUNCING A REMARKABLE NEW BUILDING MATERIAL

INSUL-BOARD

(INSULATING BOARD)

A Board that shuts out cold. Stops heat. Deadens sound. An extraordinary building and insulating Board designed to make homes interiors more comfortable, more restful and more healthful the whole year through. An All-Canadian Board, made in Canada from the products of Canada's Forests.

INSUL-BOARD meets the need for a stouter and more rugged material for wall and ceiling insulation. Its greater structural strength has been proven under critical tests by Canada's leading engineers. It makes the walls more rigid, more enduring, more capable of resisting severe strain and stress.

INSUL-BOARD insulates completely, producing a sure and lasting shield against winter's cold and summer's heat, sealing the home interior tight against all atmospheric discomfort.

A HIDDEN COLONY.

Said to Have Been Isolated For a Century for Lack of Roads.

Details have reach Johannesburg of a strange colony of 500 Europeans in the Riversdale district which has been isolated for nearly a century owing to the total absence of roads.

The people have little or no communication with the outside world and mostly live on the produce of their gardens and game, while rye is burnt to serve for coffee. Whole families exist on an expenditure of 2d. a day and many are unable to read or write.

Automobiles and other inventions have never been heard of, and the people dwell in mud shacks. The people are quite contented, and the majority of them do not desire to mix with others. Strangers are unwelcome, regarded as doctors. Many of the people hide when the Minister of Agriculture visits the district and the latter reveal compulsory education. They have no newspapers, but the majority are ardent imperialists, holding views transmitted by their progenitors who were prosperous under the British flag.

Third-Class Sleepers.

Third-class "sleepers" may soon be in regular use on railways in Britain. An experimental coach has been made by the Great Western Railway with compartments similar to a two-bunk cabin on a steamer. The fittings include electric light at the foot and head of each bunk, which can be controlled by either passenger, electric fan, wash-bowl with hot and cold water, large ventilating window, big mirror, and carpet. There is plenty of space for passengers to wash, dress, and shave.

The coach is built on similar lines to the present first-class sleepers, except that it has two bunks instead of one. The charge for the use of a bunk has not yet been decided, but it will doubtless be considerably less than the 15s. or £1 charged for a first-class bed.

Airplanes for "Cowboys."

On the reindeer ranches of Alaska and Northern Canada, airplanes are being as swift mounts for the "cowboys" to ride the range.

A herdsman riding a "plane recently completed in two hours work that in the ordinary way would have kept seven herdsmen employed for a week.

JACK HORNER'S PLACE.

Direct Descendant of the Original Has Been Found.

It is said that a direct descendant of the original Jack Horner, who "put in his thumb and pulled out a plum," has been found, and is living in Tit-Bits.

He is Julian, grandson and heir of the late Earl of Oxford and Asquith, whose mother was formerly Miss Horner, of Mells Manor, Somerset. His father, Raymond Asquith, was killed in the war.

Legend has it that the famous Horner of the nursery rhyme was steward to the Bishop of Glastonbury in the reign of Henry VIII. The bishop, a lover of good fare, had a kitchen with a stone roof and hearth, so that it could not be forced down by "all the King's men."

To which the King replied, ominously: "Is that so?"

Fearing to lose his estate, the bishop sent his steward, Horner, to Henry with an enormous pie, but the seminary's curiosity was stirred during the journey by pried beneath the crust, and found the deeds of twelve manors belonging to the bishop. A prudent man, Horner returned only one deed, that of the Manor of Mells, now the Horner family seat. That was the plum. The King was satisfied, the bishop kept his kitchen, and Master Horner became accustomed to his new status.

And so, the story goes, the young man immortalized in children's rhyme, and is now associated with the birthplace of a late Prime Minister.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

In Summer When Childhood Ailments Are Most Dangerous

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel sure the lives of their little ones are safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to use promptly. Baby's Own Tablets never fail them, or if given occasionally to the well child they will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless even to the new-born babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, or they can be had by Medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A LAUGH AT HIS EXPENSE.

Mr. Graham Moffat Acts the Canadian Scot.

To the person of thrifty habits the spending of money becomes in course of time a matter of mental agony. Two Scotsmen came to London with a cheap excursion and had to spend a night in a hotel. Waking at two in the morning one of them found the other sitting on a chair by his bed.

"What are ye sittin' there for, Donald? Can ye no' get intae bed and gang tae sleep?"

"What's the use?" replied Donald. "They're chargin' five shillings for the bed, and I ken I'll never sleep for thinkin' o't."

This is one of the many amusing stories told by Mr. Graham Moffat in his book, "The Pawky Scot," says a writer in Tit-Bits. Mr. Moffat, he explains, is that earnest truthfulness of speech, together with a self-revealing candor, that never deserts the Scots even in the most serious crises of life. Here are some more of his stories:

When he was a boy, he and his brothers were allowed twopence each Saturday to buy themselves mutton pies. One Saturday night his father discovered him sitting in a corner of the parlor absorbed in gloomy meditation, his week-end coppers still in his hand.

"What's wrong?" he asked; "have ye'r pie bought your pie?"

"No!" was the tearful reply, "I've been round all the shops, and I can't make up my mind which has the big gest one."

Even the canny Scot is guilty at times of a lapse into extravagance. It must have been an Aberdeen child who entered a little confectioner's shop, threw down a halfpenny on the counter, and, with the energy begot of despair, sobbed out:

"A farthin'orthy o' sweetie sersh pins and a farthin' back. I've quarrelled wi' my mither, and I dinna care what I spend."

An Aberdeen bride received from the best man the present of an umbrella. As she did not care for the handle she decided to have the use of it changed for one of the same value, but more to her liking. Without consulting the giver she personally approached the well-known firm whose name was on the back.

The shopkeeper was all smiles. "With pleasure, madam," he said, unwrapping the parcel. But at sight of the umbrella his expression changed. "I am sorry, madam, but this was not bought in our shop." "It must have been!" protested the bride. "Why, your label is on it!"

"Yes, but that is only our tag for re-covering."

Envoys Must Be Watchful for Italian Genius Abroad.

Italian diplomats and consuls have been given an unusual mission by Foreign Minister Mussolini. They are henceforth keep their eyes open for evidences of Italian genius in the country to which they are assigned and report on these evidences to the Home Government. For example, if an Italian living in America has invented a device of unusual merit the embassy or consulate will send particulars concerning both the inventor and the invention to Rome for the edification of fellow Italians and the greater glory of the Italian race.

If an Italian in Australia produces a beautiful piece of sculpture like-wise both the state and the sculptor must be sent to Rome. If the Italian consul at some Oriental capital finds traces of the visit of Marco Polo or some other Italian explorer or mariner he must send particulars to the Italian capital.

"The luminous track of Italian genius is to be found in every land and in every age," declares Mussolini in his circular to Government representatives abroad. "It must not be lost to our race. Every vestige of Roman greatness, civilization and knowledge must be noted and catalogued." The findings of the envoys will be kept on permanent exhibition at Rome as a demonstration of the prowess of Italians abroad.

A Story of John Masefield.

There is an excellent story of a now-famous author in Mr. Theodore Stier's "With Pavlova Round the World."

Mr. Granville Barker was at a loss for some sea chanties while he wished to introduce into his production of Shaw's "Captain Brassbound's Conversion." He was getting quite irritate, when a boy came to his office—a boy with a wind-jammer who had made a hobby of composing seasongs and the music for them in his spare time. He knew now a note of music, but he whistled them to Mr. Barker, who, impressed, sent the boy, shabby lad to Mr. Shaw. When he got up to go, Mr. Stier asked him his name. "John Masefield," he said. A few months later the young man's first play, "The Campden Wonder," was produced at the Court Theatre, London.

For the Guidance of Youth.

"For the sake of cleanliness it is well to rub the face every morning with a white towel in order to remove the dirt. It is not advisable to wash with water, fo: this exposes the face to the chills of winter and the heats of summer," advises a French manual for the guidance of youth, first published in 1712, which ran through fifty editions in the course of the eighteenth century.

A similar work published in 1567, warns children that "to wash the face in water injures the eyesight, to brush on toothache and colds and engenders pallor."

FAREWELL TO THE SEA

There is a sadness in definite: leaving the sea, though at first the diversions of the shore are so many and so varied that they smother the regretning which comes inevitably later on. The sorrow, it seems on looking back, was there, when the gear on the trundled down the gangway of the last ship, and it has been there ever since. The multitude of the things of the land crowd and stifle it; but only temporarily so. The sea waits its time with its own eternal patience, then calls with an insistence none who have served it have failed to hear.

That this is so is not the least of the many puzzles the sea offers the landman. I do not think it puzzles the sailor; it is something he knows from the moment he is half-expectant of its coming. He can never know the way in which the sea will bid him return, but he cannot fail to recognize the voice or the manner of its speaking.

The call may be by sight, or by sound, or, with the sea's deepest cunning, by suggestion. Some sudden glimpse from a train, some picture of a fine ship flicks a quick responding chord of memory. Maybe a chance coming together with other men of the sea (the spark is always there waiting to be fanned) and the mind slips back, touching over old memories; a phrase, a turn of a word, and old, half-forgotten scenes become near as day-old happenings, only draped in the mellowness of old remembrance, and no sailor can involve his mind in reminiscence without the accompaniment of his heart.

Movies and the Sea.

Sometimes, during a movie film of ships and the sea the imitated whistle of lifted spray has all but brought me out of my seat; so sharp a reminder was instantly responsive and wakened the yearning. The sound of waves lap-lapping against the sides of a small boat has stirred memories of those sun-steeped hills footing the Andes and leaning back from the blue warmth of the South Pacific; or again of the chill white-flecked grey of the North Sea, cloud-crowded, dun, and cold.

I cannot be reasoned out that I should have any longing for the deck of a ship scooping her way through the sea—seas which have washed me about the deck until my body was bruised and broken and my clothes frozen to my unclean skin; and small boats in various places of the world have often tried to drown me. I cannot even plead youth's appetite for a thrill, for that, has long gone, though thrills there are still—modest and solemn thrills.

Fresh in my mind is the recent joy of having stood once more on the deck of a sailing-ship (a small foreign barque built since the war). Her squat, fat hull would in other days have provoked a deserved criticism, for she was no beauty, but about her she carried a strangely proud grace, like a direct descendant of an age of glory, and I would have defended the uncouth abruptness of her name against anyone. Drinking the delight of masts yards, and ropes which still to my happiness I could name; their names came with a hesitant slowness out of the wind's hockey, their uses came back to me, and then—my joy was complete—I thought that I who had monkeyed about aloft from hand to hand had no longer nerve to repeat it.

The Sadness of Farewell.

Then the sadness of final adieu to the sea took hold of me; that I should never again feel the heel and lift of the deck and see great masts and dark sails moving under the stars, or see again the far ports where the sailing-ships used to roll in the long tiers and brown lanterns sculled deep lighters, with the smell of the new bags and the little scatters of crystal nitrate in the bilges, and always the shingle giving back the boom of the unending surf—all this I should never know again. Nor should I hear, through the stifling silence of the tropic calm, the sizzle of the approaching Sumtum squall, or feel the instant chill of its downpour flooding the steaming decks — beating to the deepened sea.

No more should I know the joy of seeing, lifted out of the northern horizon, a homeward-bounder, the long-looked-for North Star, or see the welcome flash of Bishop's Rock looming against the Channel clouds, or see the water changing, watch by watch, from the sea-green—grey—brown, and then to creep mistily through the brown water to the river's mouth and journey's end.

Never again should I see under the glowing stars in the chill night above the desert the clean, parallel lines of the Suez stretching into dark infinity at the end of the flooding searchlight, or smell the heaviness of the damp morning air blowing off the Hugli, or come out some quiet evening to the light-girdled vastness of Sydney Harbour.

No smooth rickshaw would ever take me past those lovely Japanese gardens with all their bizarre blends of many-hued beauty in chrysanthemum-time; not again should I see the warning cloud blanket Table Mountain when the great swell strains every mooring rope. No more for me the broad roads and ancient pavements of Rio or the never-old amusement of "penny" diving by sunny children in tree-fringed bays of the West Indies.

Memory's Garden.

There is but one ship left to me that I may freely sail, swift and obedient, across the oceans of the world. In her I make my voyages to the old ports, old places, old scenes; trade-handed, when all is quiet, I light my pipe and sail my yacht, my Memories.

TREES WRITE HISTORY

MEMORIAL TREES PLANTED IN ONTARIO PARK.

James Edgeworth Is Doing His Best to Grow Trees From All Countries —Relics of Pioneer Days Are Also Found There.

Half a mile from the old Talbot road in Norfolk county, Ontario, and about twenty miles from Brantford there is a growing park of young trees writing down the history of the community, writes D. G. French, in the Toronto Star Weekly. The park originated with Mr. James Edgeworth about three years ago he rescued the old-time picnic ground of Teeterville from destruction by axe and plough and proceeded to turn it into a historic park. Not only did he save the existing trees, but he is planting out new ones, many of which are memorial trees marking events or honoring persons who have done public service.

The Edgeworth homestead lies across the road from the picnic ground—the latter being formed by a bend in "Big Creek" and providing the "old swimmin' hole" with its many fond memories of boyhood days. But Big Creek was no insignificant stream away back in those early times. Here was the Taylor log tabernacle, down which in the year 1861 rolled, some $15,000 worth of timber to the rafter to Port Royal. Another spot in the park is the site of One-fan-ous shooting match which took place in 1870, when nine men, all of Windham township, tied the score against and again with bull's-eyes and it seemed as though the tie would never be broken.

Seventy-two different varieties of trees, all found growing in Norfolk county, have been planted here among these are memorial trees for each of the pioneer clergymen of the neighborhood: Rev. J.B. Moore (who used to baptize converts in the old swimming hole), Rev. Wray Smith, Rev. W. H. Barraclough, Rev. Peter Wool. The pioneer teachers each has a tree; James McGill (the first school teacher in Teeterville, 1455), Wm. Tisdale and O. E. Tisdale. The members of Parliament since Confederation have each been remembered with a tree; Aquilla Walsh, John Charlton, Lieut.-Col. David Tisdale Alexander McCall (afterwards Senator), and Wm. Charlton.

The nine men who took part in the famous shooting match of 1870 are each remembered with a tree; also the members of Windham's famous baseball team, the Wranglers, who between 1870 and 1880 were the champions of ten counties, being beaten only twice. Each of the reeves of the township has a tree. Six boys from Windham who fell in the great war are deservingly remembered. Trees have been planted for twins born near the place. The memory of two young men blown up in a shingle mill in 1848 is also preserved.

"Trees for this historic park have been donated by a number of the "old boys," including Hon. J. P. Martin, Finlay Macdiarmid, M.P., Lieut.-Col. A. C. Pratt, S. L. Squire and many others. In addition to the memorial trees there are three trees born near the place. The memory of two young men blown up in a shingle mill in 1848 is also preserved.

"Trees for this historic park have been donated by a number of the "old boys," including Hon. J. P. Martin, Finlay Macdiarmid, M.P., Lieut.-Col. A. C. Pratt, S. L. Squire and many others. In addition to the memorial trees there are three trees from each of the following provinces: Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. It is Mr. Edgeworth's intention to plant trees from the other provinces. On an arch over the entrance to the park is a vine which was brought from Westminster Abbey by a nurse returning from overseas service. A branch of a willow from Napoleon's grave has also been planted.

The memorial trees are being marked by placing at the foot of each tree a rod bearing a zinc plate on which is inscribed the name of the person commemorated.

Besides the trees native to Canada many others from foreign countries have been set out — from Norway Sweden, France, Holland, Persia Turkestan, Japan, China — and all are flourishing.

A very fitting home for the storing and exhibition of historic relics has been made by moving to the park two old log houses—one known as the Maricle house, supposed to be the first log house built in the settlement.

Here will be found such interesting pioneer relics as a collection of old ox yokes, a spinning wheel 156 years old, old tin lanterns, Indian axe heads, arrow heads, etc. On the doors are wooden latches and iron hinges made by hand.

An old Indian corn mill, brought from Rockton (near Dundas), is also to be seen in the grounds. It is a large stone with two hollows in it in which the grain was ground into flour by hand. The grinding stones are kept with the relics in the house. A large mill stone from near Dundas, also half of the huge lower millstone of the Teeterville flour mill erected in 1835, are here. There is also a "plighting stone"—a huge round stone with a circular hole in it which was brought from Windmill Point, below Crystal Beach (near Niagara Falls). The couple pledged their troth and sealed their engagement by clasping hands through the centre of the stone. It is supposed that commercial or other agreements were also sealed in this way.

This unique park is sixteen acres in extent, with a stream of clear spring water running through it and some eight or ten springs within its borders. Along the banks of the stream have been planted two trees of cedar and pine that will in time form a handsome avenue. The ground is well wooded with older trees, and as the owner has very generously made this an open camp all summer for campers, tourists and picnic parties, these growing young trees will continue from year to year to write down history for an increasing number of readers.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Alex. Macdonald.

It is with a great deal of regret that we record the death of Mrs. Alzina Macdonald, widow of the late Alexander Macdonald, who passed away at her home on Parsons St., early on Monday morning, June 11th, after a short illness. Mrs. Macdonald's death followed closely upon that of her husband, who had been called home less than two weeks previously. Devotedly attached to each other they lived their quietly and contentedly, taking much pleasure in their well-kept grounds and garden and in the friendship of neighbours they found in the town of their adoption. Mrs. Macdonald was a warm-hearted, kindly woman, who always rejoiced in the happiness and success of others. She was devoted to her home and family and never happier than when she came to Orangeville with her husband, the worthy couple taking up their abode in a comfortable home on Parsons St., where they lived

ERNESTTOWN

Bridging is the order of the day in our community.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Raysmith and Mr. and Mrs. Joel Kellar spent Saturday in town.—The July meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held at Mrs. Norman Hamm's. Twenty-five members and visitors were present. The meeting opened with the usual hymn, followed by the Scripture lesson read by Mrs. Ella Thompson. The annual fall bazaar was brought up for discussion. Plans were made for material to be bought by the committees in charge. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Hamm, assisted by Mrs. Axel Thompson and Mrs. Herb Laidley. This brought a very pleasant afternoon to a close. Collection of $5.50 was realized, and 90c added to our burial fund.—Mrs. Irwin Sharpe then invited the Aid to her home for the August meeting.—Mr. and Mrs. Milton Thompson spent the week end in Belleville with Mr. and Mrs. T. Davidson.—Mrs. Davidson accompanied them home.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hamm, of Denver, Col., are holidaying with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hamm.—Mr. and Mrs. Bert Shibley, of Bath, Sundayed with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hudson.—Mrs. Oscar Amey is visiting at Mr. Malcolm Hogle's.—Mrs. Lovica Kellar left last week to spend the summer months with her cousins at Lake Simcoe.—Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spring spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Close, at Violet.—Mrs. Shaklin, of Indiana, and her father, Mr. F. Frest, called on Mrs. Fred Hamm, on Sunday.

NEW MERSEY TUNNEL

Will Not Only Stimulate Trade and Commerce, But Will Change City's Habits.

Beneath the salty grey waters of the Mersey river, at Liverpool, England, a small army of men are toiling. They are 150 feet below the river bed, and are constructing a street under the sea, two and a half miles long, which will cost when completed, says an article in the London Daily Mail, £25,000,000.

When completed it is estimated that 2,000,000 vehicles a year will pass under the mighty ships which majestically traverse the waters above.

The undersea street, which turns a century-old dream into reality, will have four lines of road vehicles, and they will move, it is thought, at speeds up to thirty miles an hour through a cream or white-colored tunnel lit with rows of powerful incandescent lamps carefully shaded to prevent glare.

The world will have nothing quite like it, nothing so large. That tunnel will be a connecting link—someone has called it a wedding ring—between new arterial roads that will ultimately run from the east coast of Yorkshire through the heart of industrial Yorkshire and Lancashire beneath the Mersey to join other roads to North Wales of the working regions of the Potteries and Birmingham. A £15,000,000 road through Lancashire is already planned.

But this tunnel will not only be a stimulus to trade and commerce—it will change a city's habits. A feature, sometimes jolly, sometimes infuriating, of Merseyside life is the journey by ferryboat of extraordinary assemblies of vehicles—stately limousines, queer little tourers, steam wagons, bread vans, horse lorries, cycles, fruit carts, and meat vans, all jumbled together in an atmosphere of badinage and raillery—amusing and pleasant on a fine day but exasperating when fog means hours of delay or the river teases in storm.

The task involved in altering that habit is enormous. A million tons of rock is being excavated, and 117,000 tons of iron and 75,000 tons of cement will be used in lining and road construction.

The present number employed is 400, but later it will be over 1,000. Stripped to the waist, men are using compressed air drills that batter the red sandstone rock 200 blows a minute. The explosions of gelignite, the din of the jackhammers, the hiss of compressed air, and the dull murmur of water draining at 2,600 gallons a minute throw a confused roar over a weird scene wherein sou'westers, oilskins, and gum boots are commonly used. Small rail wagons bear away the dug rock, intended partly for a new sea frontage and playground. Work is two months ahead of schedule, but though it was begun by Princess Mary in 1915 three years or more may elapse before its completion.

By that time what new wonders in communication will the world have seen! But this street under the sea will be worthy of them. It is a triumph for Liverpool's civic spirit, for a largeness of mind and imagination and a clarity of vision to anticipate the future and judge when expenditure may be sound economy. Liverpool, which built the first overhead railway, has been called by Sir Archibald Salvidge the city of tunnels. She has 15—among them the first railway tunnels for both goods and passenger traffic.

DUNKERT BEACON FOR SALE

Hill Overlooking Bristol Channel Made Famous in "Lorna Doone."

Unless steps are taken to acquire it for the nations, it seems likely that Dunkery Beacon, the highest point of Exmoor, immortalized in "Lorna Doone," will be lost to the public.

Sir Vivian Henderson, representing the First Commissioner of Works, announced in the House of Commons that there were no funds available for the purchase of the beacon by the state. The First Commissioner was prepared to schedule the beacon as a monument.

About 4,000 acres of Dunkery Hill, including the 1,709-foot beacon, are for sale.

Its praises are sung in the auctioneer's advertisement as "a favored haunt of the Exmoor red deer," and as providing "a horizon 500 miles in circuit and a panorama of fifteen counties."

On the summit are gigantic beacon hearths, where, according to Blackmore, beacon fires blazed to guide the marauding Doones on their homeward path. Climbers are rewarded on fine days by a view of the Bristol channel for 120 miles.

BATH

(For last week)

A great shock was received by his many friends when it became known that Oscar J. Amey, who resides at Millhaven, a couple of miles below the village, ad passed away at Kingston General Hospital, on Friday, July 6th, following an operation performed the day previous. The funeral was held on the Sunday following, from his late residence, the service being in charge of Maple Leaf Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of which deceased was a member. Rev. W. G. Swayne, Rector of St. John's Church, preached a very impressive sermon to the very large number of friends assembled. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Interment was made at the Union cemetery. To mourn his loss he leaves his widow and one son, also one brother, Elmore Amey, of Ernestown Station, to all of whom the sympathy of the community is extended.—A meeting of the Bath Branch of the Women's Institute was held at the Town Hall, on Monday evening, May 9th. The Town Council has granted the use of the hall for their meetings. — Miss Mary Kellar, Guelph, and Miss Edith Forester, of Alberta, are spending their vacation here.—Mr. John Forester and Miss Jean Smith have been moved from Kingston General Hospital to their respective homes.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Medley and son, of Napanee, spent Sunday at Geo. Davy's.—Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hall, nee Radia Rouse, a son, on Sunday, July 8th. —Miss Gladys Toplift, of Pickering, is renewing old acquaintances here.—Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lewis left yesterday for Watertown, N.Y.—Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sexsmith and son are motoring to London, Rochester, and other United States points.—Mr. Wilson, of Rochester, N.Y., paid a flying visit to Mr. Thos. Lewis, recently. — The picnic held in Pixley's grove, on Saturday, by St. John's Church, was thoroughly enjoyed, although the day was cloudy and threatening all day.—Miss Mary Davy has returned to Oshawa, after a two weeks' vacation at her home here. —Mr. and Mrs. Fred Calver motored to Oshawa to visit their son, Henry, and family.—Mrs. George Searle, of Windsor, Ont., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Wartman.

Women Approaching Middle Life

Find "Fruit-a-tives" of Great Benefit

MRS. O. GODIN.

Paquetville, N.B.—"I am giving this testimonial, hoping it may benefit every woman suffering as I did at the change of life. I was obliged to go to bed, had terrible dizziness and felt extremely weak. 'Fruit-a-tives' were really a God-send to me. Now I am in perfect health."
—Mrs. Onesime Godin.

This state of life takes heavy toll of woman's health unless stomach, kidneys and bowels are in first-class condition. "Fruit-a-tives", in a natural, gentle way, keeps the whole system toned up to withstand this trying experience. Made from the intensified juices of ripe, fresh fruit and health-building tonics. 25c and 50c a box at all druggists.

Here is a treat that can't be beat! Benefit and pleasure in generous measure!

MAGNIFICENT BUILDING

CANADA'S FIRST NEWSPAPER SKYSCRAPER.

Impressive Modern Publishing Plant of the Toronto Star Is Largest In Country—Presses Will Print 180,000 Papers Per Hour.

A new era in newspaper publishing in Canada is marked by the magnificent new plant and premises of the Toronto Star, now rising against the Queen's City's downtown sky line.

Three years ago there was no newspaper building in the Dominion even remotely comparable with the palatial homes of a dozen metropolitan dailies in the United States. Then, in rapid succession, the Montreal Gazette, Vancouver Province, Winnipeg Free Press, and other Canadian papers blazoned forth into fine new quarters, says the Canadian Printer and Publisher.

And now the Toronto Star is added to the list with a building which in beauty and impressiveness and in the completeness and modernness of its equipment will hold its own with anything in the world. Overshadowing the business and financial section, with a frontage of 170 feet on the city's main east and west thoroughfare, King street, the Star building extends 188 feet northward, or the depth of a whole city block; it rises 22 stories to a height of 321 feet from foundation, and contains almost twice as much floor space as Toronto's next largest office building. A lane 12 feet wide extends along one side of the building and a 105 foot frontage adjoining the west end of the building remains unoccupied for future use.

The first six floors cover the ground floor area, and has a substructure of reinforced concrete. Above this lower part rises a tower of graceful and imposing outlines, 96 feet wide and 62 feet deep, supported by structural steel. The exterior of the building is lined throughout with polished marble, with entrance and elevator doors in bronze.

Perhaps the most fascinating feature will be the tremendous battery of presses, visible from a gallery that looks down on the great press room, 168 by 80 feet. Presses will be the heaviest and fastest yet designed. Their 28 units will print 180,000 fifty-six page papers in one hour with an ultimate capacity of 250,000 per hour.

The first five floors of the building's base will be devoted to the use of the Star, except for stores on the street level. The sixth floor will be rented as will most of the tower. The 22nd floor of the tower will house the elevator machinery, and the 21st floor will be the new home of the Star's radio station studios with ceiling 14 feet high.

Straight line production will prevail throughout the new plant. The business and advertising offices of the Star will be located on the fifth floor. The main business office will have an area of 168 by 89 feet. On the fourth floor will be the editorial department, the composing room and engraving department. To the average newspaper reader the editorial or news department, in a sense the nerve centre and life-giving spirit of the enterprise, is one of the most interesting mysteries of the whole business. Here is found the desks, and working quarters of the staff of reporters. The local news gathering staff of the Star will be extremely busy, and with the big battalion of writers is busy bringing or 'phoning in its daily gleanings here works ceaselessly alongside them the automatic telegraph printers and Morse wire operators carrying the news of the wide world into the offices by the speediest method. Nearly one hundred thousand words of world news will be thus telegraphed into the newspaper from the four corners of the globe in an average day. Both this and the local news gathered by staff reporters is immediately turned over to the group of subeditors on the big semi-circular copy desk, presided over by the chief news editor, to be read, revised and headed up, ready for the linotype machines in the composing room. And grouped closely about are the artists and engraving staff and photocraph studio where pictures or maps to illustrate the news are converted into cuts.

The press room, above described, also contains the stereotyping equipment. Matrices will come down from the composing room on the fourth floor by automatic chutes. Automatic carriers will deliver the completed papers from the presses to the mailing room at the rear of the second floor. The delivery trucks will park inside the building on the ground floor, directly beneath the mailing room. Here a platform 140 feet long will accommodate 16 trucks at one time. Fourteen chutes from the mailing room will keep a continual flow of papers pouring out on the platform at edition time.

Lombardy's Crown.

Among the treasures of the King of Italy is a historical relic of almost unparalelled interest. This is the famous iron crown of Lombardy, one of the most precious heir-looms of the Italian royal house. The crown is made partlaily of iron. Tradition declares that it was made from one of the nails used at the Crucifixion. This was beaten out into a band of iron, which was set in gold and adorned with jewels. Pope Gregory bestowed it upon Queen Theodelinda, under whom the Lombards first chanced their Arian faith for the Catholic. Charlemagne was crowned with it, and so were Henry of Luxemburg and succeeding emperors. It was also used at the coronation of Napoleon I. The Emperor of Austria restored it to the King of Italy in 1866.

The Bishop Who Lost His Ticket.

This story was told at the annual meeting of the Sir John Kirk Mission, Camberwell, England, by Sir Charles J. O. Sanders.

A certain bishop was travelling in a London tramcar, and was asked by an inspector for his ticket. He fumbled in every pocket, but failed to find it. "Never mind, my lord," said the inspector; "I know you. It does not matter."

"But it is not all right," said the bishop, "for if I can't find my ticket I don't know where I'm going."

ANCIENT OPIS.

History of This City Is Told on Bricks.

Remains of six successive civilizations of antiquity, dating from before 3,000 B.C., have been found on the site of the ancient city of Opis, in Iraq on the Tigris river, during the excavations just ended, by Prof. Le Roy Waterman of the University of Michigan for the university and the Toledo Museum of Art.

Discovery of inscribed bricks, fixing the city beyond a doubt as Opis, the strategic point in the conquest of Babylon, was made by Prof. Waterman shortly before the end of excavation, April 1. British army air planes first located the site.

Roman, Greek, Assyrian, Babylonian, Chaldean, and possible Sumerian relics have been unearthed, indicating that a succession of highly developed civilizations made this knoll on the Tigris their homes from 3,000 B.C. to late Roman times. Government officials of Iraq, a British protectorate, are now passing on the more than 1,100 relics brought to light, to decide which shall be permitted to leave the country.

The inscribed bricks, the most important find, were the chief objects of search throughout the excavation, which was carried on from January to April 1. One was finally found in a pavement, inscribed in cuneiform characters with a list of dynastic kings. The other, recovered from a wall, gave a list of the Kings of Akshak, the ancient name of Opis.

Earlier in the excavating the platforms of a temple was unearthed which antedated Greek times. Its stones were fastened together by a type of mortar not used by the Greeks or Romans. A cemetery, a fragment of city wall, some pavement and several wells, in one of which were found seven water jars, also came to light. In the fifth level bits of sculpture appeared, both human and animal forms, a figure of Venus and Adonis, part of a Doric column, bronze coins, terra cotta figures, glass vessels and stone implements.

Most of the relics were in an advanced state of decay. But one little sea urchin ornament, of mother of pearl, had retained its lustre and proved that arts and crafts were well developed in the city during part of its history.

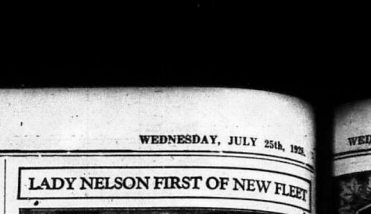
Burial jars, which came to a point at the bottom, were discovered, and may prove of religious significance. Excavations were halted April 1 because of weather conditions. They will probably not be resumed at this site. Prof. Waterman believes all relics of value have been recovered. Classification of these finds and deciphering of the inscriptions has only begun. Inscribed pottery and tablets have been found. Greek characters and cuneiform photographs are both represented.

Four Years Without Casualties.

Since the inauguration of its service four years ago, the planes of the Swedish Aerotransport Company, Sweden's national flying concern, have covered nearly 1,000,000 kilometers, without causing any injuries to passengers or damage to freight. Of the 28,127 persons who have used the machines of the aerotransport since 1924, 14,695 were carried last year, or almost 4,000 more than in 1926. The amount of freight transported in 1927 was 83,035 kilograms, while 6,993 kilograms of mail were carried.

The Aerotransport Company maintains extensive flying routes within Sweden, as well as to Berlin, Hamburg, Helsingfors, Copenhagen and Amsterdam, with connections for Paris and London. Additional routes have been established through the co-operation with the German Luftahana concern to Vienna, Warsaw and Zurich.

LADY NELSON FIRST OF NEW FLEET



Five well-designed, well-conditioned steamers are under construction for the Canadian National Steamships for services between Canada's Atlantic ports, the West Indies and British Guiana, and Bermuda, the Bahamas and Jamaica. The first of these vessels will be known as the "Lady Nelson" and will be ready to inaugurate the service at the end of this year. These steamers will engage in the passenger, cargo and mail service, offering superior accommodation for tourists and travellers and ample provision for the carriage of general freight and refrigerator goods.

The steamers will be 438 feet over all, 59 feet 3 inches extreme breadth, maximum draught 24 feet, gross tonnage 7650 tons and a service speed of 14 knots. They will be operated by the Canadian National Steamships in connection with the trade agreement made by the Canadian Government and the Governments of the Islands. The hulls will be painted white, with red boot topping, and the funnel three bands of red, white and blue.

"Put something besides Air in your tires"

COMMON-SENSE wants to be pumped into them too. Because they're filled in no guarantee that tires are fit for the road. They must be properly filled to the correct pressure for their size and load. Under-pressure, is uncomfortable — under it, is expensive.

If you want good mileage, come in here once a week! Let our tire man test the pressure — gauge it, not guess it. Let him examine the casing for flints, metal splinters and nail ends. Better ten minutes wait at the Dominion Tire Depot than half an hour's work on the roadside.

I loved a lass, a fair-haired lass,
No other lass beside
Could e'er compare with hair so fair—
Alas ! that lass, she dyed !

When Eve passed 'round the luscious fruit
Then clothing came in style
We'll have to pass the fruit and
Methinks, in a short while

WISE AND OTHERWISE

A minister, calling one morning at the office of a solicitor with whom he was acquainted, was greeted thus.

"Good morning, Vicar. You see," pointing to two men seated in the office, "I already have two of your flock here. I hope they are not black sheep."

To this the minister replied : "It's not for me to speak of their color, but I am thinking that if they remain here long they are likely to be fleeced."

A Prime Dressing for Wounds. — In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterising wounds and cuts sustained by the workmen. Far better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not scar the skin or burn the flesh.

It was the monthly meeting of the Council of Little Puddleton. There was an important item on the agenda, and all the members of the Council were present.

"Yes, gentlemen," announced the chairman, "hitherto we have sent our lunatics to the county asylum at considerable cost. Now, I am pleased to say, we are building an asylum for ourselves."

Muscular Rheumatism Subdued. — one is a sufferer from muscular rheumatism he cannot do better than to have the friction rubbed with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Let the rubbing be brisk and continue until ease is secured. There is more virtue in a bottle of it than can be fully estimated.

If you're waking, call me early, call me early and by name.
Call me clearly and distinctly, like an umpire at the game.
I'll add, to be emphatic, that whatever else you do,
Be sure to call me loudly, like a circus ballyhoo.
Keep calling till you wake me; do it faithfully and well.
For to-morrow my holidays begin, and I want to have the supreme satisfaction of being called at the usual hour, and then to turn over and go to sleep again as long as I darn well please!

Dread of Asthma makes countless thousands miserable. Night after night the attacks return and even when brief respite is given, the mind is still in torment from continuous anticipation. Dr. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy changes all this. Relief comes, and at once, while future attacks are warded off, leaving the afflicted one in a state of peace and happiness he once believed he could never enjoy. Inexpensive and sold almost everywhere.

Court missionary at Acton of a troubled husband: I advised him on the matter before, but he is as weak as water.

Magistrate—We are all as weak as water where women are concerned.

One of the most effective vermifuges on the market is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only clear the stomach and bowels of worms, but will prove a very acceptable medicine for children in regulating the infantile system and maintaining it in a healthy condition. There is nothing in their composition that will injure the most delicate stomach when directions are followed, and they can be given to children in the full assurance that they will utterly destroy all worms.

Protect the child from the ravages of worms by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. It is a standard remedy, and years of use have enhanced its reputation.

"My boy," said a police sergeant pompously to a friend of his, "you can't say I am lazy. Look at those stripes. I didn't get these by loafing about the street and outside public-houses."

"No," the other answered with a smile. "I know you didn't get them in that way, or you'd be a zebra by now."

HOW EAGLE WAS CHOSEN

Robert Morris Was First to Introduce Subject of National Mint to the United States.

American currency owes its origin to Robert Morris, born in England, and who came to America when he was but fifteen years old. He was the first to introduce the subject of a National Mint to the United States. Morris was the financier of the American Revolution. He reported to Congress a plan for the establishment of American coinage, and, chiefly through his efforts, seconded by those of Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, a mint was started, says the Bystander in the Toronto Globe. An act establishing it was passed by both Houses of Congress and received President Washington's approval on April 2, 1792. During the Confederation, each State had the right to coin money, but only according to the standard of fineness, weight and value required by the central Government.

For the mint, a plot of ground situated on Seventh street, near Arch street, in Philadelphia, and on which an old stillhouse stood, was purchased. There a plain brick building was erected, the corner-stone of which was laid by David Rittenhouse, Director of the Mint, July 31, 1792. It was occupied for forty years. The operation of coining currency began in October, when silver half-dimes were first minted.

The first metal purchased for coinage was six pounds of old copper, which was coined and delivered to the Treasury in 1793. The first deposit of silver bullion was made by the Bank of Maryland on July 18, 1794. This consisted of coins of France amounting to the value of $89,715. The first return of silver coins to the Treasury was made Oct. 15, 1794, and the first deposit of gold bullion for coinage was delivered in gold ingots by Moses Brown, a merchant of Boston, Mass., Feb. 12, 1795. On July 31 of that year, the first return of gold coinage was made, and consisted of 744 half-eagles. The first delivery of eagles, which consisted of 400 pieces, was made on Sept. 22, 1795.

Before the emblems on the silver dollars were determined, an acrimonious dispute occurred in the House of Representatives over the choice of the eagle as the national emblem, because it was designated as the King of Birds by naturalists, and therefore not a suitable symbol for a nation established as a free and independent republic. The opposition was twitted by Judge Thatcher, who suggested that perhaps a goose might suit the gentlemen better, for it was a rather humble and a republican bird. It might be serviceable in other respects also, as goosing might be stamped upon the dimes. Immediately there was a tumult, for this humorous rejoinder was taken as veiling an insult, and a challenge to a duel followed. Judge Thatcher promptly declined it.

"What," said the bearer, "will you be branded as a coward?" "Certainly, if the honorable member pleases to," replied Thatcher. "I always was one, and he knew it, or he never would have risked sending the challenge."

The regulations of the mint were strict. No spirituous liquors made to be brought there. Profane language was forbidden. Smoking was forbidden. The coining presses must be locked every night after work was done, and the keys placed in the custody of the Chief Coiner. When artificial light was necessary, the watchman must carry a dark lantern, for a naked light, as from an open candle, was forbidden. The watchman was empowered to have by him a musket and a bayonet, two pistols and a sword, kept in perfect order, but to be inspected once a month by an officer whose duty it was to see that the arms were discharged and then reloaded.

Up to the year 1836 the work of the Mint was done entirely by hand, then steam was introduced, to be replaced, within our own time, by electricity. The United States Mint now contains a rich collection of ancient coins, as well as a number of merchants' tokens once in circulation. There are some private gold coins that were struck in Georgia and North Carolina, and also in the west following the discovery of gold in California and Colorado. The first of these privately issued gold pieces were struck by Templeton Reid, an assayer, who in 1830 established himself near the gold mines in Lumpkin County, Georgia, and converted the gold from the mines into coin form.

For Producing Seed.

All trees when mature bear flowers primarily for the purpose of producing seed. To accomplish this end there are two essential organs, the pistil and the stamen, says Nature Magazine, of Washington. The pistil includes the pollen, a fine dust, commonly yellow, in contact with the stigmatic surface of the pistil this fertilizes the flower, or, is the gardener's language, sets the seed.

These two parts, the essentials of a perfect flower, we usually find in each blossom in the garden, but trees, especially those in the woods, more often have a separate flower for each, a pollen-bearing flower and a seed-producing one.

Crocodile's Dinner-Call.

In Njango, a village on the shores of Lake Victoria, Uganda, an African by the use of a peculiar call can summon an 11-foot crocodile from the depths of the lake and make it eat fish from his hand! On Saturdays and Sundays, when hundreds of natives arrive at the little village from the surrounding territory, the African exercises his peculiar power, making the crocodile eat scores of fish supplied by the admiring crowd, who buy them from him at sixpence a time.

This sale of fish is making the native a rich man, and so strange is the sight that motor-buses are now making special runs to Njanga.

"He is my most unprofitable tenant; he pays the rent in terms of abuse."

If one be troubled with corns, he will find in Holloway's Corn Remover an application that will entirely relieve suffering.

The Trull Picnic at Oshawa.

The Trull picnic at Oshawa-on-the-Lake, on Saturday, July 14th, was attended by almost one hundred, despite a most unpromising day. Given fine weather for the first Saturday after the 12th of July, 1929, we would dare to predict a record crowd at that popular picnic ground. While the children participated in the races their elders enjoyed looking on, and those who carried off first prizes were Acy Horn, Lloyd Stainton, Dorothy Stephenson, Joyce Edgar, Bessie Cameron and Mrs. Sam Brooks. Old and young seemed to display equal prowess at the well-laden table, and we have promised ourselves more music from the Orchestra next year. Those who had passed their exams. successfully, and those who had taken honors were given a lusty cheer. Old Sol who had been very tardy on smiling on the enterprise, was most generous before the day was over, and the happy gathering seemed loath to break up.

BENEFIT BRIDGE FOR V. O. N.

On Friday afternoon the spacious verandas of the Golf and Country Club were well filled with the gay assembly who gathered to play Bridge, and incidentally to assist the financial committee of the V. O. N. After the game, instead of the usual cup of tea, the guests were given a musical treat, when Miss Mary Daly sang three exquisite numbers, in her beautiful mezzo-soprano voice. Miss Daly, always a favorite, was given an enthusiastic reception, and in her generous way replied to an insistant encore. She was accompanied by Prof. Kendall, Organist of Trinity Church, who also played several very fine piano solos.

BAD CHEQUES TENDERED IN NAPANEE

Harold Handbury, of Sudbury, Marie Handbury, (a woman claiming to be the wife of the above man), Jack Hayward, of Toronto, and Arthur Le Mesclestone, also of Toronto, were arrested in Napanee on Saturday afternoon, by Chief of Police Barrett.

The charge against Handbury is that of passing bogus cheques and nominal charges of vagrancy against the other three.

Handbury it seems went into the general store of Mr. John Wilson, opposite the Royal Hotel, and after purchasing $45.00 worth of clothing, etc., tendered a cheque on the Standard Bank of Sudbury. A similar transaction took place at Mayhew's grocery store. Suspicions were aroused and Chief of Police Barrett was sent for, and on learning that Handbury had no funds, and never had any in the Standard Bank at Sudbury, the man was promptly placed under arrest as was also the woman claiming to be his wife. The two other men were trailed to Deseville by the Chief and were also taken into custody. It was also learned that there have been similar charges against Handbury in Sudbury.

From what can be learned, they operate very similarly to a gang which operated in Oakville some days ago, and Chief of Police Kerr, of Oakville, is expected in Napanee to identify the accused, if possible.

Handbury claims to be a prospector from New Ontario.

The four were placed in the local jail, and will come up before the magistrate this week.

—The home of Mrs. H. Freeman, Yarker, was thrown open to the Yarker-Colebrook Women's Institute on the afternoon of July 18th, to about twenty ladies attending. The meeting opened by singing the Ode, followed by the Institute creed. The Secretary report was then read and approved. The roll call was answered by useful hints for Saturday and Monday. The meeting was then adjourned as Miss Hawley, of Napanee, gave a demonstration on making flowers and baskets, which was very interesting. A very dainty lunch was then served by the hostess and committee.

Rod and Gun and Canadian Silver Fox News

The August issue of Rod and Gun and Canadian Silver Fox News, which is just published, contains a highly interesting collection of yarns and stories of outdoor Canada and hunting and fishing. In the list there is a very good story of a more unusual humorous type in "So This is Moose Hunting" by John Richmond. The contents also include several articles of a conservational note, as well as useful information for hunters, fishermen and campers.

The Guns and Ammunition department, edited by C. S. Landis, includes much useful material for the gun crank, while anglers, outdoorsmen, campers and gunners as well are catered to in the special departments edited by well known authorities. The Canadian Silver Fox News section contains a very complete report of the annual meeting of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association.

Rod and Gun and Canadian Silver Fox News is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

Once more George Sydney and Charles Murray, popular First National comedians, will bring hilarity to the screen in "Flying Romeos", their latest production.

Also a 2-reel comedy.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

"Red Hair" is a romantic-comedy with plenty of action and many good scenes. It is the story of a "gold digging" manicurist with Clara Bow at the head of the cast.

Also a good comedy.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

"Wickedness Preferred", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer new farce, with Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle in the starring roles.

Also special comedy.

Change of Business

Mr. E. C. Hogarth announces that he has taken over the business formerly known as Neely's, and invites the people of Napanee and vicinity to make this store their shopping headquarters, and assures them of the welcome and courtesy that they formerly received.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Oscar Amey.

It is with deep regret that we record the death of Oscar Amey, a life-long resident of Ernestown Township. Mr. Amey was born at Ernestown Station over sixty-five years ago, where he spent his boyhood days.

In early manhood he took a College course, and became a graduated Veterinary Surgeon. He followed his profession for a short time, but his natural love for the quiet life led him to prefer his farm in Millhaven, where he lived until his death.

Although he had been ailing for nearly a year, his friends felt no alarm for his nature was of that heroic mould that suffered in silence, and faced the inevitable with a cheerful smile. An operation became necessary and he was taken to the Kingston General Hospital on July 3rd. The operation took place on the 5th; from that he rallied and recognized his dear ones. In a few hours he lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he never awoke, and passed away at noon, July 6th. The funeral took place from the family residence in Millhaven, on July 8th. It was the largest ever held in this community, which showed the esteem in which he was held.

The funeral arrangements were entirely in the hands of the Masonic Fraternity, of which he was an honored member. The floral offerings were many and beautiful.

The sympathy of the community goes out to his wife and son in their incomparable loss. As Shakespeare tells us: "We are such stuff as dreams are made of, and our little life is rounded in a sleep"; but the beautiful teachings of the Christian religion tell us that the sleep of death is not eternal; that there is hope even beyond the dark portals of the grave.

Quiet, studious, generous and unassuming it has been said of him by many. "He had not an enemy in the world". A finer tribute cannot be given any man.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and son, Gerald, and his brother, Elmore, of Ernestown Station.

Mr. B. F. Detlor.

The funeral of the late B. F. Detlor, of Arden, was held on Tuesday, the 10th, at the home of the deceased, and was conducted by Rev. R. W. Paton, Pastor of the United Church.

The deceased passed away very suddenly, on Sunday evening, July 8th. After returning from the evening service he went to the Heath summer cottage for a little while, and had started out to go home, but just as he got to the car, he was taken very suddenly and passed away. His son-in-law, T. J. Alexander and Mr. Gordon Carl, of Toronto, were with him at the time, but could not revive him. His sudden passing was a great shock to the whole community, as he was out and to be in perfect health. Dr. Sudaby, of Sharbot Lake, Coroner, was called and said an inquest was unnecessary.

He leaves to mourn, besides his wife, one son, Percy, of Fort McMurray, Alberta, and four daughters, Mrs. Nellie Monds, Bow Island, Alta.; Mrs. Geo. Scott, Winnifred, Alta.; Mrs. Frank Ross, Lethbridge, Alta., and Mrs. Lillian Haynes, of Banff, Alta.; also one step-son, D. E. Weese, Oshawa; and two step-daughters, Mrs. T. J. Alexander, Arden, and Mrs. S. E. Winter, Napanee; as well as a sister, Mrs. Henry Hannah, Arden, and two brothers, William, of Marietta, Ohio, and Darius, of Tamworth. They have the sympathy of the whole community in their very sad bereavement. Mrs. Detlor was almost prostrated with grief at her husband's sudden death, but is at the time of writing slowly improving.

The deceased had lived here for a number of years, and at one time he served as Reeve of the township. He always took a great interest in the town, and he will be missed by a host of friends.

The flowers from the family, relatives and friends were lovely, and profuse, including a wreath from Mrs. Detlor; wreath from sons and daughters in Alberta; wreath from Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Winter; wreath from Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Weese and the Kirke family; spray from the grandchildren, Kenneth, Dorothy and Sammie Alexander; wreath from the family of Mr. Samuel Alexander; spray from the Heath family; cross from Mr. and Mrs. Will Wormworth; spray from Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Barker.

The funeral was largely attended. The pall bearers were Geo. Hughes, L. D. Parks, C. M. Greene, C. M. Kinsella, Ranson Clarke, and T. L. Wormworth.

Frederick William John.

In the death of Frederick William John, Denbigh has lost one of its oldest and most respected citizens. Mr. John had been in failing health for some time, and finally decided to go to the General Hospital, Kingston. He accompanied Mr. Phil Plotz, who took Mrs. Plotz to the hospital. They left Friday morning, July 13th, and were as far as Mr. Joseph Youman's, near Tweed, where they remained all night. During the night Mr. John was seized with a severe spell and a Tweed Doctor was called. After a few hours the party was able to continue to Kingston, where he and Mrs. Plotz entered the hospital. In spite of all that could be done for him he passed away at 3 a.m. the following Friday morning, July 20th, 1928. The remains were brought home and burial took place in the United Church cemetery Monday, July 23rd. After a short service at the home the remains were taken to the United Church, where Rev. P. A. Scott, Ph.B., preached a very able sermon to a very large congregation.

Mr. John was born in Germany and when six years old came with his parents to Canada, who took up a homestead three-quarters of a mile from where the Village of Denbigh is now located. Mr. John subsequently married Miss Mary Ann Hunt, soon after settling on a homestead about two miles from his father's home. There he continued to reside until about fourteen years ago, when he sold his farm to his son, Wm., and purchased a home in the village. He, with Mrs. John, have lived a retired life since coming to Denbigh. They were both highly respected and prosperous, leaving a splendid estate to his wife and large family.

Mr. John was a most faithful attendant of the United Church, seldom ever missing a service. He possessed a cheerful disposition, was a good neighbour, and highly esteemed by all. He celebrated their golden wedding about two years ago, and had he lived until the 22nd of November he would have been seventy-eight years old. The entire family, with the exception of Rev. Verona, who failed to receive the message, were home to the funeral.

Mrs. Alice Victoria Milligan.

The sad event occurred recently at her home in Newburgh, of Mrs. Alice Victoria Milligan, after two days' illness. Deceased was in her seventy-fifth year, and had a host of friends who regret the death of one who was held in the highest esteem for her never-failing kindness. Besides her husband, she leaves three daughters and three sons, Mrs. George Pew, Kingston; Mrs. John Bannon, Martinsberg, N.Y., and Miss Allen, at home; Morley, of Strathcona; Gordon, at home, and Gilbert, of Kingston.

The funeral was one of the largest held in Newburgh for some time. The floral tributes were beautiful, including a pillow from the family; wreaths and sprays from the Ladies' Aid, Women's Missionary Society, and Women's Adult Class, Young Men's and Young Ladies' Class; Mr. and Mrs. James Chard, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. James Shane and Mr. Vandervoort and family.

FIFTY-FOURTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A very delightful family picnic of about forty in number was held on Tuesday afternoon, July 24th, at the old homestead, near Hay Bay, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pitchett, in honor of their fifty-fourth wedding day. The weather could not have been more perfect, and everyone was happy to be once more all home together, in the shade of the old apple trees. The bride received a large number of beautiful flowers from friends and neighbors, along with many hearty congratulations, for which both bride and groom expressed their thanks in their usual pleasant manner. After a few hours of social visiting the boys were busy erecting tables and seats for all in the orchard under the large trees, where the family played in childhood, which indeed brought back many happy recollections. The tables were laden with many appetizing good things. Centered where father and mother were seated was the large fancy wedding cake, suitably decorated for the occasion, surrounded by the bride's beautiful flowers, which graced the table. A dainty lunch was served, after which bride and groom many times wished for a happy wedded life, hoping it will be God's will to spare them for many more family picnics.

NEWBURGH

The sympathy of the villagers is extended to Mrs. Roy Wartman, Newburgh, and to Mrs. H. Ballard, Napanee, in the loss they have sustained in the death of their mother, the late Mrs. Mary Gillis Madden, who passed away on July 24th. The funeral was conducted at her home by the Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, after which the remains were laid to rest in the family plot of the Newburgh cemetery.

Dr. and Mrs. Huxtable spent a few days on a motor trip to New York state.

Miss Mary Moore visited friends at Wesley during last week.

Mrs. Detlor visited friends in Petersboro' for a few days.

Miss Annie Sager, of Deseronto, is a guest at the Frost home.

Miss Annie May Yates is visiting friends at Point Anne.

Mrs. J. Lysle, of Pittsburgh, Penn., is a visitor at Mr. J. Alcombrack's.

Mrs. A. Vanluven is visiting her son at Aurora, Ont.

Mrs. Colin Martin and children are visiting at Bancroft.

Mrs. Wesley and daughter, Hamilton, who has been quite ill at the home of his mother, Mrs. C. Wager, is slowly improving.

Miss A. Briscoe spent a few recent days in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Moore are the guests of Mrs. Jennie Moore.

Mrs. Geo. Wartman visited friends at Gananoque for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Orson Benn and children, of Sillsville, Sundayed at Newburgh.

Mrs. Charles Detlor, of Oshawa, was a motor visitor on Sunday.

Mr. S. Hughes and Mrs. W. Wright and family, of Odessa, spent Wednesday with Mrs. E. Boyce.

Mrs. E. Boyce has returned from a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Joyce and Mrs. Will Wright and other old friends at Odessa.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Farley, of Kingston, were in the village on Friday evening. Their daughters, June and Vivian, returned with them to Kingston, after spending a few weeks with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Farley.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker and Mr. Mac Miles spent a few days at Catchocona Lake, motoring by way of Peterboro'.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wartman, of Bell Rock, visited in Newburgh during the week.

Mrs. S. Vandewater is spending a couple of weeks at Sydenham, with friends.

Mrs. Walter Clancy, of Oshawa, is visiting with her mother, Mrs. W. S. Baker, at the latter's home, in Newburgh.

Rev. H. W. Foley and family, of Selby, Miss Melallick, Port Hope, and Rev. Mr. Bunt, of Enterprise, were recent callers at the manse.

Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Allen and Miss Dora spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. F. Weese.

The teacher was examining the class to see how much they remembered of a natural history lesson given the day before, and told the children each to give her the name of an animal. Up went a hand.

"Well, which animal do you remember?"

"The 'warmer'," was the reply.

"Nonsense. There's no such animal. Sit down!"

Up went another hand.

"Please, miss, I know what 'e means, 'e means the 'otter'."

CANADA'S MINING INDUSTRY

General Statistics of Mineral Industry Reflect Prosperity—$17,850,000 More Capital Employed.

An increase of $17,850,000 in the capital employed in Canada's mineral industry in 1927 over the total for 1926 is shown in the preliminary report on the industry prepared in the Mining, Metallurgical and Chemical Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. There were 10,256 metal mines, metallurgical works, coal mines, oil and gas wells, other non-metallic mines and quarries, cement plants, lime kilns, brick and tile plants, and sand and gravel pits in operation during the year. Capital employed, as represented by cost of properties, plant and liquid assets, amounted to $706,602,942; employes numbered 82,530; salaries and wages totalled $103,432,019; and the net value of sales from these various mining and metallurgical industries was $248,285,031, or 4.6 per cent. more than in 1926.

In the metal mining industry capital employed in 1,553 plants totalled $332,820,935. Metal mining and non-ferrous metallurgical industries gave work to an average of 25,385 people throughout the year, and provided $40,490,790 in salaries and wages. Shipments of bullion, ores, concentrates and residues from Canadian mines in 1927 were valued at $75,204,350 after deducting freight and treatment charges. Sales from non-ferrous metallurgical plants in Canada, less the estimated cost of ores treated, realized $45,579,578.

Employing on the average 31,754 people and paying $41,147,075 in salaries and wages, the 5,524 plants in the fuels group represented a capital investment in money, lands, and plant of $222,529,032, of which 65 per cent. was employed in coal mining. Sales of coal, natural gas and crude oil during the year returned $67,388,065 to the operators, an increase of more than 3 per cent. over 1926.

Capital employed in the 165 other non-metal mining industries amounted to $53,878,632; salaried employes and wage-earners numbered 5,939 people, and payments in salaries and wages totalled $6,624,905. Sales from the mines of this group realized $17,426,646, an increase of $900,000 over the total for the preceding year.

Clay products industries and plants producing other structural materials, such as cement, lime, sand and gravel and stone, numbering 3,014, and representing a capital investment of $96,264,292, gave work to 18,802 people, and paid out $15,259,252 in salaries and wages. The products of this group sold for $42,886,492, an increase of 2.9 millions over the total for 1926.

Canada's mineral industry is fairly well represented in each of the provinces except Prince Edward Island. In 1927 Ontario ranked first, with a capital investment of $278,898,422 and plants numbering 5,665. Employes and wages amounted to $28,602,100. Sales of the products resulting from the various mining operations totalled $87,944,242. British Columbia held second place in the value of sales at $57,750,443, and Quebec stood third at $39,064,753. Alberta, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, New Brunswick, the Yukon and Saskatchewan followed, in the order named.

Ontario's principal mineral products are gold, silver, nickel and copper, but in addition there is a production in this province of almost every other economic mineral, with the exception of coal and tin. British Columbia produces lead, zinc, copper, gold and silver among the metals, as well as considerable tonnages of coal and other non-metallic minerals and structural materials. Quebec's asbestos fields continued to supply by far the greater part of the world's tonnage of this useful commodity; lead, zinc, gold and silver were also reported. Developments in the Rouyn field in Quebec were watched with interest by the mining world during the year. Alberta, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan produced large tonnages of coal, in addition to other minerals. Manitoba's mines yielded gold and silver. In addition there was an important production of building stone from the quarries of this province. Silver-lead ores from the Mayo district in the Yukon Territory were shipped during the season of navigation, and placer gold mining was continued as in former years.

In every item the records for 1927 showed improvement over the totals for 1926.

U. S. Money Invested In Canada.

According to a computation of the United States Department of Commerce, U. S. money invested in Canada and Newfoundland totalled $3,537,000,000 at the end of 1927. The figures are based on a survey which is admittedly "a range estimate" providing a margin of error. The report says that U. S. money invested in Canada and Newfoundland is between three and three and a half billion out of a total of U. S. investments abroad of from eleven and a half to thirteen and a half billions.

The Untouched Meal

People Who Go Hungry With Food on the Table

"I simply cannot eat." Actual tragedy is suggested by these simple words, so often heard, because loss of appetite is the beginning of trouble that sooner or later reveals itself as indigestion, nervous dyspepsia, with violent headaches and other serious symptoms. Loss of appetite, whether a man or woman, is a symptom you dare not ignore. If you do, much suffering is sure to follow.

The secret of a good appetite — the secret of keeping well — is to keep up the quality of the blood. By enriching and purifying the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills supply strength to the enfeebled organs of digestion, and enable them to digest thoroughly the food eaten without causing pain or distress. Proof of this is given by Mr. William H. Kelly, Kingston, Ont., who says:—"I can not recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly. I had been bothered with indigestion in a chronic form for almost ten years. Everything I would eat would turn sour. I felt as though there was a big ball in my stomach all the time. I felt tired and weak and would often turn dizzy. I doctored and tried many medicines, spending many, many dollars, but to no avail. One day I heard a lady praising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. I am more than glad I did, for soon I found relief, and after taking the pills for a couple of months the trouble had disappeared, and now I can eat all kinds of food, and have again my old time health and strength."

Two useful books, "Building Up the Blood," and "What to Eat and How to Eat", will be sent free by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., if you mention this paper.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent by mail, post paid, on receipt or price, 50 cents per box.

FERTILIZER FORMULAE FOR POTATOES

(Experimental Farms Note.)

During the past five years an experiment has been running at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S., testing various formulae applied in varying amounts to the potato crop. Applications of 1,000, 1,500 and 2,000 pounds per acre of each of the following formulae were made, viz., 6-6-6, 5-6-6, 4-6-6, 3-6-6, 5-8-6, 4-8-6, 3-8-6, 3-8-6, 4-8-10, 4-8-8 and 4-8-4.

The soil on which this experiment is being carried on is a medium clay loam, with a very heavy clay subsoil and is of only fair natural fertility. The rotation is a three year one of potatoes, oats and hay, with the potatoes crop following a clover sod in each case.

All fertilizers were home mixed, half of the nitrogen being supplied in nitrate of soda and half in ammonium sulphate, the phosphoric acid in superphosphate and the potash in muriate of potash.

On this type of soil when the potato crop alone is considered, results indicate that the most profitable crops are obtained by using from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds per acre of a mixture not too high in nitrogen and medium to high in phosphoric acid and potash, such as a 3-6-6, 3-8-6, 4-8-8, or a 4-8-10 formulae.

When the oat and hay crops are taken into consideration, the heavier application, viz., 2,000 pounds per acre gave a considerable increase in yield over the lighter applications. As far as the potato crop is concerned, there seemed to be little advantage in favor of the high percentage of potash in the 4-8-10 over the 3-6-6 or 4-8-6, due probably to the nature of the soil, but on light sandy loams for the potato crop it would probably be desirable to employ a fertilizer mixture containing 6 to 10 per cent of potash.

OBITUARY

Mr. Wm. R. Close.

Residents of Moscow and surrounding communities were greatly shocked and much saddened by the sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Wm. R. Close, on Friday, July 13th. Mr. Close, while loading hay, was thrown backwards off the load, falling heavily to the ground, thus fracturing the base of the skull causing instantaneous death.

The late Mr. Close was born in Croydon, June 15th, 1873, where he resided until moving to Moscow thirty years ago, where he has since lived as a prosperous farmer.

He is survived by his widow and one son, Cecil; two daughters, Vera and Cyril, having preceded him some years ago. Besides these, he leaves to mourn his loss, three sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Doupe, Napanee; Miss Annie Close, Enterprise; Mrs. Johnson Hannah, Enterprise; Edmund, of Toronto, and Allan and Anson, of Croydon.

The funeral was held on Sunday, July 15th, from the family residence, to Moscow cemetery, where the remains were interred in the family plot. The pall bearers were six nephews of the deceased, were Johnson Hannah, Robert Milsap, Robert McGregor, Ross McGregor, Stuart Close and Wilbert Campbell.

Much sympathy is extended to the sorrowing relatives and friends in their heavy loss.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months and unless prompt action is taken the little one may soon be beyond all help. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and prevent the dreaded summer complaints. They are an absolute safe medicine, being guaranteed to contain neither opiates nor narcotics or other harmful drugs. They cannot possibly do harm — they always do good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEW RUBBER ROADWAY.

Last More Than Double Concrete or Wood, But Is More Durable.

Near South Kensington station in Thurloe Place, London, England, has been laid about 100 yards of quite a new type of rubber roadway. The lower rubber blocks, the invention of J. S. Cowper, are laid differently from any other system tried so far.

Each block is in the form of two rectangles side by side and joined together for one-half of the length. The edges are tongued and grooved so that they fit snugly and closely into each other, thus excluding wet but requiring no binding solution. The half area of each block measures nine inches by 4½ inches by 2⅝ inches in depth. The depth is divided into three equal portions, the upper third being of resilient toughened rubber to act as a shock and vibration absorber; the centre third is of a hard rubber compositition which is designed to prevent the too great compression or spread of the blocks under load; the lower third is harder than the top but soft enough to sit well down into the slight roughness of the concrete road bed. The centre portion of the surface of the blocks is striated to offer an anti-skid surface.

The laying of this rubber "carpet" on the concrete bed is wonderfully simple and rapid as the blocks fit into each other perfectly, requiring only a light hammer tap. Smaller-size blocks are used to bring the margin to a straight edge.

In an interview with a representative of the Christian Science Monitor Mr. Cowper pointed out that the roadway under test had been chosen as it is over a very troublesome stretch which never lasts without repair for more than a few months. Asked as to how the cost compared with the ordinary concrete bed road, Mr. Cowper said that at present (the price of rubber being in a very uncertain state) it worked out at about £2 per square yard, or about double. Against this must be put the greatly increased wear, more than double, and the ease of repair. Great advantages must accrue, too, he said, owing to the minimizing of vibration and the absence of noise. In order to simplify repair work Mr. Cowper has designed a system of "locking strips" bolted down to the roadway and removable when the nuts are taken off. Some such provision is necessary in the case of tram rails.

WAS A GREAT HUNTER.

Queen Anne Had an Original Way of Stag Hunting.

The expression "Queen Anne's Dead," is still often heard when someone attempts to impart stale news, and thus people have become inclined to regard good Queen Anne as rather a mythical person, instead of a "sure-enough" once Queen Great Britain and Ireland. She was a daughter of James II. of England, born 1665, became wife of Prince George of Denmark at eighteen years of age, and was Queen of Great Britain and Ireland from 1702-1714. A recent attempt to restore the deer herd at Windsor recalls the tremendous feats of Queen Anne in stag hunting there. The Queen had an original way of stag hunting, described by Swift.

"She hunts in a chaise with one horse, which she drives herself, and drives furiously like Jehu, and is a mighty hunter like Nimrod."

On one hot summer day she covered forty miles in her hunting chaise.

Theft Difficult In Diamond Mines.

After long and painful experience operators of African diamond mines found that wholesale diamond stealing could be checked only by virtually making prisoners of the Kaffir miners during the periods of their contracts (usually three to six months). Living quarters are inside a walled inclosure, surrounded by a high wire netting, to prevent thieves outside throwing diamonds outside to accomplices. Before departure their huts, clothing and personal belongings are thoroughly searched. Stolen diamonds have been found secreted behind eyelids, under finger nails, in ears, between toes, enclosed in food and boot soles—men have even swallowed a good-sized stone.

Dog Holds Up the Traffic.

"Hat," so called for his early association with the Royal Air Force, is a dog which until recently has been a patient at one of the dispensaries of the People's Dispensary for Sick Animals in London. He has proved an ideal patient in the hands of the white-coated assistant when being treated, but his desire to express his gratitude sometimes proves a very embarrassing to his mistress. He will persist in "sitting up" and "bowing" to the policeman on point duty in the City of London, who also wear white coats. This frequently entails difficult explanations in the midst of a traffic hold-up.

The Lightning Factory.

Artificial lightning of 3,600,000 volts, the highest voltage ever obtained by man, has been produced in the high voltage engineering laboratory of the General Electric Company at Pittsfield, U.S.A.

The electricity is gradually stored in artificial clouds! Just as electricity is stored in real thunder clouds, and is then discharged in a blinding flash lasting but a few millionths of a second, producing all the effects of real lightning.

DESERONTO

Several District Lodges of "The Sons of England" and "Maids of the Empire" attended Divine Service on Sunday last at St. Mark's, Deseronto. There was a large turn out though rain threatened. Deputy District Master R. E. Cunnell, of Picton, was in charge. The printed service was enjoyed by all present. Rural Dean Raddish preached on "Altruism," "Unselfishness", from Philippines 22:4 and stressed the awful results in the world to-day from "selfishness" "selfishness" from a quarrel between two persons to a world war. The remedy was pointed out, prayer to God to remove the evil from the heart; otherwise no benefit society like the Sons of England would have any chances to do the good they are doing in the world to-day. Votes of thanks were moved by the visiting Brethren to the Rector, Wardens and Choir of St. Mark's, for the enjoyable service. Brothers Jackson, Mellow, Lines and G. Hoppings acted as hosts to the visitors. The parade was conducted with great and precision, the ladies taking part most efficiently.

RADIUM IN SURGERY.

How Emerges Into the Light of Tri. umphant Success.

Time after time within recent years hopes have been raised that a cure for cancer and other malignant disease has been found, but always there has been failure.

For some years radium, as a reliable remedy for the worst of human ills, has been under a cloud, but as unphant success, says an Old Country newspaper. In the early days it will form as important a part of the surgeon's equipment as his scalpel.

When medical men first used radium in surgery, our knowledge of that uncanny element was of the slightest. Even now, when so much can be achieved by its aid, this radioactive body (so-called because of the radiations it is perpetually throwing off) is something of a mystery.

It is continually firing off the atoms of which it is composed—a miniature. It takes twenty-five years for one per cent. of a radium mass to disintegrate. Therefore the radio-activity of a pure radium preparation continues for an average of 2,500 years, and when it can disintegrate or break down no further it ends its days, so to speak, as a lump of lead.

This wonderful element occurs in small quantities in certain mineral deposits, of which the richest are in the Belgian Congo.

The extraction of the radium from these deposits is a lengthy and costly process, and from one ton of ore only half a gramme (about half the weight of a three-penny-piece) can be obtained. One gramme of radium costs approximately $6,000, but in the Key Industry Act hospitals in the Old Country have had to pay a duty of 33 1-3 per cent., bringing the price up to $8,000. The Treasury, however, has now exempted radium from this duty until December 31, 1928.

In its metallic state, radium is a pure white metal which changes quickly when exposed to air and reacts with water. Hence, for curative purposes, it is always prepared and used in the form of a salt, usually as bromide of radium.

The use of radium as a curative agent was discovered by accident. A French scientist put some tubes containing radium in his pocket and carried them about with him for some days, when he discovered that his skin was burnt. This suggested the use of radium radiations to kill certain living cells or tissues considered harmful to man. But medical reports on these results were conflicting. Accurate details of the nature of the disease treated, the method of application, and the dosage used were lacking. Doctors could not with confidence recommend its use, so it fell into disrepute.

Then the Medical Research Council took the matter up and made an extended and co-ordinated inquiry into the medical uses of radium, especially in cancer and kindred diseases. The results of their work are to be seen in the vastly improved methods of applying radium to-day.

Surface tumors are easily dealt with, the radium being placed in a container being strapped on. For internal growths radium needles are used.

The needles, when used in cancer cases, are allowed to remain in position for 144 hours.

Early cases of cancer of the throat and tongue can be overcome without the customary operations, and it would be a boon to mankind were it possible to reduce the cost of radium so that it could be made available for general use.

A Costly Bedstead.

A rajah in one of the Northwest Provinces of India is the possessor of an extraordinary bedstead. The wooden portions of it was constructed of malacca cane, the entire remainder being manufactured of solid gold.

The golden headpiece is brilliantly set with no fewer than 700 gems of all kinds, and the dazzling effect as the light falls upon the glittering array of thickly-studded jewels is said to be almost beyond expression.

As this costly couch is valued at the enormous sum of $350,000, it is almost unnecessary to add that it is guarded night and day by two faithful attendants of its wealthy owner.

A Rake Mystery.

Fishermen have known for a long time that it is almost useless to trawl for hake at night. This apparently nightly migration from the sea-bottom is said to be due to a "sleep rhythm" in the fish, which is inactive by day but active by night.

From the fifth to the ninth full moons of the year there is a regular fluctuation in the landing of hake, and a study of the weekly figures of hake at Cardiff, Hull, and Grimsby more fish are landed at full moon than at new moon. There is also a daily change in the abundance of hake on the sea-bottom.

Pious Dry—Sinners Soaked.

St. Edward was at one time Archbishop of Canterbury. He is said to have been a man of great piety and wonderful faith. Tradition has it that the saint was once preaching in an Oxford church, and the storm sent a terrific storm to quench his eloquence. He prayed, and the storm moved to the side of the church-yard, so that those who remained to hear the sermon kept dry, and those who left were drenched.

Industries Spreading In England.

Industries are springing up in the towns and villages of England so rapidly that even in the most rural districts factories may be seen.

"Why, old chap, you're looking rather down in the mouth. Flinding money a bit close?"

"Yes—but not quite close enough to pench!"

She—"Do you believe in clubs for women?"

He—"Yes, if kindness fails."

BARING PAPER.

Its Accident That Gave Us Wood Pulp.

Gottfried Keller was a German paper maker and amateur scientist. The fall day in 1840 while wandering through the Harts mountains, he accidentally stopped on a wasp's nest. Picking it up, he was struck by its softness and flexibility. It was something similar to the paper that he manufactured and yet it was not paper.

He was certain, after examination, that the nest was made of wood pulp.

Keller, intrigued by the possibility of using wood pulp, carried his problem to his friend, Heinrich Voelter. Together they started their experiments. As the fibres of the nest were evidently spruce wood, they obtained pieces of this wood and ground it in an ordinary grindstone, using hot water as a softener. After a small content of rag pulp, they finished manufacture in the usual way. They had made a very good sheet of paper—not as good as rag paper to be sure, for the impurities in the wood remained, but a piece of paper which appeared strong and durable and had an amazing capacity to absorb ink.

Some seventeen years later Albrecht and Rudolph Pagenstecher, organizing oil, were informed by their cousin, newly arrived from Germany, that Germany was printing its newspapers on wood. So interested were they in the new paper that the two brothers went to Germany and returned with two wood grinding machines and the American rights.

With an outlay of eleven thousand dollars they built their first factory near what is now known as Interlaken, Mass., and on March 5, 1867, the first paper ever made in America from wood pulp was completed.

Strange as it seems, the use of wood pulp was not realized for some time. Its growth, while rapid, was not startling. In a book published in 1882, called the "History of Paper Making," this statement appears: "The manufacture of paper from wood reduced to a pulp has not been so rapid or extended so widely as that from straw, but excellent results have been obtained and a large quantity of such pulp is annually used."—Typothetae Bulletin.

A STORY OF MONTE CARLO.

Girl Did Not Give Right Age and Lost.

"Things I Remember," the title of a book written by Frederick Townsend Martin, relates the following curious story of a friend of his who was walking one day in the Casino Gardens, Monte Carlo, where he met an old clergyman, accompanied by his three daughters.

"The girls were very anxious to inspect the rooms, and after much persuasion their father allowed my friend to take them through. 'And remember you are not to play,' he added, as a parting injunction. When the girls arrived their guide turned to them. 'Look here,' said he, 'although you are forbidden to play, I will put on some money for you. What's your age?' he asked the youngest one, seventeen,' she answered. He promptly put a louis on the number seventeen at the roulette table. The little ball fell into the number seventeen, and thirty-five louis were handed to the gambler by croup.

"At the next table my friend turned to the seventeen girl. 'What's yours?' he asked. 'Nineteen,' she replied; and nineteen came up.

"'Well,' said my friend to the third daughter, 'come along, last but not least. Your thirty-three is mine,' she answered demurely. A louis was put on twenty-three, but unfortunately twenty-six came up. The unlucky third bore her disappointment like a philosopher, and the little party strolled through the rooms. 'My friend walking ahead with 'sweet seventeen.'

"'If I were to tell this story,' said he, 'I should be asked if my name was Ananias. Nobody would believe that the numbers of your age and your sister's came as they did, and if your third sister had been lucky I should have been told to read the story of George Washington and lay it to heart.' 'But,' replied the youngest of the three graces, 'my sister's age did come up.' 'Great Scott, it didn't!' exclaimed my friend. 'Hush!' whispered the girl. 'Little told you wrongly: she is not twenty-three, but twenty-six!'"

Gracefully Turned.

Disraeli's resourceful wit enabled him to play the courtier at all times and to give—as in the following instance—a graceful turn even to satire. Soon after he had received his title and had become the Earl of Beaconsfield, an old peer greeted the new peer one day and asked him how he felt. Beaconsfield was just walking away from the House of Lords, but his thought seems to have been in the House of Commons, for he said, "I feel as if I were dead and buried." The old peer looked aghast. "And," Beaconsfield continued, with scarcely a pause—"and in the land of the blessed."

To Save Heligoland.

The Prussian State is to come to the aid of Heligoland, to protect the island crumbling into the sea.

A sum of $475,000 is to be expended, largely as the work of maintaining the sand dunes.

The Reich is also carrying out extensive protective constructions, including the extension of the west mole of the harbor. The electrical works situated on the harbor will have to be transferred inland, as they are threatened by falls of cliff.

The Artful Ostrich.

When the time for ostrich eggs to hatch is nearly due the hen bird deliberately lays one. The incubator, which swarm for a feast on the contents then supply her fifteen or more chicks with sufficient food to keep them going until they are able to prospect for themselves.

"BEN BOLT"

Dr. Thomas D. English Received No Compensation for Writing This Immortal Song.

To have one's song published in the millions, hummed, warbled and sung in theatres, concert halls and homes and "perforated" and put on a roll to be ground out on mechanical pianos and organs, and yet receive no compensation—not even a copy of his own train child—was the experience of Dr. Thomas Dunn English, author of the truly immortal "Ben Bolt."

In 1843 Dr. English, a practicing physician at Fort Lee, N.J., promised two of his personal friends, the editors of the New York Mirror, a poem of the sea as a contribution. Little did he dream that this poem would go down into history as one of the greatest sentimental ditties of the age. When he sat down to write the divine afflatus was nowhere in sight until he began to delve into reminiscences of his boyhood. Mechanically he wrote the line:

Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt?

Then followed a poem of five stanzas of eight lines each. Not until the last line is there any reference to the sea, when suddenly the hero's occupation is given us as "BenBolt of the sail-sea gale." It was this line alone that strengthened the ballad and fulfilled the promise of a sea poem to the author's editor-friends. Off it went and was duly published on September 2, 1843. The author thus essayed to set the poem to music, but with no success. But the tune which carried "Ben Bolt" to every corner of the English - speaking world was an old German melody. It came through the efforts of Nelson Kneass, a wandering minstrel singer. While appearing at a Pittsburg theatre, Kneass was told by the management that if a new song could be produced he would be added to the cast of the next play scheduled. He consulted a hanger-on at the theatre, a former British journalist, A. M. Hunt. Hunt had read "Ben Bolt" in an English newspaper, gave it to Kneass from memory and hummed in from his imagination when his memory failed. Kneass thereupon adapted the German melody to the words and subsequently the completed song was introduced in the new play, "The Battle of Buena Vista." The drama died, but the song survived. A music publisher obtained the copyright and reaped a fortune.

Everybody had adopted "Sweet Alice" as their pet. The grave of the lines and the repetition of "Ben Bolt" made it highly effective. The ballad itself voices a universal theme. It echoes the vain regrets of a man who looks back upon a youth that is gone forever. So much so that Du Maurier in 1895 utilized this unsophisticated little song as the pivotal point in his famous "Trilby." Fully fifty-two years after its first appearance in America.

Dr. English was fond of relating that after the song was pirated a steamboat and a racehorse both were named after it, adding: "The ship was wrecked, the steamboat exploded and the horse never won a race"—somewhat consistent with his own ill luck in never receiving any royalty. His sole compensation was in watching "Ben Bolt" gliding safely through the singing waters of song.

BECOMING SOBER CITY.

Less Than Eight Thousand Arrested in Paris for Being Drunk.

According to comparative statistics Paris is becoming the most sober city on the continent. In 1911 23,658 persons were picked up there by the police for being drunk; in 1927 only 7,917 were arrested on that charge, as against 10,190 in Berlin, about 8,000 in Vienna and Budapest, and over 15,000 in Moscow.

The Paris papers, in commenting on the sobriety of the City of Light, cast doubt on the figures furnished by Rome, where it is reported the "legally intoxicated" in 1927 numbered only 580. They show that this decline has been steady in Paris ever since the world war, principally caused, all agree, by the suppression of absinthe.

Among other reasons given by the press for the town's sobriety are the increased price of alcoholic liquor, the increasing vogue of outdoor sports and of travel, and the appeal for thrift made by several institutions for savings.

The Modern Way.

Gloria Swanson, who in private life is the Marquise de la Falaise, tells the story of how she was once playing in a production in which a duel was supposed to be greatly upset at the unfaithfulness of her lover.

Somehow or other she did not strike the right note of tragic bereavement, so the producer tried to coach her in her part.

"Inspire yourself with the situation," said he. "Fancy yourself in the poor woman's place. If you were deserted by a lover whom you adored, what would you do?"

The reply was as unexpected as it was ingenuous: "I would look out for another!"

A Peculiar Custom.

The Miau-tsz, a tribe in Asia, will not bury a man until they have tested the ground with an egg. The chief relatives of the deceased go to the appointed spot, bearing a large basket of eggs. Stooping down, one of the natives lets an egg drop softly on the ground. Its breaking is considered an ill omen, and another spot is selected. In this way the party often wanders about for hours, dropping eggs until one falls without cracking the shell.

House of Bottles.

A house at Rio Vista, Nevada, is built entirely of beer-bottles. The erection is 20 feet long and 16 feet wide, and has two rooms. Ten thousand bottles went to its construction. They are placed with the bottom ends projecting upwards, and dry mud holds them in place.

Mrs. Billus—"John, the doctor says I need a change of climate."

Mr. Billus (absorbed in his evening paper)—"That's all right, Maria, it's going to be twenty degrees colder tomorrow."

VARIETY MEANS VITALITY.

If You Want to Live, You Must Break the Chains of Habit.

"I other day a friend asked me, says a writer in Answers, if I thought a change would do him good. He meant a change of diet and scene, but his question gave me a chance to tell him that what he really wanted, unless he wished to die ten or fifteen years before his time, was about form a "change."

For years he had had the same sort of breakfast—porridge, one boiled egg and two rashers of bacon

ERNESTTOWN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

At the July meeting the program was given entirely by the juveniles, and very interesting it proved to be.

The President congratulated all the children who had passed their exams. and said she was sure that was every one ought welcomed the strangers present.

The songs, recitations and piano solos were all well rendered. Special mention must be made of that charming little classic, "Little Boy Blue", by Eugena Field, given by Master George Smith.

The different committees gave fine reports. The committee for the purpose of buying a piano a most tangable one, for the hall had secured one and had it installed.

A collection, Mrs. Joel Kellar, was appointed. Plans were made for the picnic which it was decided is to be held in conjunction with the Union Church Sunday School, on August 9th.

The refreshments consisted of lemonade, sandwiches and cake, and was nicely served by the little ladies present.

ATLANTIC SEAL FISHING

OLD ROMANCE DEPARTS FROM BUSINESS.

Sailing Vessels Have Given Way to Steamer and Modern Business Takes Hand In Exploiting One of Newfoundland's Oldest Trades.

Officially, an integral part of the fisheries, seal fishing is commonly regarded as a separate entity of Newfoundland's economic life.

While much of the romance associated with the early history of this industry has given way to the hard, matter-of-fact modern business, the industry continues to attract large numbers of Newfoundlanders on account of the lucrative profits which can be made over a comparatively short period, despite known hardships which have to be faced by the hunters each year.

The history of seal fisheries may be roughly divided into four periods, says the Financial Post. At first the seals were taken in nets which were placed between the shore and some island or rock, at no great distance. This was supplemented by hunting the seals on the ice floes in the spring. Naturally, operations were limited and methods of preparing the oil and skins somewhat crude. Early records show that the value of seal oil and skins exported from the island amounted to $5,000 in 1749. Twenty years later these exports had increased to $40,000 per annum. The catch fluctuated in the next few years, but rapidly increased again and by 1775 exports amounted in value to over $100,000.

From the year 1800 an important advance in this industry was made by fitting out small schooners of 50 to 70 tons and carrying from 12 to 18 men. These vessels were stoutly built to encounter heavy ice and did not leave port until toward the end of March in order to avoid the early spring gales.

In 1857 there were 400 vessels of 70 to 200 tons, engaged in sea fishing, their united crews numbering some 13,000 men. The average annual value of the seal fisheries in that period was from $1,000,000 to $1,250,000, with an average catch of about 400,000 seals.

Modern methods of seal catching commenced about 1862 when steam vessels first took part in the annual seal hunts. The intro luction of steamers gradually drove out sailing vessels. By 1866 there were only 177 sailing vessels and five steamers in the trade. By 1882 the number of steamers had increased to 25 and since that time the sailing vessel, to all intents and purposes, is no longer used in seal fishing, while the number of steam vessels has declined to 11.

The animals caught on the ice floes of Newfoundland and Labrador are hair seals, valued principally for their skins and fats, as distinguished from the fur seals of the North Pacific. From the skin of the Atlantic seal, a fine quality of leather similar to kid and patent is made in the United States and Scotland. The oil is used for medicine as a substitute for cod-liver oil, for food, soap-making and as an illuminant, especially in lighthouses and mines.

From records available covering a period of some fifteen or twenty years, it is apparent that the interest of the seal hunt does not depend upon the number of vessels or men engaged in the hunt. While the route taken by the seals in their travels in the early spring months is well known from past experience, the number killed is largely a matter of luck.

Between 1914 and 1926 the number of seals taken ranged from a low of 47,004 in 1915 to a high of 241,302 in 1916. In the five-year period —1921 to 1925, the number of seals taken ranged from 101,000 to 130,000 per annum. In 1926, 132,509 seals were taken. In 1927 the catch totalled 211,531, and for 1928, 241,450. The present season has been one of the best experienced probably in the past twenty-five years.

The seals are utilized commercially in two ways—namely, for their skins and oil.

Newfoundland's production of seal oil represents one of the world's principal sources for that product. The output naturally fluctuates with the number of seals taken. Exports have been well maintained in recent years as evidenced from the following table:

	Quantity Tons	Value
1920	1,002	$262,553
1921	1,487	248,422
1922	1,730	176,008
1923	1,501	170,997
1924	1,993	275,578
1925	2,208	396,611
1926	1,860	225,769

Although seal fishing is a hazardous occupation and revenues therefrom subject to great fluctuation, it is a means of providing profitable employment for a large number of people during a period when other industries are inactive. Moreover, it quickly puts into circulation large sums of money which have a beneficial influence on trade in general.

Cars Entering Canada.

During 1927, 3,514,005 cars from the United States entered Canada for touring purposes, an increase of 52 per cent. over the previous year, according to the Canada Customs Department of Commerce. It is estimated that those travelling to the Dominion in this manner left $117,000,000 in this country. This compares with an estimate of $105,000,000 in 1926.

Canada's Honey.

Honey production in Canada in 1927 was 22,647,268 pounds, valued at $3,660,625, according to an estimate issued at Ottawa; this is an increase of 72 per cent. over the previous year, due mostly to a favorable season but also to the greater number of colonies.

Friday is Bargain Day

How did Bargain Day originate? The idea was conceived years ago by the famous merchant who founded the organization which now operates the C. D. S. In entering his store after returning from a journey, he encountered an unusual crowd of shoppers. Inquiry proved that the offering of a number of clearance items and incomplete lines at reduced prices had attracted them. The possibilities of the Bargain Day idea appealed to his business judgment, and one day each week was thereafter set aside for this event, which has now come to be a fixed institution, and is recognized as a day of important savings for the thrifty. Visit the store Friday and see.

Huffman's Goitre Remedy at Wallace's.

The direct revenues received by Dominion and Provincial Governments from the forests in the form of rentals, royalties, stumpage charges, etc., amount to $15,000,000 annually. In Europe it has been found that increased expenditure on modern protective methods has always been followed by a much more than proportionate increase in revenues.

Wallace's good Spices make good pickles.

He was up for his University entrance examination. His intellectual attainments were known to be slight, but the powers that be were anxious to pass him, for he was a magnificent oarsman. As a matter of fact, he excelled in every kind of sport.

"Just put down something," pleaded his tutor. "Write down anything you can, and we'll get you through somehow or other." And he left his pupil to it.

He sat for two hours gazing at the virgin paper before him. Then he put down the one word: "Dam."

Later on his tutor came up to him more in sorrow than in anger.

"We can't pass you," he said despairingly. "You've spelt it wrong!"

It is estimated by the Forest Service that th only economic use for threeeighths of the land area of Canada lies in the growing of trees. This vast area of territory, while incapable of successful agricultural production, is, if permanently dedicated, protected, and managed, suited to the production of a timber crop which would guarantee for all time the supply of raw material for Canada's wood-using industries.

DEATHS.

WENT—Suddenly, on Tuesday, July 31st, 1928, at his residence, Napanee, William Went, beloved husband of Margaret Cochrane. Funeral at Orillia.

FRASER—At Napanee, on Friday, July 27th, 1928, Harriett E. Day, widow of the late John Fraser, aged 81 years, 8 months and 15 days.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Calvin Lewis, who died at Kingston, July 21st, 1927.

One long year you left us, father,
And our hearts are filled with pain;
And we long to hear your laughter,
And to see your face again.

But we know that you are happy,
In the Master's loving care;
And that no more pain or sorrow
Will ever be your share.

So we will be brave, our father,
And pray to God each day,
That when He calls us home to Heaven,
Your loving smile will guide our way.

Sadly missed by loving Wife, Sons, and Daughters. 31ap

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear wife, Rebecca McCreary, who died July 22nd, 1926.

Three years have passed, but how we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Deep within our hearts concealed.

Inserted by Husband and Grandchildren. 31ap

Panama Claims More Traffic.

Interesting figures on the operation of the Panama Canal, as compared with those of the Suez Canal, have been prepared by the Bureau of Statistics in the United States administration building at Balboa Heights, for the month of February, during which time nearly 100 more ships made the transit of the Panama Canal than those that passed through the Suez Canal, the net tonnage being 100,000 more. Yet there was collected in tolls from the Suez Canal more than $1,000,000 over the tolls collected by the Panama Canal. The record month for traffic through the Panama Canal was December, 1927, there being 589 vessels compared with 451 for the record month in the Suez Canal.

Open-Air Parliament.

The oldest open-air Parliament in the world is known as the Landsgemeinde, which has been held yearly every May since 1412 in the market place of Altdorf, capital of the canton of Uri, Switzerland, was abolished recently by a majority vote in favor of a secret ballot to take place in the town hall.

Laws have been enacted for more than 500 years simply by uplifting arms. Six other Landsgemeindes still exist in the smaller Swiss cantons.

THE CANARY ISLES

Mountains, by Their Honry Colors, Still Appear Portion of the Unredeemed Primeval Earth.

The Canary Isles were regarded by mariners and people of a bygone age as the cage of the world and in the minds of many were purely mythical. If any of the sacients had wished to peer over the edge of the world, writes John Jeffries in the London Daily Mail, his first move would have been to institute a search for the almost mythical Canary Isles.

At the uttermost limit of those uttermost isles, possibly he might come to where the last doubtful slope of the earth was reared against infinity. But more likely, as he drew his journey's end, the valley itself would give way beneath his feet or the hill would crumble through in an awful tissue. Such was the repute of the Canaries.

The men of a later age grew securer in their knowledge of the ocean and of the earth, yet even they thought the islands to be the home of magicians, or else a place of uncanny bliss where dead heroes wandered. And now we in our time have shed all these illusions, but the land which gave them birth, still seems to retain them. Here at least, at Santa Cruz of Teneriffe, as you stand upon the heights above the many-colored town, the mountains which you see stretching their contorted summits eastward almost cry out to you, "Give us back our magicians!"

Those mountains are still living, in so far as their soil and rocks can live, in the age of Merlin. Neither husbandry nor trade nor war nor any of the arts by which men have swept the earth clean of imaginings have prevailed over them. Far below ships make a thoroughfare of the famed waters and upon the mole by which the fruit-steamers lie, bales of bananas and packages and barrels in their hundreds are piled ready for the winches.

But the great coast rises from that little surf of commerce breaking upon it, rises from the puff of dust of the harbor works and from the patch of the town itself and from the road which creeps for a span at its base, high into a skyline of abracadabra. Gorge and ravine, headlined and cape, peak thrusting from the overhang of peak and hollow scooped from the bowl of the crater, the whole wild inland side springs upward in the march to enchantment.

Perhaps there may be in distant seas beyond the Equator some parallel for these mountains which, by their site and shape, by their aspect of chaos and on undiscovery, by their hoary colors, still appear portion of the unredeemed primeval earth.

But in the nearer parts of the globe it has not been my own lot to find any such. Long, long ago out of a seething volcanic welter they broke, thundering into crests as they came. Universal fire ringed them round, while piercing hot hurricanes seared them into their innumerable ridges.

So, as time passed, when the fury of their genesis had been abated, with hardly a change of outline they must have stood revealed by the first of all dawns, by the new cold light, which grew on them as the winds grew, and was as if the winds were taking substance.

And thus they have remained, becoming more and more stubborn and spellbound, as the world around, through cycle after cycle, gravitated and settled its frame to the will of God and swafted the creation of man.

The selfsame they stand now, that magic league-long line of mountains from Santa Cruz to Anara Point in Teneriffe, eight mountains and eight gulfs, scaled like the flanks of the crocodile or the lizard, with as many levels as the swaying leaves of the forest, superb and hopeless, outlaws of Heaven, expecting the incantations which come not, calling in vain for the wizards who never were.

Elizabeth Despised Forks.

Table forks may be numbered among the more modern inventions. The first forks, it is said, were introduced into England during the reign of Elizabeth. The Queen had several of the new fangled implements brought to her, but promptly cast them aside as too finicky and utterly unworthy of her attention. She preferred a knife only, and degree. Scores of years passed before the fork finally came into its own. Those who used forks, like those who purchased the first automobiles, were not considered foolish enough for confinement in an institution, but world bear watching. An investigator traced the evolution of the spoon from the clamshell picked up by the earliest human progenitors.

Bond of Old Trousers.

It was said of the late Prof. Samuel Haughton, of Trinity College, Dublin, that his reputation rested equally on his scientific attainments and his passion for sticking to clothes.

Once, for some unfathomable reason, he bought a new pair of trousers and next morning put them on, leaving the old pair hanging over the foot of the bed. No sooner had he left the house than a maid came rushing down to Mrs. Haughton with the cry: "Please, mum, the master's gone out without his trousers!"

The Rialto at Venice.

The Rialto, the famous marble bridge across the Grand Canal at Venice, was built by Antonio da Ponte in 1590. It consists of a single arch, 90 feet wide and 24 feet high, and rests upon 12,000 piles. The name Rialto is derived from Rivo-Alto, one of the islands on which Venice is built. This island was long the financial and commercial centre of the city, and gave its name to the bridge that connects it with the mainland.

COLD LIGHT SECRET OF SEA

Solve the Problem of Luminescence of the Ocean Waves and Humanity Will Benefit.

Man will face new and important ways of controlling nature when he succeeds in demonstrating the mechanism by which tiny organisms of the sea produce light without appreciable heat, Dr. Charles A. Kofoid, of the University of California, declared in his presidential address before the Pacific division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Kofoid described the occasional outbreaks of luminescence in the ocean by night, when each breaking wave is accompanied by an outburst of flaming light, and the path of a vessel becomes an illuminated trail across the water. By day the water of the luminous sea is rusty red, and mottled with patches of color. The luminous outbreak brings death and destruction to tons of sea creatures and has baffled attempts of scientists to plumb the mystery of its exact source.

The epidemics of light have been definitely traced to tiny sea animals with the long name of dinoflagellata, which sometimes develop and multiply with what seems like an astonishing ambition to cover the ocean. But what causes such enormous flares of growth is still to be explained.

The fact that the outbreaks occur so frequently off the Pacific coast of America, rather than off the Atlantic, is a clue that local conditions of weather and sea geography may play their part in the mad drama of the dinoflagellata. Chemical analysis of sea water patiently made over long periods of time is also expected to reveal some evidence of the exact kind of water in which the creatures flourish. It is also possible that the organisms themselves produce some substance which favors their own growth and that they flourish and multiply until the food supply becomes inadequate and then the surplus hordes starve.

The task of handling and experimenting with these delicate organisms is extraordinary difficult, Dr. Kofoid said, because they are attuned to an environment of great constancy, and the changes in their environment which cause them to respond are slight compared with other creatures of the animal world.

The secret of the production of light without appreciable heat is locked up in the metabolism of these simple organisms of the sea," Dr. Kofoid said in conclusion, pointing out that some of the most inviting problems of biology are involved in understanding the relations of these organisms to the solar radiations on which they depend and in demonstrating the mechanism by which they release their stored-up reserves of energy.

QUICKSAND.

Sand Which Is Incapable of Holding Up Material.

Quicksand is the name given to sand which is incapable of holding up material. Though it is bodiless, when once it gains a grip on man or beast its suction power is terrible.

To understand what quicksand is like, fill a sealer with dry sand. It takes a good deal of force to push an uncut pencil to the bottom of the sealer. Dampen the sand and it is still difficult to penetrate, but soak it —mix it with a quantity of water, and keep the mixture stirred — and the pencil pierces to the bottom with ease. This shows the secret of quicksand. If the grains are separated by water which is constantly flowing in from below, the sand is "quick."

But the separating agent need not be watered; it may be gas. Small patches of quicksand found upon a beach are often the result of decaying matter, such as dead shellfish, buried beneath the surface and giving off gas.

Quicksand found inland, in river beds or on moorlands, are usually caused by underground springs. But quicksand is not a special sort of sand. Any fine-grained sand becomes quick in the circumstances described.

Cooks Spoil Light Plant.

Competition in brilliancy of lighting of business streets in Cannes, France, met its limitations recently. When the Rue d'Antibes flared forth with a new arc lighting system, merchants of other streets saw with terror the crowds that visited the street. Other thoroughfares soon blazed with light, and eventually merchants of the narrow and ancient rue Grande became enthusiastic. In one day they collected 7,000 francs for an ornamental lighting equipment. Then it was found that the many lights were taxing the local electric light plant so that at times all the illuminations of Cannes grew dim or went altogether, apparently at tea time when housewives were preparing the meals.

Dueling With Cards.

Pistols have given way to cards in the settlement of "affairs of honor" in Czecho-Slovakia, judging by the method adopted by a business man at Brusen, near Prague, to avenge an insult.

An engineer in the town is said to have given offence to the business man, who challenged him to a duel. "Why not settle the affair at cards?" another man suggested. The men agreed, and sat down at the card-table to play for a stake of £1,500. The business man won.

BURNS LIVED THERE

Under the will of Mr. John Williamson, of Edinburgh, the Dumfriesshire farm of Ellisland has been given to the nation.

Here Robert Burns exercised the occupations of farmer and exciseman, and here he lived from March, 1788, to August, 1791, writing some of his finest poems and a number of the songs.

The poet's duties as exciseman carried him for a while on horseback, says a writer in Tit-Bits. He had to survey ten parishes, covering a tract of fifty miles each way, and necessitating two hundred miles of riding every week. As there was no proper house on the farm, he had to leave his wife and child at Mauchline, in his native Ayrshire, for several months, whilst he put up with a mere hovel.

Often during this lonesome period he extended his rides into Ayrshire to visit his Jean, and as he looked towards his beloved county over the hills which divide Nithsdale from Ayrshire, and thought of his wife so many weary miles away, he penned:

Of a' the airts the wind can blaw,
I dearly like the west,
For there the bonnie lassie lives,
The lassie I lo'e best.

Holiday - makers might do worse than follow in the poet's track over a thirty or forty-mile radius around Dumfries, the town close to Ellisland, where the poet died and is buried. It is a land of romance and beauty, for the valley of the Nith is charming, and Moffat and the Ettrick country, in those pastoring days, are within easy reach, whilst every tributary stream of the Nith is famous in ballad and song.

Lockerbie and Lochmaben are both holiday resorts a few miles east of Dumfries. The former is a favorite walking centre for Annandale and the border country. A favorite route is along the Milk Water and down the lovely Esk to Langholm.

Another walk is to Lochmaben, on to the Nith, past Ellisland and Friar's Carse, and so along the riverside to Dumfries.

Dumfries is full of Burns memories. At the Globe Inn, where he spent too much of his time even when at Ellisland, the poet's chair, his punch bowl and toddy ladle, as well as verses scratched by his own hand on window panes, are still displayed. The house where he died is in Burns Street, and a fine mausoleum to his memory is in St. Michael's Churchyard.

It was at Ellisland that Burns wrote "Tam o' Shanter," which he regarded as his masterpiece, and the lovely tribute to Highland Mary:

Thou lingering star, with lessening ray,
That lovest to greet the early morn,
Again thou usherest in the day
My Mary from my soul was torn.

His tribute to his best patron, the Earl of Glencairn, the most famous of Bacchanalian songs, "Willie brewed a peck o' maut," and two of his finest Jacobite songs, "Ye flowery braes o' bonnie Doon" and "John Anderson, my Jo," were written at Ellisland.

Although the poet's thoughts went back continually to his "ain countree" of Ayrshire, such associations as this, the fact that he helped with his own hands to build his house, and that here he spent perhaps the two happiest years of his mature life, make this gift to the nation of great and lasting value, and the whole district an added attraction to holiday folk.

Canada's Foreign Trade.

Foreign trade for the twelve months ended April 30 last show the total exports to be $1,269,844,957, a decrease of nearly $40,000,000 from the preceding twelve months, and imports of $1,113,149,208, an increase of over $75,000,000. Exports to the United Kingdom decreased nearly $75,000,000, while imports increased over $20,000,000; and exports to the British Empire decreased over $81,000,000, while imports increased over $33,000,000. Exports to the United States increased by nearly $10,000,000, and imports from the United States increased over $31,000,000.

Occupied Farms in Prairies.

There are to-day 249,165 occupied farms on the Canadian prairies, as shown in recent surveys of Boards of Trade and analysis of the census returns. These farms are divided as follows: Saskatchewan, 117,787; Alberta, 77,130, and Manitoba, 53,251. This is the high-water mark for occupied farms in these provinces and the figures show a steady increase.

Farming To-day.

According to a recent census of the farms of the Prairie Provinces 40.8 per cent. had automobiles; 34.8 per cent. had telephones; 25.5 per cent. had gasoline engines; 21 per cent. had tractors; 2.2 per cent. had auto trucks and 2.1 had electric light.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Internally and Externally It Is Good. — The crowning property of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is that it can be used internally for many complaints as well as externally. For sore throat, croup, whooping cough, pains in the chest, colic and many kindred ailments it has qualities that are unsurpassed. A bottle of it costs little and there is no loss in always having it at hand.

A celebrated soprano was singing a solo in the village hall, when a very old villager turned to his mate near to him and asked in an audible whisper:

"Charge, what does that man keep on hittin' the girlie with his stick?"

His friend tried to explain.

"That's the conductor of the band," he began. "He's keeping time; he ain't hittin' her."

"Whoi, then," objected the old crony, "whoi is she hollerin'?"

A Power of Its Own.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has a subtle power of its own. All who have used it know this and keep it by them as the best valuable liniment available. Its uses are innumerable and for many years it has been prized as the leading liniment for man and beast.

"Does your wife choose your clothes?"

"No, she only picks the pockets."

Asthma Victims. The man or woman subject to asthma is indeed a victim. What can be more terrifying than to suddenly be seized with paroxysm of choking which seem to fairly threaten the existence of life itself. From such a condition Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought many to completely restored health and happiness. It is known and prized in every section of this broad land.

Mrs. Plainface was an exceedingly jealous woman.

She had taken her husband shopping, and when she suddenly saw him gazing rapturously at a beautiful young mannequin she was very angry.

She threw down the frock she had been inspecting, much to the annoyance of the girl attending her, and grabbed her husband by his coat-sleeve.

"Herbert, you wretch, you never look at me like that!" she reproached him.

"No," agreed her spouse. "But then you never look like that yourself!"

When a mother detects from the writhings and fretting of a child that worms are troubling it, she can procure a reliable remedy in Miller's Worm Powders which will expel all worms from the system. They may cause vomiting, but this need cause no anxiety, because it is but a manifestation of their thorough work. No worms can long exist where these Powders are used.

He was up for his University entrance examination. His intellectual attainments were known to be slight, but the powers that be were anxious to pass him, for he was a magnificent oarsman. As a matter of fact, he excelled in every kind of sport.

"Just put down something," pleaded his tutor. "Write down anything you can, and we'll get you through somehow or other." And he left his pupil to it.

He sat for two hours gazing at the virgin paper before him, then he put down the one word: "Dam."

Later on his tutor came up to him more in sorrow than in anger.

"We can't pass you," he said despairingly. "You've spelt it wrong!"

Nearly all children are subject to worms, and many are born with them. Spare them suffering by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, an excellent remedy.

STRANGE FOODS.

People In Foreign Lands Eat Queer Things.

Invited to dine with a South American Indian, you would probably be offered roast monkey. This meat, however, does not appeal to many white men, being considered too tough and strong.

Caterpillars, from the eggs of a large moth which is found in the Rockies are eaten by inhabitants of that part of the world with great gusto. They are caught and dried, and are considered an excellent standby when other foods are scarce.

Grasshoppers, either boiled or stewed, or ground into a flour substitute, are favored by Arabs; while, with white ants, they are a delicious ingredient of many curries served in Calcutta.

Shark, locusts, octopus, and so on are just a few more of the queer foods which might prove favorites with restaurant customers in this country—if served under other names. Rats and cats, served in some countries as "rabbits," are also said to be very good.

Big earthworms are actually swallowed alive by the singing girls of Japan. They think that they will have a good effect upon the quality of their voices!

Not many people have tasted whale, but those who have sampled it say that it closely resembles prime beef in flavor, and is much more tender. Crocodiles make many a dainty dish for the African native, while the tails of alligators are regarded as titbits in South America.

MONUMENT TO FLIERS

FORGOTTEN MASTERPIECE NOW HONORS AVIATORS.

Little-Known Sculptor's "Conquest of the Air," Created In 1910, Has Unusual History — U. S. Citizen Presents It to France.

The most amazing story, queerly connected with both the history of aviation and the world of art, a story ironical and a little sad, is centered around the beautiful monument raised on the aviation field of Le Bourget of Paris, France, to the honor of the three air heroes, Nungesser, Coli and Lindbergh, on the first anniversary and on the spot of departure of the ill-fated French plane, the "Oiseau Blanc."

The monument is symbolical. It shows in a graceful attitude of flight a woman as a conqueror of time and space. It marks for ages a glorious period in the history of aviation; and it marks the friendship between the United States and France, writes Francis Dickie, in the Toronto Weekly Star. But the monument stands for still more—it is a prophecy in sculpture.

Herein lies the amazing part of the story, for this monument raised in May, 1928, to three air pioneers was created no less than fifteen years ago by the then little known French sculptor, Gustave Michel, and at that distant time, when aviation was far from the development it has reached to-day, he called his monument "The Conquest of the Air."

Like the great French writer, Jules Verne, who nearly half a century ago predicted in his writing many of the scientific marvels which are now every-day realities, Gustave Michel was a prophetic dreamer.

For several years Gustave Michel brooded, seeking a subject that would fittingly embody the science of aviation. He completed his masterpiece in 1913, and in time to display it at the great annual art exhibition, the Grand Salon at Paris.

His symbolic figure at once created attention. Thousands thronged to see his work, and admired. Yet, by some strange irony, in spite of all the acclaim it received no one came forward to purchase it, to make his own this finest work of the artist's life.

Wherein lies another amazing feature surrounding the fate of this monument which later was to be hailed by the great men of two nations; chance alone saved it, so that fifteen years later it should come forth to mark a great period in the history of flying upon that field where Lindbergh landed.

When the Grand Salon of 1913 came to an end the sculptor, Gustave Michel, disappointed at the failure of his work to sell after receiving the plaudits of the multitude, returned it to his studio. But he had much other work gathered here, for while he kept adding. So presently he found it necessary to move his masterpiece, "The Conquest of the Air," storage in the atelier of a Paris brasse firm, a second ironical stage in the statue's unusual history. And here in storage among hundreds of other objects it lay neglected. The thousands of people who had looked upon it at the 1913 Salon had passed as a great work forgot its existence. The sculptor, Gustave Michel, gave up hopes of ever realizing upon his work into which he had put so much labor and time and work. The years slipped away, and saddle age stole upon the statue's creator; then in 1924 came death, and so, like many other artists, he was robbed of knowing the eventual acknowledgment that his work was to win.

In 1926 in an endeavor to raise a little money for the widow of the sculptor a member of the storage firm approached Mr. Sidney Veit, president of the Paris chapter of the National Aeronautic Association of America, with pictures of the statue, suggesting the sale of this in America, the proceeds to go to the widow.

About this time the queer workings of fate brought to Robert Jackson, a business man of Concord, New Hampshire, He saw one of the pictures and purchased it. Yet at the moment no further thought came to him in the matter. He sailed away again to America. The picture was laid away; and in distant France the statue still slumbered, forgotten in storage.

Then came that day of May 21, 1927, when Lindbergh landed on the Bourget field.

When Mr. Robert Jackson read the cabled news an association of ideas turned his thoughts to the picture he had purchased when in Paris two years before. He hunted it up, studied it intently. As he did so there dawned upon him the brilliant idea which was to bring from obscurity a great work of art. Immediately Mr. Jackson cabled an offer to buy "The Conquest of the Air" and offer it to France as a tribute to Nungesser, Coli and Lindbergh. Permission to place the statue on the exact spot on Le Bourget field from which the French fliers had taken off was given by M. Painleve, Minister of War. A pedestal 12 feet high was designed by M. de Carrier and executed by M. Barbedienne. The dedication statement,

The donor who attempted and to him who accomplished, Nungesser, Coli and Lindbergh."

was by M. Flandin, former Minister of Aeronautics and president of the Aero Club de France.

The statue was unveiled by Miss Sarah Jackson, daughter of the donor, in his presence. The mother of Nungesser and some of the most representative men of France and the United States were present.

Few of those who attended this ceremony had knowledge of the queer inside story connected with the statue, the story within a story, known only to a few people in the Montparnasse quarter where artists used to gather to talk of an evening over a cafe table.

A JUDGE'S DILEMMA.

Sir Henry Hawkins Secured Mercy for Prisoner.

The distinguished judge, Sir Henry Hawkins, later Baron Brampton, was noted rather for severity than gentleness. But on one occasion, and that a difficult one, he managed very neatly to secure mercy for a prisoner, whom it seemed impossible to rescue from punishment.

The case is recalled by an American writer, who says that the man, already suffering imprisonment for some earlier offence, had tamed a mouse which visited his cell, and made a pet of it. A brutal warder, entering while he was playing with his tiny friend, deliberately stepped upon the little creature and killed it. Frantic with grief and at the cruel outrage, the prisoner caught up his dinner-knife and dashed at the warder, who only just escaped, the knife stabbing the door as it closed behind him.

Sir Henry Hawkins, as judge, wanted to get the unhappy man off; but the attempt at murder was obvious, and the law equally clear. Nevertheless, he was not nonplussed. In his charge to the jury he said:

"If a man tries to kill another in a way which is absurd, it becomes a foolish rather than a criminal act. If, for example, a man in London discharged a pistol to hurt a man in Edinburgh, we could only laugh at such an offence. So also when a man stabs an iron-plated door while another man is at the other side of it, we cannot take it seriously."

The jury were only too glad to follow such a lead, and promptly brought in a verdict of "Not guilty."

Doubtless the judge's legal—or illegal quibble—was bad law; but it made possible a mercy more just than a sentence more legally correct would have been.

INVENTOR OF SAXAPHONE.

World Owes to Him Most of Copper Instruments Used To-day.

Who put the "sax" in saxophone The responsible person was Adolphe Sax, a Belgian born in 1814.

From early childhood Sax's life was disastrous. He was knocked down flights of stairs, swallowed a pin, twice burned, accidentally drank vitriol mixed with water, was thrown some distance by an explosion of gunpowder, and was poisoned, besides nearly losing his life by asphyxiation and drowning.

However, Sax survived all these calamities, and started on a career bearing on the reform, or invention, of almost all wind and percussion musical instruments.

Meyerbeer, the famous composer, called him "the genius of copper and of sounding brass," but Sax had to struggle for forty-nine years against strong opposition by all the manufacturers of musical instruments, whose principles and science he so completely upset.

It was in 1842, while studying acoustics in Paris, that Sax made the discovery that led to the instrument that bears his name, for it was in the construction of the saxophone that he first applied the principles of acoustics he had discovered. The ring of the tone is determined by the shape given to the column of air by the proportions of the body of the instrument through which it passes.

The sound of the saxophone is not the result of an ordinary acoustic mechanism. The body of the instrument, shaped externally like a conical tube, takes in its interior a decidedly complex geometrical form, based on the properties of the parabola.

Adolphe Sax's constructive work was immense, and we owe to him most of the copper instruments used in orchestras to-day.

Dr. Allan Earl Is Found Dead

Dr. Allan Earl, surgeon, was found dead Thursday morning in bed at his home, 29 West Avenue South, Hamilton. Two brothers survive at Athens, Ont. Deceased was a graduate of Queen's University in 1913, and he practised for a time in Napanee, Ont., before going overseas. Later he took post graduate work in New York.

Sudden Passing.

The business men and citizens were shocked to learn on Tuesday morning of the sudden death of Mr. William Went. Mr. Went, who took up business here about a year ago, had made many warm friends. About four o'clock on Monday afternoon he was apparently in good health and was helping with some work at St. Andrew's Church, when he was suddenly seized, and never regained consciousness. A short service will be held in St. Andrew's Church to-day at 1.15 p.m., after which the remains will be taken to Orilla for burial.

ANGORA WOOL FARMING

Ti the Editor of Napanee Beaver,

Dear Sir,—I am often asked whether Angora wool farming is a profitable industry in this country. I am writing to give your readers information regarding the Angora rabbit.

The English and French realized long ago the extraordinary monetary returns that the Angora rabbit brings to its keeper, in return for a comparatively small amount of labor and capital.

These beautiful white rabbits are rapidly gaining favor in Canada, as they have in England and France. Angoras are very hardy, and can be kept in outdoor hutches in summer, but in winter the hutches should be placed in a building for protection, although no heat is necessary. They do equally as well if kept in a building the year round.

Angora wool is in great demand, and is manufactured into ladies' and children's garments and Angora yarn. A good Angora rabbit yields one pound of wool per year, and costs $1.50 a year to feed when everything is bought. The wool sells from $8.00 to $9.00 a pound. On some farms in England over 1,000 Angoras are kept. If you wish to pelt the Angora, you can get as much for the pelt as for the average chinchilla pelt. However, as the wool is more valuable, it is much more profitable to clip them year after year until they die of old age.

The wool is clipped or plucked when from two to three inches in length, although it will grow from ten to twelve inches long. Clipping takes place every two or three months, as the wool reaches the length desired by the mills, namely, from two to three inches in staple. After clipping, the rabbit doesn't need brushing for about a month. Then a brushing with a wire hair brush is necessary about once every ten days to prevent the wool from matting, although the wool seldom matts under three inches. When preparing a rabbit for exhibition it is necessary to groom it daily, as the wool must be long-for exhibition.

The Angora produces four litters a year, the average litter being seven in number, although sometimes there are as many as ten in a litter.

The hutches must be supplied with straw for bedding. Sawdust must also be placed in one or two corners of the hutch. Hutches need to be cleaned out once a week.

My advice to beginners is to get the best foundation stock possible, check that is pedigreed and from reliable breeders. The best is the cheapest in the end.

There is one outstanding advantage of wool farming over pelt farming. In the latter branch of farming the animals have to be slain to procure their pelts. With wool farming you have your wool, and your rabbit too.

Yours truly,
MRS. W. H. SPENCE,
Bath Road P.O., Kingston.

—Miss Nora Gleeson will have charge of the baby clinic during the month of August.

—Mr. and Mrs. Brown have moved into their new home on Bridge St., West, formerly occupied by Mr. White.

—The W. M. S. of Bay Circuit East, will meet at the home of Mrs. John Hellow, Wednesday afternoon, August 8th.

—The W. M. S. of Hay Bay and Bethany will meet at the home of Mrs. J. E. Robertson, on Wednesday, August 8th, at 2.30 p.m.

—The regular monthly meetings of the W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid of Morven, will be held at the home of Mrs. Mellow, Morven, on Friday, August 3rd, at 1.30 p.m. Come prepared for quilting.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Vincent, of Switzerville, wish through the columns of The Beaver to thank their many friends for the shower given them on Tuesday night, June 26th; also for the presents received since the shower. 31ap

—To sufferers of rheumatism, gout, sciatica and neuritis, and uric poisoning, I have a real remedy, certain in results, and quick relief. A harmless and drugless mineral remedy. Call or write MRS. W. M. HENDERSON Napanee, R.R. 1. 30-6tp

—Messrs. F. P. Smith & Son have taken over the old established Fire Insurance business of Harshaw & Son and D. L. Greene, recently held by A. T. Turnbull, and will conduct the same in future at the office in Harshaw Block, Dundas St. 29tf

—Next week the employees of The Beaver will take their annual holiday. The paper will not be issued, but the job department will be open for business, and any customer can get the usual satisfaction and quick delivery next week the same as at any other time.

—Springside Park, the beautiful site for Napanee's touring camp, has been the resting place for many a weary motorist during the past week. On Monday night, eleven cars were parked there and eleven tents were pitched. Napanee has reason to be proud of this addition to the town's accommodations, as many of the tourists praise the place heartily after spending a night there.

—A subscription list is being circulated for renting grounds and purchase of equipment for a children's play ground. Sponsored by the Mayor and other citizens, when sufficient funds have been subscribed, a meeting will be called to map out a plan to use the subscriptions to the best advantage. We are informed that one of our citizens is considering a donation of suitable grounds, which will be large enough to accommodate play ground equipment and large enough for soft ball games. Any person who would like to subscribe can do so at the Beaver Office.

In a few minutes' time the entire home can be freed of mosquitoes. With an improved FLY-TOX Hand Sprayer, spray FLY-TOX directly toward the ceiling, also on the draperies, in the closets and on the screens. It will not leave a stain on the most delicate of wallpapers, hangings, or fabrics. Spray upwards until all parts of the room are filled with the fine, atomized spray. Within a few minutes all the mosquitoes in the room will be dead, regardless of whether the windows and doors are open or closed. In addition to being stainless, FLY-TOX is fragrant, is absolutely harmless to people but sure death to all household insects. Every bottle guaranteed.—Adv.

146th BATTALION C. E. F. ATTENTION !

Slope Arms ! General Salute ! Present Arms ! Can you veterans of the old Battalion just imagine you hear the click of heels, and see the perfect slope, followed by a perfect present, with glittering bayonets in the sunlight on the plateau at Val Cartier? Do you recall our last march from our battalion parade ground to entrain for our trip across the pond, when 607 of us, I believe, marched away and left behind heart broken comrades whom the doctors turned down? Sure, you remember. Well, let's get together and have a re-union in Kingston or Napanee. Let's fight our old battle over again. Let's take this chance to tell that officer or N. C. O. just what we wanted to say many times to them. Here is what I would like you Veterans to do. Drop a post card to me, answering the following questions, and if at all possible I will put the question before the committee about a reunion. This done, we will make further announcements in The Napanee Beaver and the Whig Standard, as these two papers have offered their assistance to help to organize a reunion. The main question is where will we hold it ? So I ask you to answer the following questions and offer suggestions you can.

1. Where will we hold a re-union?
2. Will you contribute your share of funds for banquet, roughly to be under $2.00?
3. Would the last week in October suit you?
4. Will you try to inform a comrade and have him send in his name?

Give me the following information :—Regimental number. Company you belonged to and Platoon. Postoffice address.

Comrades, each letter sent in will be acknowledged, so answer right away, and as the letters arrive I will file them.

Address postcards or letters to me,
CAPT. H. LEROY BAKER,
"B" Frontenac Regt.,
Napanee Armouries,

DORLAND

On Thursday afternoon some thirty ladies, members of the Adolphustown and Sillsville Auxiliaries, gathered at the home of Mrs. John Magee and spent a very pleasant afternoon together. A programme of music, papers and readings was enjoyed. The Sunday School is holding a picnic as a treat for the children, in Dorland grove, on Wednesday, so the regular meeting of the W. M. S. is postponed until Thursday afternoon, when it will be held at the home of Mrs. A. W. Allison.—Miss Edith Foster has returned to her home in Ottawa, after spending three weeks among friends here.—The heavy showers on Friday and Saturday delayed grain cutting, but fall grain is ripe.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John A. Fraser.

There passed away on Friday, July 27th, 1928, at her late residence, Bridge St., Harriett Elizabeth Day, wife of the late John Andrew Fraser.

Mrs. Fraser was a daughter of Calvin Day, of Kingston, of U. E. Loyalist descent, and lived all her life in this vicinity. The deceased was widely known in Napanee, and her passing will be regretted by her many friends. She leaves to mourn, four children, Mrs. F. K. Schefel, Paris, Prance; Mrs. F. Holland, Napanee; Mrs. C. H. Bonnell, Rye, N.Y., and Mr. Andrew Fraser, New York City; and one surviving sister, Mrs. Wm. Washington, Bowmanville.

The funeral was held at her late residence, on Sunday afternoon.

OVER 1,000 BUFFALO FOR NORTHERN RESERVE

Further Movement from Wainwright, Alberta, to Wood Buffalo Park Early in June

—A further movement of between 1,000 and 1,100 yearling and two-year-old buffalo will be made from the Buffalo national park at Wainwright, Alberta, to Wood Buffalo park near Fort Smith, Northwest Territories, beginning the first week in June. An officer of the North West Territories and Yukon Branch of the Department of the Interior is at present in the west completing arrangements for the first train load of the 1928 shipment. The animals, which were segregated in corrals during the winter, will be placed in specially equipped cars at the siding at Wainwright. They will be shipped by rail to Waterways and then loaded on scows for the water journey to a point 11 miles south of Fitzgerald, where they will be released into the park. Weekly shipments will be made until this year's quota has been transported which will be some time early in July.

This year's movement will bring the total shipped to Wood Buffalo park to over 6,600 and the number of buffalo in the park to an estimated grand total of over 9,000. Wardens report that the buffalo placed in the park since the first movement in 1925 are making satisfactory progress.

Canada has donated a pair of live beavers to the Zoological Society of Scotland. These little animals, captured and conditioned in Jasper national park, were transported to Montreal and placed aboard the ss. Cairnisk when she cleared on May 16th. Their destination is the Zoological Gardens at Edinburgh.

The business men and citizens were shocked to learn on Tuesday morning of the sudden death of Mr. William Went. Mr. Went, who took up business here about a year ago, had made many warm friends. About four o'clock on Monday afternoon he was apparently in good health and was helping with some work at St. Andrew's Church, when he was suddenly seized, and never regained consciousness. A short service will be held in St. Andrew's Church on Wednesday at 1.30 p.m., after which the remains will be taken to Orilla for burial.

ANGORA WOOL FARMING

TI the Editor of Napanee Beaver.

Dear Sir.—I am often asked whether Angora wool farming is a profitable industry in this country. I am writing to give your readers information regarding the Angora rabbit.

The English and French realized long ago the extraordinary monetary returns that the Angora rabbit brings to its keeper, in return for a comparatively small amount of labor and capital.

These beautiful white rabbits are rapidly gaining favor in Canada, as they have in England and France. Angoras are very hardy, and can be kept in outdoor hutches in summer, but in winter the hutches should be placed in a building for protection, although no heat is necessary. They do equally as well if kept in a building the year round.

Angora wool's in great demand, and is manufactured into ladies' and children's garments and Angora yarn. A good Angora rabbit yields one pound of wool per year, and costs $1.50 a year to feed when everything is bought. The wool sells from $8.00 to $9.00 a pound. On some farms in England over 1,000 Angoras are kept. If you wish to pelt the Angora, you can get as much for the pelt as for the average chinchilla pelt. However, as the wool is more valuable, it is much more profitable to clip them year after year until they die of old age.

The wool is clipped or plucked when from two to three inches in length, although it will grow from ten to twelve inches long. Clipping takes place every two or three months, as the wool reaches the length desired by the mills, namely, from two to three inches in staple. After clipping, the rabbit doesn't need brushing for about a month. Then a brushing with a wire hair brush is necessary about once every ten days to prevent the wool from matting, although the wool seldom mats under three inches. When preparing a rabbit for exhibition it is necessary to groom it daily, as the wool must be long and exhibitable.

The Angora produces four litters a year, the average litter being seven in number, although sometimes there are as many as ten in a litter.

The hutches must be supplied with straw for bedding. Sawdust must also be placed in one or two corners of the hutch. Hutches need to be cleaned out once a week.

My advice to beginners is to get the best foundation stock possible, that is pedigreed and from reliable breeders. The best is the cheapest in the end.

There is one outstanding advantage of wool farming over pelt farming. In the latter branch of farming the animals have to be slain to procure their pelts. With wool farming you have your wool, and your rabbit too.

Yours truly.

Bath Road P.O., Kingston.

NO BEAVER NEXT WEEK

—Miss Nora Gleeson will have charge of the baby clinic during the month of August.

—Mr. and Mrs. Brown have moved into their new home on Bridge St., West, formerly occupied by Mr. Waite.

—The W. M. S. of Bay Shore East, will meet at the home of Mrs. John Mellow, Wednesday afternoon, August 8th.

—The W. M. S. of Hay Bay and Bethany will meet at the home of Mrs. J. E. Robertson, on Wednesday, August 8th, at 2.30 p.m.

—The regular monthly meetings of the W. M. S. and Ladies' Aid of Morven, will be held at the home of Mrs. George Clark, on Friday, August 3rd, at 3.0 p.m. Come prepared for quilting.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Vincent, of Switzerville, wish through the columns of The Beaver to thank their many friends for the shower given them on Tuesday night, June 26th; also for the presents received since the shower.

—To sufferers of rheumatism, gout, sciatica and neuritis, and uric poisoning, I have a real remedy, certain in results, and quick relief. A harmless and drugless mineral remedy. Call or write MRS. W. M. HENDERSON, Napanee, R.R. 1. 30-6tp

—Messrs. P. P. Smith & Son have taken over the old established insurance business of Harshaw & Son and D. L. Greene, recently held by A. T. Turnbull, and will conduct the same in future at the office in Harshaw Block, Dundas St. 29tf

—Next week the employees of The Beaver will take their annual holiday. The paper will not be issued, but the job department will be open for business, and any customer can get the usual satisfaction and quick delivery next week the same as at any other time.

—Springside Park, the beautiful site for Napanee's touring camp, has been the resting place for many a weary motorist during the past week. On Monday night, eleven cars were parked there and seven tents were pitched. Napanee has reason to be proud of this addition to the town's accommodations as many of the tourists make the place heartily after spending a night there.

—A subscription list is being circulated for renting grounds and purchase of equipment for a children's play ground. Sponsored by the Mayor and other citizens, when sufficient funds have been subscribed, a meeting will be called to map out a plan to use the subscriptions to the best advantage. We are informed that one of our citizens is considering a donation of suitable grounds, which will be large enough to accommodate play ground equipment and large enough for soft ball games. Any person who would like to subscribe can do so at the Beaver Office.

In a few minutes' time the entire home can be freed of mosquitoes. With an improved FLY-TOX Hand Sprayer, spray FLY-TOX directly toward the ceiling, also on the draperies, in the closets and on the screens. It will not leave a stain on the most delicate of wallpapers, hangings, or fabrics. Spray upwards until all parts of the room are filled with the finely atomized spray. Within a few minutes all the mosquitoes in the room will be dead, regardless of whether the windows and doors are open or closed. In addition to being stainless, FLY-TOX is fragrant, is absolutely harmless to people but sure death to all household insects. Every bottle guaranteed.—Adv.

146th BATTALION C. E. F. ATTENTION !

Slope Arms ! General Salute ! Present Arms ! Can you veterans of the old Battalion just imagine you hear the click of heels, and see the perfect slope, followed by a perfect present with glittering bayonets in the sunlight on the plateau at Val Cartier? Do you recall our last march from our battalion parade ground to entrain for us across the pond, when 607 of us, I believe, marched away and left behind heart broken comrades whom the doctors turned down? Sure, you remember. Well, let's get together and have a re-union in Kingston or Napanee. Let's fight our old battle over again. Let's take this chance to tell that officer or N. C. O. just what we wanted to say many times to them. Here is what I would like you Veterans to do. Drop a post card to me, answering the following questions, and if within a month I see that there is a good chance for a re-union, I will ask the chairman of our committee to call a meeting and will put the question before the committee about it. If our battalion parade ground to entrain for us across the pond, when 607 of us, I believe, marched away and left behind heart broken comrades whom the doctors turned down? Sure, you remember. If our union. This done, we will make further announcements in the Napanee Beaver and the Whig Standard, and these two papers have offered their assistance to help to organize again. The main question is where will we hold it? So I ask you to answer the following questions and offer any suggestions you can.

1. Where will we hold a re-union?
2. Will you contribute your share of funds for banquet, roughly to be about $2.00?
3. Would the last week in October suit you?
4. Will you try to inform a comrade and have him send in his name?

Give me the following information :—Regimental number, Company you belonged to and Platoon, Postoffice address.

Comrades, each letter sent in will be acknowledged, so answer right away, and as the letters arrive I will file them.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John A. Fraser.

There passed away on Friday, July 27th, 1928, at her late residence, Bridge St., Harriett Elizabeth Day, wife of the late John Andrew Fraser.

Mrs. Fraser was a daughter of Calvin Day, of Kingston, of U. E. Loyalist descent, and lived all her life in this vicinity. The deceased was widely known in Napanee, and her passing will be regretted by her many friends. She leaves to mourn, four children, Mrs. E. K. Schefel, Paris, France; Mrs. F. Holland, Napanee; Mrs. C. H. Bonnell, Rye, N.Y., and Mr. Andrew Fraser, New York City; and one surviving sister, Mrs. Wm. Washington, Bowmanville.

The funeral was held at her late residence, on Sunday afternoon.

OVER 1,000 BUFFALO FOR NORTHERN RESERVE

Further Movement from Wainwright, Alberta, to Wood Buffalo Park Early in June

A further movement of between 1,000 and 1,100 yearling and two-year-old buffalo will be made from the Buffalo national park at Wainwright, Alberta, to Wood Buffalo park near Fort Smith, Northwest Territories, beginning the first week in June. An officer of the North West Territories and Yukon Branch of the Department of the Interior is at present in the West completing arrangements for the first train load of the 1928 shipment. The animals, which will be transported in corrals during the winter, will be placed in specially equipped cars at the siding at Wainwright. They will be shipped by rail to Waterways and then loaded on scows for the water journey to a point 11 miles south of Fitzgerald, where they will be released into the park. Weekly shipments will be made until this year's quota has been transported which will be some time early in July.

This year's movement will bring the total shipped to Wood Buffalo park to over 6,600 and the number of buffalo in the park to an estimated grand total of over 9,000. Wardens report that the buffalo placed in the park since the first movement in 1925 are making satisfactory progress.

Canada has donated a pair of live beavers to the Zoological Society of Scotland. These little animals, captured and conditioned in Jasper national park, were transported to Montreal and placed aboard the ss. Cairnmore when she cleared on May 18th. Their destination is the Zoological Gardens at Edinburgh.

TAMWORTH PICNIC

On Wednesday, August 1st, our annual church picnic was held in Mr. J. Storrings' grove. Although the morning looked very discouraging there was a goodly number took dinner at the grove, and before the noon hour was over the crowd began to pour in. At two o'clock the Sports Committee thought it advisable to start the afternoon's fun. There certainly was a very enjoyable time with the sports, as the committee handled the affair so skillfully as to command the elders as well as the young people to take part, and before we knew it everyone was feeling the spirit that should accompany a United and Anglican Church picnic. Thanks to our Sports Committee.

And just here we must say that our Finance Committee is due considerable credit, as they collected a goodly sum of money for the winners of the different races. Although they were very liberal with the amount given to the winners, they still have a nice sum put away for next year.

Another very important feature of the day was the generosity of Mr. R. C. Moss, as he brought his motor boat and made innumerable trips across Beaver Lake, so that everyone who wished to go could enjoy a boat ride.

About the middle of the afternoon and we had a huge bon fire. While the brush was burning, all joined in singing community songs and hymns until about nine o'clock, when all dispersed to their several homes, feeling much better for the splendid day's outing.

YARKER

A very pretty wedding took place at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, August 4th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Amey, of Yarker, when their elder daughter, Helen Marguerite, was united in marriage to John Henry Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Wilson, of Enterprise, in the presence of their immediate relatives. The ceremony which was performed by the Rev. E. Farnsworth, took place under an arch of evergreens, ferns and flowers, the house being beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a pretty gown of ivory taffeta and georgette, her veil of embroidered tulle held in place by a bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried a lovely bouquet of pink roses, fern and baby's breath, and was unattended. After receiving the congratulations of their friends, a delicious lunch was served by six girl friends of the bride, after which the bride cut the wedding cake, and presented the wishbone with fancy favors of it. The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a motor trip around the Great Lakes, the bride travelling in a very pretty suit of rose georgette, the coat embroidered in rose, blue and black, with hat of rose and silver, and hose to match. She also wore a beautiful silver fur, the gift of the groom. Her bouquet which she threw from the balcony was caught by Miss Florence Huffman. The guests from a distance were: Miss Edith Yorke of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilson, Mr. Edmund Wilson, of Seattle, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Amey and Misses Gwenyth and Vivian, of Toronto. The many beautiful gifts which were received from the couple showed the high esteem in which they are held by their friends. On their return they will be at home to their friends at their home near Enterprise.

(For last week.)

Mr. and Mrs. Winters' daughters are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Winters.—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. NEW acceleration -like a shot from a gun . . .

. . due to greatly increased power and vital engineering advancements adding new brilliancy to McLaughlin Buick's VALVE-IN-HEAD Engine!

A THRILL — like a spirited thoroughbred that will let no other pass—the 1929 McLaughlin-Buick ushers in new and unrivalled power of acceleration.

Never was there an automobile so responsive, so mobile, so sensitively flexible. Never an automobile with such dash and spirit. Never an automobile so thrillingly alive to every desire and demand of the driver!

Increased bore and stroke in the world-famous valve-in-head engine—a tremendous increase in power—new and advanced manifold distribution—high pressure gas pump—all combine to produce accelerating abilities which will be the envy of other motorists.

Pick-up, getaway and top speed—a greater top speed than ever before—all are attained in the fewest possible seconds in the new, 1929 McLaughlin-Buick.

If you want the feeling of dash, power, swiftness—just look out over the mighty hood; and if you want to experience traffic mastery—just press the accelerator.

Drive it and you'll say, there never was a car like this great, new McLaughlin-Buick. It provides acceleration like a shot from a gun!

A SHORTENED BIBLE.

Being Produced Principally For the Benefit of Young People.

The plea for a shorter Bible made recently by Rev. Francis Wrisley, president of the Congregational Union, is partly answered by the announcement that such a work is now in the press.

Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, "Q." one of the editors of this new abridged Bible, which is being produced principally for the benefit of young readers, outlined the main changes effected in an interview. The chief features are:

Deletion of Numbers and Leviticus, containing the Mosaic Law.

A greatly abbreviated Book of Proverbs.

Abolition of numbered verses.

Insertion of parts of the apocrypha between the Old and New Testaments.

Central margin and references abolished.

"At the present moment," said Sir Arthur, "everything is done to make the Bible repellent. The pages are split into double columns, plastered down with headings with all kinds of cross readings, useful only as references or for preachers.

"The text is broken up into artificial verses, and, in fact, the Bible does not look like a book at all.

"People are not buying the Bible, and it is not a paying concern.

"I love the Bible as a book and as literature, but I think that if by alteration we can induce people to read it we shall be doing no harm, and will probably be encouraging the sale and reading of the full text.

"The Psalms have been printed like vers libre as in the revised version. Job, of course, remains, while as regards Isaiah, we have retained the poetical sections, the historical matter being merged with Kings.

"In dealing with the New Testament we have deleted some of the more sophisticated passages of St. Paul and have endeavored to prevent too great a repetition in the gospels."

This new abridged Bible, the third to be produced by the Cambridge University Press, is intended for adolescents. The two earlier versions were the Little Children's Bible and the Children's Bible.

Timothy Pollen Causes Hay Fever.

Many thousands of hay fever victims are awaiting its attack with dread. To a London Mail reporter a west-end specialist said:

Hay fever is caused by the pollen from certain grasses, which sets up inflammation in the nose, throat and eye. The most dangerous grass is timothy. Unfortunately, this is a popular grass and is grown every year.

The most successful treatment is with a vaccine made of grass pollen. It is most effective if the patient is treated some weeks before he becomes affected.

Garglin; with a weak solution of salt water and a nasal douche relieve the inflammation.

Timothy is a familiar grass, growing tall and having long, cylindrical spikes from which the seeds are detached, as they ripen. It is grown extensively for hay.

Monkey Tricks.

The passengers of a steamship travelling from Central America to New York were amazed to see about forty monkeys, followed closely by a many parrots, swarming from a hatchway.

Few ship captains can have had a more amusing experience. His troubles began when he embarked 42 monkeys, 657 parrakeets, 252 parrots, 98 finches, 24 flamingoes, 14 ducks, and 22 sloths.

One of the monkeys, it is said, wiggled from his cage and released his fellows, who, in turn, set the parrots free. The birds were soon caught, but the monkeys swarmed up wireless masts, over ventilators, boat decks, chairs, nervous tourists, and ship's officers. They were, in fact, everywhere. It was not until the last day of the voyage that the last monkey was caught and put back safely in his cage.

The Newfoundland Dog.

What is known as the Newfoundland dog is really a cross between the Pyrenees sheep dog brought to Newfoundland by Biscay fishermen between 1503 and 1662. These dogs were moderately large with flat coats of a creamy white color, and with woolly undercoats that made them capable of resisting the vigorous climate of the Pyrenees.

This made them also suitable for the climate of their adopted country.

On the other side the Newfoundland dog was derived from the curly-coated retrievers, black dogs of medium size that were brought to the island by the earliest English settlers. Out of the cross between these two types has been established the Newfoundland dog.

Western Cedar Only In B.C.

The range of the Western cedar in Canada is confined to the province of British Columbia. Most shingles are made from the Western cedar than from any other species. Over 2,500,000,000 were cut in Canada from this tree in 1926. In addition over 130,000,000 board feet of lumber, 10,000,000 laths, and an immense number of poles and posts were produced from it in the same year.

A Quaint Epitaph.

What is believed to be the only epitaph in existence which refers to umbrellas, is to be found in Bellbroughton churchyard, in Worcestershire, England:

An honest fellow here is laid,
His debts in full he always paid,
But what is more strange,
The neighbors tell us,
He brought back borrowed umbellas.

Rheumatism Prefers Blondes.

Rheumatic heart disease is said to occur more frequently among fair-haired people than among those of dark complexions.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Trouble That Usually Attacks Young Children

St. Vitus dance is the name generally given to a disease described by medical men as chorae. This trouble usually attacks young children, though older people may be afflicted with it. The most common symptoms are a twitching of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses the twitching takes the form of spasms, in which the jerking motion may be confined to the face or all the limbs may be affected. Frequently the patient is unable to hold anything in the hands or walk steadily. In severe cases the speech is often affected. The disease is due to debility of the nerves and relief comes through an enriched blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been most successful in reaching this trouble through their specific action on the blood, which it enriches and purifies. The following instance proves the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in this trouble. Mrs. Thomas Bowen, Bath, Ont., says:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been in use in my family for years and always with good results. I believe they saved the life of my only son. At ten years of age he grew very nervous and the trouble developed into St. Vitus dance. His legs and arms would jerk and twitch, then his speech was affected, and his condition was pitiable. Just then there came to me a little book telling of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to give them to him. By the time two boxes were used there was an improvement in his condition and by the time six boxes more were taken all traces of the trouble had disappeared, and he was well and strong. I have also given the pills to my growing girls, and I know of no better strengthening medicine. I may add that the same applies to grown-ups as well."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ODESSA

The many friends of Byron Caton were sorry to hear that he passed away very suddenly last Tuesday morning, at his home in Toronto. The deceased was born near here and the greater part of his life was spent on the Caton homestead. He moved to Toronto a few years ago. To mourn his loss besides the widow, are one son, Walter, living in the West, and one daughter, Mrs. Farrow, Toronto. The remains were interred in Wilton cemetery last Friday afternoon. Besides the family who accompanied the body, there were many relatives and friends from here. Much sympathy is offered the bereaved family in their great loss.

Mrs. Thomas Storey, who suffered a stroke about three weeks ago, passed peacefully away last Wednesday night. The deceased had been a resident of the village nearly a year, and had made many friends who regret very much her passing. The funeral was held from her late home on Ferguson Avenue, Saturday afternoon, with a large attendance, Rev. S. Dixon, of Bath, conducted the services, and interment took place in Napanee cemetery. To mourn her loss, besides her husband, is one son, who resides at Morven.

Thomas Johnson, of New York, and Frank Marsh, Napanee, called on friends last Tuesday.

Miss Beryl Jones, of Kingston, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. William Conway, of New York, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Roy Graham.

Mrs. S. Winter and granddaughter, Miss Ruth Winter, Yarker, spent Thursday with the former's sister, Mrs. James Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. McGowan, of Kingston, and daughter, Mrs. Macaron, New York, spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Snider.—Wohl Bond, Detroit, is holidaying with his brother, Sherman Bond.

Mr. and Mrs. H. White and sons, Arthur and Fred, and daughter, Miss Velma, Shelbourne, visited their daughter, Mrs. Stanley Snider, en route to Montreal.

Mrs. Tagg, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Frink, has returned to her home in Rochester. She was accompanied by her niece, Miss Thelma Frink.

Mrs. Arthur Briden, of Minnesapolis, and Mrs. Howie, North Dakota, who have been visiting their parents, Mrs. Ralph Benjamin, left Tuesday for their respective homes.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Topliff, accompanied by Miss Gladys Topliff, Pickering, left Tuesday for a motor trip to visit relatives in Flesherton and Meaford, on Georgian Bay.

Mrs. Frank Hillier and son, Bruce, have returned from spending the past month in Toronto, where Bruce has received treatment for his limb.

Miss Eunice Shaw has returned from spending a few days with relatives in Kingston.

Mrs. Prosser, who has been spending the past month the guest of Mrs. Henry Allen, returned to her home in Montreal, last Saturday.

Sherman Bond is building a tourist camp near his residence on Main St.

WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS BANK.

Curious Privileges Attached to "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street."

That the Bank of England, which is to take over the responsibility for the currency supply of the whole kingdom, occupies a unique position is no news to the man in the street; he is justly proud of the institution and its power in the financial councils of the world, says Tit-Bits.

But he is probably unaware of some curious privileges that attach to the famous "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street."

If, for instance, he has ever asked his own banker for a bank draft in the ordinary form, that payable, for convenience, to "bearer," the expression of horror that appears on the cashier's face will inform him of some gross faux pas. Such a document would in fact be virtually a banknote, and therefore an infringement under all sorts of dire penalties of the Bank of England's monopoly.

Apart from such technical matters, however, the "Old Lady" breaks out in quite unexpected directions. She has her own guard of soldiers, whose nightly march from barracks is one of the minor sights of London.

Each man gets a shilling pay from the directors, N.C.O.'s half a crown. The officer in charge is provided with an excellent dinner by the bank, including, by ancient rule, two bottles of wine, but only one extra bottle for the two guests he is privileged to invite.

So far all is in keeping with the traditional dignity of the bank. But it could turn to the most romantic occupation of running a brewery if it wished. By the original Charter of 1694 the bank is permitted to brew beer not merely for staff consumption, but for public sale without license. Or it might, as an alternative, turn to pawnbroking, which the terms of the Charter are wide enough to cover.

ASBESTOS.

Only Mineral That Can Be Woven Into Fireproof Garments.

Asbestos is the only mineral that can be woven into fireproof garments and moulded into instruments impervious to flame.

With asbestos armor and tools men can fight even a flaming oil-well. The messenger dogs of forest rangers in California are clad in asbestos coats to defy timber fires. The material, fibrous and crystalline, elastic and brittle, heavy as rock in its crude state, yet as light as thistle-down when treated mechanically, is also endowed with a vast and enormous pressure of volcanic fires and earth adjustment, apparently without alteration.

Changes in temperature cannot make it expand or contract. Since the earth was in the infancy of these veins of silky fibres have survived when the turbulent rock has worn or melted away.

Some believe that those who survived Nebuchadnezzar's fiery furnace were clad in asbestos, while ancient writers tell of a "stone carded and woven in forest handkerchiefs," the fabrics "cleansed by casting them into the fire."

Gas-burners, iron-holders, mats and stands, and asbestos composition floors are but a few of the modern conveniences made from this mineral curiosity.

Relic of Roman Era.

Among the interesting curios to be found in the museum at Oxford, England, is a huge stone sack. It is carved as though fresh from a man's hand. It has the mark of a rope which once encircled it in two places, and has the usual puckers at the mouth, where the string once secured the opening. All over the stone can be seen the marks of the coarse sacking which once covered it. Its history is curious. Some years ago it was fished up in the Thames below London Bridge, where it must have lain for centuries. Some workmen in the time of the Romans were driving this sack of cement from a boat to the shore, when the burden slipped from his shoulders into the water. There, under the action of the water, it became solid, and as years passed away, the sack at last rotted off, leaving only the hardened cement within.

Giant Wistaia.

An enormous specimen of Chinese wistaria in Sierra Madre, California, is said to cover an area of two acres. Planted thirty-five years ago, it has never been pruned and still maintains the deep violet color of its blooms. After the branches had encircled the owner's house, they were allowed to circle through the surrounding trees.

Every year the 5,000 people of Sierra Madre hold a fete under its branches, while 50,000 people in one season are said to have visited it while in bloom.

Busiest Spot In London.

A twelve-hours' enumeration of vehicles passing different points in London on a fine day showed that traffic is heaviest at Hyde Park corner. This is one of the many interesting facts that emerge from a bewildering accumulation of statistical data compiled by the London County Council.

A total of 55,441 vehicles passed Hyde Park corner on the day chosen for the traffic census. Trafalgar Square and Marble Arch come next on the list, and Piccadilly Circus was fourth with a total of 39,476.

Talc Deposits of Madoc.

For over twenty years deposits of superfine white talc have been worked in the Madoc district, Hastings county, Ontario, which still leads in the output of talc produced in Canada. The Madoc talc is ground in local mills, and is used in the talcum powder, paper, textile, soap, and rubber industries.

ANNOUNCING A REMARKABLE NEW BUILDING MATERIAL

INSUL-BOARD

(INSULATING BOARD)

A Board that shuts out cold. Stops heat. Deadens sound. An extraordinary building and insulating Board designed to make home interiors more comfortable, more restful and more healthful the whole year through. An All-Canadian Board, made in Canada from the products of Canada's Forests.

INSUL-BOARD meets the need for a stouter and more permanent material for wall and ceiling insulation. Its greater structural strength has been proven under critical tests by Canada's leading engineers. It makes the walls more rigid, more enduring, more capable of resisting severe strain and stress.

INSUL-BOARD insulates completely, producing a sure and lasting shield against winter's cold and summer's heat, sealing the home interior tight against all atmospheric discomfort.

"HOME, SWEET HOME."

An Incident That Happened at the Front.

It is nearly a hundred years since "Home, Sweet Home" was written, but its popularity is still world-wide, and wherever the English language is spoken it is known and loved. Its fame is because it appeals to that deep-seated instinct in humanity which is the basis of human life. The author was John Payne (1792-1852), actor and playwright. He was a native of New York, but from 1813 to 1832 he resided in London. Throughout his life Payne had a deep affection for his native land, his friends and family. His letters frequently allude to his longing for the society of those he loved, and his appreciation of home and domestic life. For most of his days he was a stranger in a strange land, and it was not till thirty years after his death at Tunis that his remains were buried "at home."

A Scottish minister was recently speaking at a gathering on "The love of home," when he related an incident that happened at the Front which brought the dear home very forcibly to one. He mentioned this in a letter received from France the writer stating that a number of officers belonging to a Scottish regiment, when in their billets behind the firing line, had invited, amongst others, an Australian officer to have dinner with them. The party were on, and they were sitting round a wood fire with candles as the illuminant, when the Australian officer remarked: "Would you Scotsmen like to know why we have come all the way from Australia to fight along with you?" Naturally, the Scots answered that they would like to know. The Australians, who was a mandolin player, and had brought his instrument with him in order to entertain the party, remarked: "Then I will tell you how it is." Stepping forward, he blew out the lighted candles one after the other until nothing lighted the room but the wood fire. The Australian then sat down in a shaded corner, picked up his mandolin, and played "Home, Sweet Home." The incident greatly touched the officers.

Seats of the Mighty.

The American who shook hands with the effigy of a royal princess at Madame Tussaud's the other day and found the wax hand come away in his own is an example of the unconquerable "boyishness" of his nation, says London Answers. There is the same "small boy" touch in the boast of another transatlantic visitor that he entered Buckingham Palace, wandered about at will, and obtained glimpses of the private apartments.

It was "bad form," certainly—but it is not only Americans who like to peep at the "seats of the mighty," or even to sit in them. The latter temptation once proved too strong for a workman, who, during repair work in the palace, sat down at the royal writing-desk, and started to write on "Buckingham Palace" notepaper.

He was discovered by King Edward, who took up the unfinished sheet and read: "Dear Mother,—Have had a narrow escape with this notepaper."

But no one in modern times has been quite so irreverent as the eighteenth century schoolboys who carved their initials all over the Coronation Chair in Westminster Abbey.

The Order of the Bath.

The first of the English orders of knighthood is the Order of the Bath, which is supposed to date to the period of the ancient Franks, and to have been introduced into England by the Saxons. The order as at present constituted was instituted by George I., who revived it 1388 years ago, May 25, 1725, and fixed the number of knights at thirty-seven. In 1815 the Prince Regent, afterward George IV., greatly increased the membership, and on May 25, 1847, new statutes were decreed, by which the order, hitherto confined to military, was opened to civilians.

The Order of the Bath gained its name from the fact that the ancient Franks and Saxons made bathing an important part of the rites connected with the creation of knights. The order was not formally constituted until 1339.

Bad Bird's Broadcast.

Wireless listeners in Australia got a shock recently when they turned in to hear "the greatest talking parrot in Australia," which had been announced by the broadcasting officials had not inquired too carefully into the bird's training, and listeners were compelled to hear a string of violent oaths.

The owner, who was in the studio, grabbed the bird by the throat and held it until it seemed to have quietened down. Then he released it for another effort, but the bird swore even more volubly.

The officials closed down the item and apologized to the listeners for the bird's bad behaviour.

Handy Boys at Eton.

Writing desks and boots are among the useful articles turned out by the boys at Eton in the school workshops. A short time ago they made a motor-car which has been driven to Edinburgh.

There was not time to paint the car before the holidays, and so it was put on the road unpainted. Some of the boys have almost completed a hydroplane, in which they hope to cross to Ireland.

Farrington Girls' School.

The Queen's initials are to appear on a crest for what is believed to be the first time. Farrington Girls' School, Chislehurst, Kent, England, in changing from a limited company into an association, was granted a coat of arms by the College of Heralds, and the Queen approved that her initials, "M.R.," in gold on the royal ermine, should be included.

Agricultural Workers in England.

Out of 734,900 agricultural workers in England and Wales, 104,656 are women and girls.

Jack—So she turned you down, eh? George—Yes, I always was unlucky in love. Why, if I had been Adam, I'll bet Eve would have remained an old maid.

—Victorian Order Nurse, Miss Lillian Lawder, residence Miss McGreer, Bridge street. Telephone 448. tf

"How did you get on when you were had up for speeding?"

"Well, I tried to be nice to the magistrate. I said, 'Good morning. How are you today.'"

"What did he say?"

"Fine. Forty shillings."

WOMANHOOD OF SPAIN

LIVES RESTRICTED LIFE OF THE EAST.

Young Girl May Not Leave Home Unaccompanied by a Duenna—Married Woman Must Be Accompanied by Husband or Friend.

To-day, over 400 years after the expulsion of the Moors, Spain is still an Oriental country. The East lives in the blood and traditions of the people, writes Hamilton Kerr in the London Daily Mail. Whoever hears Mass chanted in the Cathedral of Toledo readily fancies himself in the mosques of Cairo; for the choristers sing with the high-pitched nasal tones of the Arabs. The gypsy dancers who dance in the caves of the Albaicin, the ancient Moorish quarter of Granada, move with the same sinuous hip movements as the dancers of the Ouled Nail upon the outskirts of the Sahara. Music, architecture, and place-names tell the same story.

But in no phase of life does the Oriental persist more strongly than in the treatment of women. The Spanish woman is not, as popularly imagined a beautiful Carmen, serenaded continually by the most dashing "torero" of Andalusia. She lives the restricted life of the woman of the East. Of course, this statement is not so widely true of the cosmopolitan woman of Madrid. The life of the great European capitals is everywhere much the same. But of the rest of Spain, and especially of the south, it is essentially true.

A young girl may not leave the house unaccompanied by a duenna. She must not speak to, or look at a man. When her family sees a young man whom they consider suitable he is allowed to go and call on the girl. Her parents or the duenna always sit in the same room as the couple. Even when the girl is engaged she is never allowed to be one moment alone with her fiance unless carefully guarded.

If you walk at night through the streets of a city of Southern Spain, such as Granada, Cordoba, or Seville, you will see young men whispering through the heavy iron grilles of darkened windows to girls on the farther side. Even then, a duenna is probably watching and listening.

Once a girl is married she may go nowhere without her husband or unaccompanied by a woman friend. An Englishwoman was driving the other day with a Spanish married woman in the "Retiro," the Hyde Park of Madrid. A Spaniard whom she had met some days before passed in another carriage. "Look, there is Senor X——. Don't you think he is good-looking?" the Englishwoman said. "I must not look," the other replied; "it is against etiquette."

How does the Spanish woman of good family spend her day? She rises before eight o'clock every morning and attends Mass. After that she returns to breakfast and spends the rest of her day doing embroidery or receiving her women friends. Often a friend will read some book, and several women work upon a piece of needlework.

In Seville the chief recreation of the day for women and other families is to drive in the Paseo de las Delicias in the cool of the evening. It is then that the gorgeous liveries of the Duke of Alba, the Duke of Medinaceli, and other of the Spanish nobility may be seen, as their carriages pass down the avenue of palm trees festooned in roses, for the gardens of Maria Luisa are among the most exotic and beautiful in the world.

The rules applying to a Spanish woman become even stricter when her husband dies. She must not leave the house for three months, and she must remain in mourning for three years. An Englishwoman married to a Spanish scatabrister had servants recently by walking in her garden the day after her husband's death. "She is a heartless wretch," they said. Often the front door of the house is draped with black cloth for a year or more.

In Spain the family is a great link. A Spanish girl recently left for America, and her family, some twenty people in all, journeyed from Burgos, in Northern Spain, to Seville to bid her good-bye, although they had last seen her a fortnight before. And this incident is not an exception.

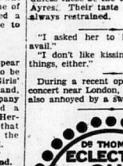
This family spirit, however, has its disadvantages. Some years ago there was a well-known dancer, called Dora la Cordobesita, who delighted all Southern Spain by her dancing. She was the idol of Seville. Had she lived in any other country she would now have been a rich woman, but she was compelled by Spanish custom to share out all her earnings among her relatives. Every night, when the performance was finished at the theatre, some ten or twelve of her relations escorted her home. Of course, she was never allowed to speak to any man.

The Spanish women of strict family are thus allowed few recreations besides embroidery and a little discreet reading. Perhaps that is why they give so much time and careful thought to their dress. The upper-class women of Madrid are perhaps the best-dressed women in the world, unless those be the women of Buenos Ayres. Their taste is infallible and always restrained.

"I asked her to kiss me without avail."

"I don't like kissing through those things, either."

During a recent open-air jazz band concert near London, the audience was also annoyed by a swarm of gnats.



OUT OF THE DEEP!

Finds Range From a Mastodon's Trunk to a Bottle of Beer.

A Georgian, the art treasures which have left the Old Country for America is a beautiful solid silver vase—a unique specimen of French fifteenth century work. It was found in the net of a Brixham trawler, and the skipper kept it as a curiosity. A visitor, a trifle wiser, offered him a sovereign for it, and the offer was accepted, much to the subsequent profit of the buyer.

The floor of the sea — the North Sea especially—is littered with thousands of objects, and the trawl nets, as they are dragged slowly along the bottom, gather not only fish, but a motley assortment of rubbish — old anchors, bits of wreckage, bones, lumps of coal, and the like. There is also always the possibility that among the mass of squirming, flopping fish there will be something of value.

Two years ago a small sack was brought up in the net of an east coast trawler. The skipper made a marks when he saw it had torn the net, but when it hauled and a thousand half-crowns spilled themselves among the fish he "cussed" no more. As he and his crew were on shares terms, the trip was a profitable one for all.

In 1912 a Lowestoft trawler brought up, with difficulty, what turned out to be the tusk of a mastodon. It was purchased by the curator of a museum for £7.

Another, unless modern, have only an old iron value, but the Dogger Bank has yielded two small silver ones. They would have been pitched overboard if a lad hadn't had the inspiration to scrape one with his knife and reveal the silver. Experts think they were once part of the decorative work on the bows of a Spanish ship.

An old fisherman told the writer that, suddenly resolving to smoke no more, he flung his pipe overboard. A year later it came up in the net, and in it was an old fourpenny-bit.

It would seem absurd to ask trawlers to look out for anything lost overboard in such a place as the North Sea, but a Freemason who had dropped his overboard an attache-case containing his regalia did so. And it was found!

An appropriate find was when the skipper of a trawler wiped his perspiring forehead and remarked: "I could do with a bottle of beer!"

He was promptly handed one by the mate. It had just tumbled out of the net, as if in answer to his wish.

MOST DISARMED COUNTRY.

Militarism Stand of Canada Praised by Lieutenant-Colonel.

Canada, by her refusal to build armaments and by her example of the part played by Canadians, has done much to destroy the spirit of militarism, said Lieut.-Col. John H. MacDonald, D.C.L., professor of church history at Acadia University, in speaking on the subject of "Militarism" in Toronto recently.

Lieut.-Col. MacDonald told the audience that the term "Militarism" has undergone great changes in connotation.

"No longer does it refer to the swaggering arrogance of the professional soldier, but to the spirit of any one who imposes his will upon other national channels. It now refers to the politician and the commercial magnate, as well as to the soldier for his own purposes."

The speaker stated that in his opinion disarmament and the work of the League of Nations would be of no avail until there is disarmament of the heart. Peace is the fruit of righteousness and in the killing of militarism the church must lead the way.

Canada is meeting the challenge to peace in her every noble way. "For the benefit of our visitors I wish to say that the permanent Canadian army numbers only 3,500 officers and men. One-half the number of deleates at this congress. The Canadian navy, the 'tin teapot' navy consists of two cruisers and two mine sweepers. You are in the most disarmed country in the world to-day," he stated.

The Harp of Ireland.

In the "Gold Room" at Trinity College, Dublin, rests the "Harp of Ireland" that sought vainly "under Tara's halls." The story is that "after Brian Boru was killed at the battle of Clontarf, this harp was given to Pope Alexander II. It remained in the Vatican for nearly 500 years, and was given, in 1521, to Henry VIII. in recognition of his defence of the Sacraments. Twenty years later Henry VIII. gave the harp to the Earl of Clanricarde, and it was handed down until it came into the possession of a Limerick antiquary. Archaeologists—however, say the harp is not older than the fourteenth century.

A British "Jackie."

A five-year-old British boy who has just begun work in a British film studio is believed to be successor to Jackie Coogan, who is now growing too big to play the part's in which he used to do so delightfully. He is Michael Stanley, a distant relative of Lord Derby. Michael's father is Captain E. A. V. Stanley, of the National Greyhound Racing Club, who, with his wife, is also well known in hunting and racing circles.

7,000 Miles Conversation.

Mr. L. S. Amery, Secretary for the Dominions, and his Under-Secretary, Major W. Ormsby-Gore, recently carried on a telephone conversation between London and Java, a distance of 7,000 miles. They heard each other distinctly.

Grow While Asleep.

A doctor says that the growth of children takes place entirely when they are asleep.

Hearing.

Hearing, as a rule, is more acute with the right ear than with the left.

"Girls who kiss men too often are apt to leave a false impression," says a writer. Especially if they use lipsticks.

Announcing the NEW UTILITY TRUCK
-another Sensational Chevrolet Value
4 Speeds Forward • 4 Wheel Brakes

NOW Chevrolet presents the New Utility Truck—a low-priced haulage unit embodying every feature of advanced engineering developed through years of experience in commercial car-building and proved by exhaustive testing on the General Motors proving ground!

Typical of the progressive design embodied in this sensational new truck are a four-speed forward transmission, powerful non-locking four-wheel brakes, full ball-bearing steering mechanism, front shock absorber springs, air-bound seat cushions and channel iron bumper. In addition, it offers all those basic features which have been so largely instrumental in Chevrolet's tremendous success as the world's largest builder of trucks—rugged rear axle with one-piece banjo housing . . . semi-elliptic springs set parallel to the load . . . completely enclosed valve-in-head motor with air cleaner, oil filter and positive action vane type oil pump . . . thermostatic control of water circulation . . . low loading height . . . generous road clearance and countless other features of comparable importance.

Visit your Chevrolet dealer and get a trial-load demonstration of this remarkable new truck! It has been developed to meet the modern conditions of business transportation and body types are available for every type of business. C-4-A-1SEC

BATH

(For last week).

Miss Gladys Toplff, of Pickering, was the recent guest of Mrs. Fred Amey.—Mr. Clarence Young, of the staff of the Bank of Montreal, Lunenburg, N.S., has spent his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Young. —Rev. H. Workman, a former pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, has been visiting at Mrs. Workman's father's, Mr. Frank Collins, and occupied the pulpit of the United Church one Sunday evening. He is now pastor at Blenheim, Ont.—Rev. A. L. McTear, of Wellington, spent a few days recently with his daughters at Cedar Nook camp.—Miss Thelma Shephard has been visiting friends in Watertown, N.Y. — Congratulations are extended to Charles Young and Anna McNeil, who were successful in passing their examinations at Peterboro' Normal School.—Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar and family, of Detroit, Mich., who have been spending several days at George Stevenson's, have returned home. — Miss Dorothy Osborne, nurse-in-training at Kingston General Hospital, is spending her vacation with her parents here.—The interior of the Public Library has been recently redecorated. —Mrs. Cornwall and son, of Buffalo, are occupying their cottage for the summer months.—The barn belonging to the Rectory of St. John's Church was totally destroyed by fire at about 10 o'clock on Saturday night. On account of the unfavorable wind the residences of Edward Wemp and Chas. Young were in danger, but were finally saved. In the barn were three cars. Rev. Mr. Swayne lost his Pontiac. Mr. Ernest Young a Chrysler, and Mr. Allan Swayne, of Carleton Place, who had just arrived home, his Essex car. The building was only insured for a fraction of its value, and only the first two cars mentioned had any insurance upon them.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellar and family, of Buffalo, N.Y., spent a few days at Geo. Stevenson's.—Mrs. McBride and daughter, of Valleyfield, Que., are visiting friends here. — Mrs. Thomlinson and son, of Toronto, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Cuppage.—Jack Roberts and a party of friends motored to Toronto on Saturday on business.—On July 23rd another highly respected resident of the village, in the person of Miss Ruth Davy, passed away, after a few weeks' illness. Owing to her activity and her participation in church and social affairs she will be greatly missed. The funeral service was held in St. John's Church at 2 p.m., on the Thursday following, Rev. W. G. Swayne officiating. Miss Davy was a life-long member of St. John's Church. The remains were interred in St. John's cemetery. To mourn her loss she leaves one brother, Albert; three sisters, Mrs. Macnee, Mrs. Johnson, of Napanee, and Miss Henrietta, at home; also several nieces and nephews.

A Word About Eatonia Shoes for Men

Absorbing Increased Costs

In spite of very considerable advances in the price of leather, Eatonia Men's Shoes are to-day selling at the same price—$5.00. This becomes a remarkable record when one considers that the same high standard of materials and workmanship has prevailed throughout. In addition, new styles and further widths have been added during this period, at extra cost to the Store, but at no additional cost to C. D. S. customers.

It is just one illustration of the way in which the Eatonia label continually protects you in your daily shopping and offers you the advantages of immense buying facilities that command large quantities of goods at very favorable terms. Such volume buying ensures a good standard of materials and workmanship without any addition to Eatonia prices, in the face of rising prices on raw materials.

Also, it is another reason why we unhesitatingly recommend Eatonia merchandise to you as "the best day-in, day-out value that you are likely to find."

Rev. I. N. Beckstead left this week to spend his holidays at MacDonald College, P.Q., Montreal and Chesterville.—Miss Grace Beckstead returned on Monday from a visit in Belleville.—The annual Sunday School picnic of the Anglican and United Churches was held on Wednesday at Storrings' Grove. The weather turned out most favorably, and those present pronounced it one of the best picnics held so far. After dinner, sports and races occupied some time. Mr. Moss added much to the enjoyment of the scholars by taking them out in his motor boat. In the evening, those who were able to remain enjoyed a camp fire and sing song.—Mrs. Jackson has left to spend the summer at Gore Bay.—The Women's Institute held their July meeting last Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. Lockridge's camp, Beaver Lake. The President, Miss H. Reid, presided. The meeting opened with all joining in the Institute Ode and Creed. The members were reminded that the District Institute were to have a booth at Centreville Fair, at which aprons and flowers were to be exhibited. The subject for the day was taken by Mrs. Beckstead, being "What a Woman Should Know About Law, and Some of the Laws Which Affect Us as Women." After the meeting, refreshments were served and a pleasant hour or so spent socially.

Opportunities in the Mines

Many mining stocks have now been depressed far below their intrinsic value, and to the investor with faith in the future of this country, some wonderful opportunities exist today.

From an investment standpoint some of them with an assured long and profitable future, show a splendid yield with excellent chances for appreciation in market value.

For those inclined to the more speculative variety, there are a great many mines that appear to be certainly headed towards great success.

The wise investor who takes advantage of these opportunities, while the stocks are still depressed, will have reason to be proud of his good judgment later on.

With our string of offices throughout the mining areas we are in a position to give you the latest reliable news.

New Beauty · New Luxury
New Performance · nowhere equalled . .

NEW Masterpiece Bodies by Fisher endow these new McLaughlin-Buick creations with a measure of style, individuality and dashing beauty unapproached by any other automobile.

Gorgeous new colors and wonderful new upholsteries lend an added touch of luxury. New adjustable front seats and wider rear seats provide unequalled driving —and riding comfort.

Increased bore and stroke—greater piston displacement —improved carburetion and other advancements in McLaughlin-Buick's famous valve-in-head six-cylinder engine—give tremendous new power to what was already the most powerful automobile engine of its size in the world.

The same great developments impart thrilling new pick-up, lightning acceleration and new top speed that few drivers will care to attain.

Other features include new high-pressure gas pump—handsome new radiator design—new chrome-plated head-lamps and cowl-lamps—new type instrument board—as well as many additional appointments of luxury and convenience.

The 1929 McLaughlin-Buick is an epic car marking the supreme achievement of automobile engineering.

THE ROYAL SCOTS GREYS

ONLY DISTINCTIVELY SCOTTISH CAVALRY REGIMENT.

Was Formed to Hunt Covenanters During Religious Troubles In Scotland—Took Part In the Battle of Balaclava.

The Royal Scots Greys celebrated their 254th anniversary during the latter part of June, writes D. A. Oswald in the Glasgow Weekly Herald, having been formed in 1678.

The history of the Scots Greys, which survive as the only distinctively Scottish cavalry regiment, may be said to be the history of the evolution of the British army. The regiment dates its origin from the religious reign of Charles II., when, owing to the growing opposition of the persecuted Covenanters, the Scottish Government found it advisable to increase its military establishment.

Accordingly, in 1678, three independent troops of Dragoons were raised for the regular army, to which three more troops were added in 1681, when the six were incorporated as the 2nd Regiment of Dragoons, known to all the world as the Scots Greys. Their first colonel was the original commanding officer of the first troop—Sir Thomas Dalziell, the strange enthusiast who never cut his beard nor altered the fashion of his uniform from the time of the execution of Charles I.

After some very unconvenial work hunting the poor Covenanters to earth the regiment served in Flanders under William III., from 1694 to 1697, and under the Duke of Marlborough from 1702 to 1712. The Greys were present in the sieges of Venloo, Ruremonde, and Stevenswaert, the capture of Liege, and the battle of Schellenburg, where they were ordered to fight on foot. They were also at Blenheim, and at Ramillies, where they assisted in the capture of the French Regiment du Roi, with its colors. They earned further distinction at Oudenarde, Tournay Malplaquet, and the siege of Bouchain.

The next service the Greys saw was in Scotland against the Jacobites in the rebellion of 1715. At Sheriffmuir it was their repeated charges that broke the right wing of the Jacobites, thus saving the Royalists from annihilation by the Highlanders.

During the Seven Years War the regiment had a big share of fighting, and it was at Dettingen that they made capture of the white standard of the French Household Troops. At Fontenoy and at Val they had their share of the hardships of the campaign, and in the words of one of the commanders-in-chief they "performed prodigies of valor."

It was not until the Battle of Waterloo that the Greys next participated in actual fighting, and their prowess there will be forgotten only when history is no more.

Their conduct is as much a national as a regimental heritage, and the eagle which is worn by every member of the regiment attests to the manner in which the regiment acquitted itself. Their repeated charges have seldom been equalled in warfare, and their distinction is an immortal one.

After Waterloo the Greys had a long spell of quiescence. Their activities were, in common with the other regiments in the army, mostly of a ceremonial kind. The Crimean War saw them called into action, and the charge of the Greys and the Inniskillings at Balaclava was one of the redeeming incidents of an ill-fated campaign.

When the Greys rode back into position after the charge, Sir Colin Campbell approached them and, uncovering his head, said: "Greys, gallant Greys, I am 61 years old, and if I were young again I should be proud to serve in your ranks."

After the Crimea came a further period of home service. There was a detachment of the regiment in the Egyptian War of 1884-85, and in December, 1899, they went full strength to South Africa. The Greys were incorporated with the 1st Cavalry Brigade, and they acquitted themselves with their wonted bravery and determination to win.

In the Great War they played their part with all their old valor, and maintained their reputation and traditions as "Second to None." There is no regiment in the British army whose record of achievements, history, national character, and sentiment form better material for a realist fascinating story than Scotland's only cavalry regiment—"the Greys."

Lunch In an Organ.

A luncheon party of twenty men inside an organ would seem impossible, yet this happened lately in the swell-box of the great organ at the Royal Albert Hall, London, beneath its 12,000 pipes and amid a storm of music.

The guests had no one to be shown some of the intricate mechanism of the wonderful instrument, which is soon to have added to it a solo organ with several thousand new pipes. It will then be the largest concert organ in the world.

Sanatorium Needed.

The Ontario Government and a number of municipal councils are making a determined effort to bring about the establishment of a sanatorium to meet the needs of Eastern Ontario. The present accommodation throughout the province is far from adequate.

Are Subject to Confiscation.

Canada has passed a ruling that all automobiles, brought into that city with a touring permit, are subject to confiscation if caught being used for any commercial purpose.

Oldest Love-Letter.

The oldest love-letter in the world is in the British Museum. It is a proposal of marriage for the hand of an Egyptian princess, and is in the form of an inscribed brick.

War Device In Antarctic.

Capt. Wilkins, the Polar airman, has declared his intention of applying to the German Government for permission to purchase from Germany one or two flame-throwers of the type used by the German army during the war.

Capt. Wilkins wishes to employ this instrument of destruction on his projected expedition to the South Pole.

"I am convinced," he says, "that a flame-thrower would be of infinite service to Polar aviators in the Antarctic, as it would enable the airmen to prepare a way through snow and ice for the take-off.

"With a machine of this kind I could melt the masses of pack ice and make a level track on which the airplane could start without difficulty. If this can be done one of the greatest obstacles to Polar flying will have vanished."

Laboratory-Grown Wheat.

The feat of Joshua in commanding the sun to stand still was hardly more miraculous than are the present-day laboratory achievements in manufacturing guns and putting them to work. Two agricultural chemists in the University of California, some weeks ago, planted wheat in the laboratory and then created artificial sunshine with a dozen 200-candle-power lamps filled with glowing argon gas. The wheat grew at an unheard-of pace, says Popular Science Monthly, reaching maturity in thirteen weeks instead of the usual five months.

Mazers and Measles.

Old wooden drinking-bowls, known as mazers, appear to be becoming increasingly popular among wealthy collectors. One of these bowls fetched as much as $50,000, and it is rare to find one in good condition and with a pedigree at less than $500.

The words "mazer" and "measles," by the way, are said to be derived from the same German word "mazer," meaning spot, the spotted portion of maplewood being the favorite material employed in the making of these bowls.

Tooted War's End.

The municipal museum of Wenden in Westphalia contains a treasure in the form of the bugle that sounded the end of the war. It was blown by German Staff Bugler Zebrowsky on the eve of November 7, 1918, to announce to the Allies the passage into their lines of the German emissaries, who were coming to sign the armistice.

Golfing From an Airplane.

"Aerial golf," in which an aviator is partnered by a man on the ground, who putts the ball after the former has dropped it from the air as near the green as possible has been played on a Surrey golf links.

A HUGE INDUSTRY.

Publication of a Daily Newspaper Ranks Among Big Businesses.

Figures from an advertisement of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association verify the fact that the publication of a daily newspaper ranks among the big business enterprises of the country, requiring the investment of large sums of money, huge current revenues and expert management.

There are ninety-seven daily newspapers in Canada with a combined circulation of 1,900,000 copies a day —one for every four persons. In connection with the industry, the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association has published the following figures: It gives employment to more than 25,000 persons.

It pays salaries and wages over $15,000,000 annually.

It buys raw newsprint to a value in excess of $8,000,000, every dollar of which is spent in Canada.

It has more than $40,000,000 invested in buildings and equipment.

It is estimated that close to $750,000 a week—at least $35,000,000 a year—is needed to keep these daily newspapers in operation.

Beards Take a Rest.

Shaving does not increase the rate of growth of the beard. This has been proved by Dr. Mildred Trotter, says Tit-Bits, after making precise measurements of beard shavings supplied by four students over a period of nine months.

More than 25,000 hairs were taken, cut at intervals of from twelve to ninety-six hours. One hundred hairs from each sample were measured with a microscope, and it was found that the longer the period over which the hair is permitted to grow, the slower is the increase in length from day to day.

The hair does not grow continuously, but in spurts, each of which is followed by a short rest.

For best results, advertise in The Beaver.

Summer Complaints Kill Little Ones

At the first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little one Baby's Own Tablets or in a few hours he may be beyond aid. These Tablets will prevent summer complaint if given occasionally to the well child, and will promptly relieve these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine as good and the mother has the guarantee that they are absolutely safe. They are sold by all druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little booklet, "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness", will be sent free to any mother on request.

Bright Boy—When a dog goes over de fence, de feet goes over before de tail.

"What's the man feeding the elephant moth balls for?"

"To keep the moths out of his trunk, silly."

A CURE FOR CRIME

Crown Prosecutor Would Apply Bible by Mechanical Device.

"Through the centuries Bible justice has evolved only two kinds of punishment for crime; imprisonment, the general; and whipping, the specific. Both are failures," Inspector Graham declared, "because jails are so comfortable that they are winter homes for the destitute, and whipping because it lacks uniformity and degrades him who administers it."

These are the views expressed by R. B. Graham, K.C., who has been crown prosecutor in Wiarton since 1913.

Mr. Graham said he believed that whipping was the most effective of the two punishments. The criminal feared bodily pain. The trouble with the lash, however, was the lack of uniformity in its administration. A hardened criminal might be punished severely, a young new-comer, who would profit by him through sympathy and kindness, for the task. On the other hand, a criminal might be punished severely on his first offence by a caning, and receive years of prison environment for a crime beyond the limits deserved.

The speaker recommended a whipping machine, with a broad paddle and whip attachment, operated by the latter punishment in preference to jail as a solution of the problem.

"The pre-knowledge of a life sentence that is sure to be imposed in jail," he said, "surely does not deter the criminal from an act of violence that may land him on the gallows in a few months," Inspector Graham continued, "but the fear of pain rather than severity would be a greater deterrent to crime."

The economic condition of modern jails was to be considered, he said, in instances, he continued, that they were more comfortable and healthy, with books, radio, music, cooking and very little labor for inmates.

SMOOTHNESS and ENDURANCE never before known at the price

WITH its sound basic design and its background of scientific development on General Motors Proving Ground—with its production advantages provided by the vast facilities of General Motors with its score of engineering advancements, including the famous G-M-R cylinder head—

—Pontiac Six offers a combination of smooth six-cylinder performance and high-speed endurance, the equal of which is found in no other car in the world selling for so low a price.

Its smooth, silent performance, combined with the beauty and luxury of its Fisher bodies, provides a measure of owner satisfaction unequalled in its field. And its tremendous endurance results in unparalleled length of life, which in turn, is expressed in consistently high resale value.

More important reasons for the selection of any car have never been found. That's why ever-increasing thousands are choosing the Pontiac Six . . . why Pontiac sales for 1928 are far ahead of previous records.

HINDU MAGIC TRICKS.

Traveller Convinced That Hypnotism Does Not Explain It.

The much-talked-of Indian rope trick is usually termed by the skeptical "Hypnotism."

The traveller has no answer, for he does not pretend to understand "how it is done"; yet he is convinced that hypnotism does not explain it.

At Poona an Indian trick merchant offered to give my regiment a performance, writes R. F. Foster in the London News.

At night, on the parade ground where we had erected a platform, the conjurer faced an audience of twenty Englishmen and 800 sepoys of the regiment. We could see him clearly by the light from hurricane lamps round the stage, and he had no assistance other than what we provided.

He asked for an assistant, and the havildar major (corresponding to the sergeant-major), prompted by one of the Indian officers, mounted the platform.

The conjurer took a saucepan and handed it down to the English lok for inspection. It had no double bottom —it was just an ordinary saucepan. I held it while the conjurer poured water into it. I satisfied myself that it was cold water and I satisfied myself, too, that the rice he next poured in was raw.

Then, the conjurer, bidding the havildar major stand in the middle of the stage—poor Hari Singh, he looked uncomfortable having to obey an inferior—gave him the saucepan and told him to stand it on his head and keep it steady by holding the handle.

The conjurer muttered incantations and gesticulated, and the water in the saucepan began to steam.

In five minutes, Hari Singh was bidden to lower the saucepan. It contained cooked rice.

During the trick, the conjurer and Hari Singh were the only people on the platform, and the saucepan and its contents were the only articles at hand, for all the appurtenances of the other tricks had been removed to the ground. Moveover, from the moment the saucepan with its cold water and uncooked rice was put upon Hari Singh's head by himself to the time it was removed by himself with the rice cooked, the conjurer had not touched it.

His explanation—that Hari Singh had supplied the heat necessary to cook the rice—seemed the only one possible, but assuming that to have been the case, how was the rice cooked in so short a time?

We had certainly not been hypnotised into believing we had witnessed a phenomenon.

"Caught rod-handed!" as the small boy said when found fishing on Sunday.

"And how do you get on with your wife?"

"I've a splendid working arrangement with her. In the forenoon she does what she wants, and in the afternoon I do what she wants."

KING'S NEW GREAT SEAL.

His Majesty's Effigy Will Be on the Back of a Charger.

Great Britain is to have a new Great Seal on which the effigy of the King will be removed from the quarter-deck of a Dreadnought to the back of a charger.

King George was the first British monarch to have England's naval power emphasized on the Great Seal. The Protectorate Parliament showed the navy in full sail down the Channel, this forming part of a most original design—on the one side a map of England and Ireland powdered with names and guarded by the fleet, and on the other the House of Commons in full session with serious aspect and bored clerks.

The Commonwealth's first Seal was produced in a hurry. On January 26th, 1649, it was decided that "Thomas Symons be hereby authorized to engrave a Seal. . . ." Twelve days later the old Seal was broken up in the House of Commons by a smith and the commissioners received the pieces as their perquisite. When, with a pointed hammer, the King removes all virtue from the present Seal, the Lord Chancellor will become its possessor.

The safe keeping of the Seal is a heavy responsibility in more senses than one. Richard I.'s Vice-Chancellor slipped overboard at Cyprus with it slung round his neck; neither he nor the Seal was seen again.

Lord Eldon, realizing his responsibility when aroused from sleep by a cry of "Fire!" rushed downstairs and buried the Seal under some loose mould and then turned to "a very pretty sight, for all the maids had turned out of their beds" and formed a line to hand water-buckets along from a pond to the fire-engine. When the fire came under control he went back to bed, and could not remember on rising where he had put the Seal. So he made the whole family search till it was found.

TALL MEN HANDICAPPED.

London Bus Company Finds Too Many Inches Useless.

Individuals of small stature are in demand for bus conductors in London, says the Christian Science Monitor. A six-foot former guardsman with an excellent record who applied for employment was told the maximum height allowed was 5 feet 9 inches. Hundreds of similar cases have to be refused by the London General Omnibus Company every year," said an official in an interview. "It would be almost cruelty to put a six-foot man on a bus all day, especially on a covered-top bus. He would have to stoop continually.

"New drivers must be between the ages of 24 and 36, conductors between 24 and 35. Both must have a high standard of physique and fitness. Drivers must not be under 5 feet 7 inches in height or over 5 feet 11 inches, and the conductors must not be under 5 feet 6 inches or over 5 feet 9 inches.

"We have many public school and university men applying for jobs. That we have many well-educated men as conductors and drivers was shown when he looked for interpreters speaking five languages and found them."

Shoe and Skirt Secrets.

The effect of wearing improper shoes is to throw the body backwards and displace the weight line forward, while the posture tends to become poorer. Badly worn shoes lessen the strength of the feet. Such are the findings of investigators.

They also made a study of different kinds of skirts, and found that the lighter the skirt the slower the onset of fatigue, and the wider a skirt at the bottom the less the fatigue.

A skirt for exercising should not weigh more than one pound, and should measure not less than 40 inches in the hip and 2 1-3 yards at the bottom.

Linen, velor, corduroy, and velvet produce tiredness most rapidly, while silk, gabardine, and French serge cause least fatigue. Anything that shortens the length of the wearer's steps is likely to cause tiredness.

Longer Legs for Barrows.

The legs of wheelbarrows are to be lengthened in the Old Country as the result of experiments by the Industrial Fatigue Research Board, who have made tests to discover the "physiological cost" of wheeling a barrowload of bricks.

A single barrow worker will move approximately 10,000 bricks, weighing twenty-five tons, in a working day of nine hours, over distances varying from twenty-five to seventy-five yards.

Starting and stopping the barrow is responsible for 29.3 percent. of the oxygen consumption, and it is suggested that the legs of barrows should be lengthened to eighteen to twenty inches.

A Rose Remedy.

Taking Vinca roses as a remedy for diabetes is quite a common practice in Africa and Australia. It is taken in a crude manner, as a decoction of twenty-seven leaves in three teacupfuls of water three times a day.

Medical examination has proved that Vinca roses contain at least three alkaloids, present in nearly the same proportion in all the specimens examined. It is proposed to find out the actual remedial value of the plant.

Motor-boat Thrills.

Racing outboard motor-boats is rapidly becoming a popular sport. The engines of the boats are attached outboard, over the stern, and the lightest engines can be carried about with ease and are simple to fix and unfix. A two-cylinder 7 horsepower racer that can do 25 miles an hour weighs about sixty pounds and costs about $200.

Decrease of Prisoners.

The prison population of England and Wales has decreased from 20,000 to 10,000 since 1878.

A pompous rich man, who believed in having everything "just so" was showing his wonderful library to a genuine book-lover.

"They are my friends!" exclaimed the wealthy one, waving his hand towards his books.

"Ah," replied the other, examining a volume from a shelf, "I see you never 'cut' your friends."

WISE AND OTHERWISE

An Alabama negro, who prided himself on being able to play any tune on the banjo after he had heard it once, perched himself on the side of a hill one Sunday morning and began to pick strings in a workmanlike manner.

It chanced that the minister came along, going up to Moses, he remanded harshly: "Moses, do you know the Ten Commandments?" Moses scratched his chin for a moment, and said: "Parson, jest you whistle the first three or four bars, and I'll have a try at it."

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will drive worms from the system without injury to the child, because its action, while fully effective, is mild.

Little Willie came home the other day with a nice new golf ball.

"Look at the lost ball I found, dad," he said.

"Are you sure it was a lost ball, my boy?" the father asked.

"Oh, yes," said little Willie. "It was lost all right. I saw the man and the caddie looking for it."

Corns are painful growths. Holloway's Corn Remover will remove them.

Her father—But, my boy, surely you are too young to marry Aurelia? How old are you?

Her Suitor—One and twenty, sir.

Her father—And she is twenty-seven. No, I'm afraid that's too great a disparity. Why not wait half a dozen years? Then you'll be twenty-seven, and she'll probably be about the same age?

The Oil of the People.—Many oils have come and gone, but Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil continues to maintain its position and increase its sphere of usefulness each year. Its sterling qualities have brought it to the front and kept it there, and it can truly be called the oil of the people. Thousands have benefited by it and would use no other preparation.

He was on his way home with his new car, which was absorbing all his attention, when it suddenly struck him that he had forgotten something. Twice on the way he stopped, counted his parcels, and searched his pocket book, but finally decided he had everything with him.

When he reached home his daughter ran out, stopped with a look of surprise on her face, and cried, "Why father, where's mother?"

Sores Flee Before It.—There are many who have been afflicted with sores and have driven them away with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. All similarly troubled should lose no time in applying this splendid remedy, as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap, but its power is no way expressed by its low price.

"I am collecting," she said, "for the suffering poor."

"Yes," said the man, "but are you sure they really suffer as much as some people seem to think?"

"Oh, yes," quite sure," she answered; "I go to their homes and talk to them for hours."

Internal parasites in the shape of worms in the stomach and bowels of children sap their vitality and retard physical development. They keep the child in a constant state of unrest and if not attended to, endanger life. The child can be spared much suffering and the mother much anxiety by using a reliable worm remedy, such as Miller's Worm Powders, which are sure death to worms.

Asthma No Longer Dreaded. The dread of renewed attacks from asthma has no hold upon those who have learned to rely upon Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. So safe do they feel that complete reliance is placed on this true specific with the certainty that it will always do all that its makers claim. If you have not yet learned how safe you are with this preparation at hand get it to-day and know for yourself.

A certain salesman was proposing to his best girl.

"And, sweetheart," he finished, "I'll lay my whole fortune at your feet."

"It isn't a very big fortune," she reminded him.

"I know, dear," he replied, "but it'll look awfully big beside your little feet!"

He got the job.

OLD ONTARIO RESIDENCES.

House at Bath is Over 132 Years Old Another at Kingston.

Among the oldest residences in Ontario is the Fairfield House, situated at Bath, writes G.H.W., in the Toronto Globe. Although 132 years old, it is still in good condition.

The Fairfield House has been owned for several years by A. W. Brown of Newark, New Jersey, who spends the summers there. For a long time the house was operated as a summer hostelry, being known as the Bay View Villa. It is built largely of heavy oak timbers, and the nails were made by the village blacksmith of the time. Old residents of the village and surrounding country tell of the many festivities that took place in the old home on its completion. People travelled fifteen to twenty miles to attend the joyous event, and the roads in the early days of the province were rough indeed. But the entertainment furnished by the Fairfield House was unlimited. Guests were made up for the hardships endured by the visitors. For three days the table literally groaned under the heavy burden of eatables, and at night the merrymakers danced until the wee sma' hours.

In Kingston, which has many very old houses, there is a quaint cottage on King street west, opposite a martello tower, that is said to have been built about the same time as the Fairfield home at Bath. This is the old Cunningham House, which recently changed hands. According to old residents, Thomas Moore, the famed British poet, stayed at this cottage in 1804, when he made a tour of Canada and the United States. It was on that visit that Moore travelled from Kingston to Montreal by batteau, and wrote the famous "Canadian Boat Song."

"Faintly as tolls the evening chime, Our voices keep tune, and our oars keep time."

NURSING BIG CLOCKS

First Aid Squads Always Ready to Repair Monster Clocks—One Clock Runs for 400 Years.

Big clocks have to be nursed, and first aid squads have to be kept in readiness for the moment when one or more of the big timepieces of big cities go on strike and refuse to strike.

Big Ben, that patriarch of clocks which empire such a prominent position in the tower of the British House of Parliament, on the banks of the Thames supplied an interesting example of this health insurance for clocks during the snowstorms of last winter, says G. N. Greenland in an article in the Pictorial Weekly. Puffed in the vicinity noticed, about six-thirty one evening that one of the huge faces, 22½ feet in diameter, had ceased its vitally important job of telling Londoners the time. S.O.S. messages were immediately sent to the clock nurses. Messrs. Dent, who built Big Ben and looked after him. They rush their expert engineers to the scene to diagnoses his illness.

They soon found that face No. 4 had been exposed to the brunt of the storm, and that snow had accumulated round the face and the great hands had clogged until the clock was forced to stop.

Accidents will happen, and although Big Ben is one of the world's finest timekeepers, he played a queer trick some years ago. At a quarter to four one April afternoon, just as questions were flashed in the House, members were astonished to hear the four clanging booms of four o'clock. At four o'clock Big Ben boomed out five, and when five o'clock was reached crashed out six.

By seven o'clock, however, he had evidently decided to return to the paths of truth, and "sounded out" the correct measure of seven.

Neither the nurses nor anybody else could explain this amazing failure. Theoretically it could not have occurred. Considering the fact that year after year, in fair weather and foul, the nine feet-long hour hands and the minute hands 14 feet in length, and weighing a quarter of a ton the pair, are operated with such accuracy and reliability, it is marvellous that such mishaps are not more frequent.

About a year ago the famous clock of St. Paul's Cathedral provided another interesting case of first-aid for clocks. Early one morning the big timepiece stopped. The cathedral authorities decided that it was an urgent matter to keep it going, for every day thousands of city workers look up at that 17-foot diameter face for their correct time.

So the expert clock nurses were sent for. They were soon on the spot and examining the crippled apparatus. It was speedily seen that a worn pin which had caused the stoppage would take many hours to repair. The job was got in hand instantly.

But London could not be shut down, so an emergency staff was organised to work the strickes given by hand.

So successfully was their work performed that the clock face kept faith with the public, and not a soul of the millions who looked at it that eventful day—save those in the know —had an inkling of what was happening.

There are other clocks which, like Big Ben, rarely require the attentions of the clock doctor. Hardly any timepiece can have given less work to the clock experts than the church clock of East Hendred, Berkshire.

For 400 years it has gone correctly day after day, before being stopped for repairs, its first since the days of Elizabeth.

Clock's Twenty-Mile Radius.

Red and white signals flashing from a series of sixteen 25-inch lamps is the latest method of giving the time by electricity.

This new type of electric clock consists of an octagon-shaped copper beacon lantern, ten feet high, containing red and white lamps of 25,000 candlepower each. The red lamps flash once at the quarter, twice at the half, three times at the three-quarters, and four times at the hour. After the red lamps have stopped flashing, the white lampe flash the number of the hour.

The whole apparatus is installed on a high building in Baltimore, and it is said that in favorable weather conditions the time can be read twenty miles away.

Soldering 2,000 Years Ago.

A method of soldering two pieces of iron together with copper was known to Roman artisans in England nearly two thousand years ago.

This is shown by a deep iron ferrule like a modern sweet-ring unearthed during excavations of the Roman city of Uriconium, located in the river Severn and declining about A.D. 320.

Lead pipe manufactured and laid in Rome's water system 1,800 years ago was recently pronounced to be in perfect condition.

Where Crusoe Roosted.

A recent survey of Juan Fernandez Island, on which Alexander Selkirk, the reputed original of Robinson Crusoe, lived for four years, shows the island to be one of the most fruitful spots in South America.

Every imaginable plant seems to grow on the island. One Frenchman was shipwrecked on the island forty years ago. He likes it so much that he refuses to leave.

The Royal Scots Fusiliers.

The fourth oldest regiment in the British army, the Royal Scots Fusiliers, marked its 250th anniversary by holding a parade at the Low Green, Ayr. Several thousands of people viewed the proceedings.

Bicycles.

Britain is now supplying pedal bicycles to the whole world, except France, Germany, and the United States. The industry is now beating all past records.

An Appreciation.

The Council of the Township of Camden wish to go on record in tendering to Mr. R. W. Saul their thanks for his generous services in having the road from Nimo corner south placed on the County Road. We hope this will only be a start, and with the assistance of Mr. Saul and the Hon. W. D. Black, the road from the Provincial Highway north through the county will soon be assumed by the Government as a Provincial Highway. This is the only road that will best serve the people of the county and the tourists to the best advantage.

Morven W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. George Clark, on Friday, August 3rd, with a goodly number of members and visitors present. The first part of the afternoon was taken up by quilting. A short business meeting followed. Hymn 269. Scripture lesson, Prov. 3: 1-12, read by Mrs. C. J. Sharp. Hymn 121. Prayer by the President, Mrs. Fralick. After the usual amount of business, the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, after which, Mrs. Clark served a delicious lunch.

Dedication Service.

On Sunday, July 29th, at Beulah, on the Ivanhoe Circuit, were held the Dedication services of the new brick church. Dr. T. Alb. Moore, Toronto was the speaker of the day, and delivered two very impressive sermons. The pastor, Rev. J. N. Lovelace, assisted by Rev. L. S. Whyte, had charge of the morning service, at which Mr. Lovelace sang "Building for Eternity". The church could not accommodate the people so an overflow service was held in the Orange Hall. This service was in charge of Rev. Jas. Rollins, President of the Conference, assisted by Rev. W. H. Truscott and Rev. E. M. Cook. Mr. and Mrs. Cook sang a beautiful duett at this service. The offering amounted to over $300.00. On Tuesday evening the ladies served the dedication supper on the church grounds. The program was held in the hall, and was given by the "Radio Four Male Quartet", Belleville. Many neighboring ministers attended this supper, among them being the Rev. Mr. Rivers, Madoc, who gave a delightful reading; Rev. R. C. Tait and Rev. E. M. Cook. The proceeds amounted to $265.00.

WEDDING BELLS.

Price—Hudgin.

A very pretty wedding took place at noon on Saturday, August 11th, 1928, at the home of Mr. John C. Hudgin, Selby, when his daughter, Beulah M., became the wife of Mr. Clarence Price, B.A., son of Mrs. Lillie Price, Wesley, the Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, in the absence of the Pastor, receiving the marriage vows.

Precisely at 12 o'clock, while Mr. Percival Price, Dominion carillonneur, played the wedding march, Mr. Hudgin led his daughter to the altar, which was beautifully decorated with fern and gladioli. The bride was very pretty in pink georgette trimmed with lace and satin flowers, and carried ophelia roses and maiden hair ferns.

After congratulations and the signing of the register, the wedding party repaired to the dining room, where a delicious luncheon was served.

After a merry hour spent with their young friends, the happy couple left by motor to spend their honeymoon at Rideau, at the summer home of Mr. Jas. Patterson, uncle of the bride. The bride travelled in a beautiful dress of velvet and crepe, with robin's egg blue coat and hat of rose and blue.

On their return they will reside in Kitchener, where Mr. Price is Science Master in the Collegiate. The guests from a distance were Miss A. M. Hudgin, Athens; Miss Pearl Price, R.N., Wellesley Hospital, Toronto; Dr. and Mrs. Ronald Hudgin and Master John, of Kingsville; Mr. Percival Price, Ottawa, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Winter, Millbrook Crescent, Toronto.

The bride, an accomplished and popular young lady, will be greatly missed from the community where she was the President of the "X", and for some time organist in the United Church; also teacher in the section.

Many beautiful gifts and substantial cheques carried the good wishes of hosts of friends of the young couple.

—The annual Sunday School picnic of the Parish of St. Mark, Deseronto, took place last Wednesday, and was a success, and enjoyable. The children turned out in larger numbers than last year. The sports were enjoyed and also a baseball game, girls vs boys. Several public spirited people lent their cars for transportation. Mrs. Gordon, Mr. Harndon, Mr. Walter Clapperton, Mr. Ernest Sherry and Mr. Potter; and Mrs. Benson Bush and Mr. Amey also assisted most kindly.

Roaches live in colonies. If you see one you know there are many. Roaches are loathsome vermin. Prolific breeders. There are medical authorities who declare seventeen diseases and cases are transmitted by roaches. Roaches must be killed. Spray FLY-TOX into cracks, crevices, around water pipes, faucets and other plumbing. Simple instructions on each bottle (blue label) for killing roaches and ALL household insects. INSIST on FLY-TOX. It is the scientific insecticide developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Pelloweship. FLY-TOX is safe, stainless, fragrant, sure. Easy to use.—Adv.
